Ford Strike Peace Discussions Renewed

Reds Order Berlin Travel Resumption On Thursday

Rail, Motor Traffic Between West Zones And City Approved Formally by Russia

Berlin, May 9 (AP).—The Russians and Western Powers announced tonight that two-way traffic to Berlin and across the Soviet zonal border will start at a minute past midnight Thursday morning.

The order to lift the Berlin blockade at that time was broadcast on the Russian radio tonight by Gen. V. I. Chuiko ', Soviet commander in Germany.

Chuikov ordered restoration of "transport, trade and communications services" effective at 12:01 a. m., Berlin Time, May 12, (6:01 EDT Wednesday), the date agreed upon by the four occupation powers May 4 in New York.

Earlier, the Western Powers had said they would permit traffic into the Russian zone to begin moving at that minute.

The Soviet order specifically lifted the Russian controls on the Soviet sector line dividing Berlin.

Sixteen Trains a Day

Chuikov's order permits 16 freight trains a day to move into Berlin, restores highway traffic, waives previous Soviet claims to search Allied baggage and demand Soviet travel permits at certain checkpoints, and restores mail service to Berlin. In short, it puts the situation back to where it was March 1, 1948.

The technical arrangement for lifting the blockade was made without restoration of direct four-power contact in Berlin, however.

The Western Powers communicated their plans to west German railway executives who informed their German counterparts in the Soviet zone.

East and west German railway men then made their plans.

The Western Powers said they would allow all traffic to begin moving normally by rail, highway and barge.

Activity in Helmstedt

In Helmstedt, blockade-lifting preparations were at a feverish pitch. At that checkpoint between the British and Russian zones west of Berlin, workmen and soldiers were busy installing radio and telephone equipment, repainting border signs and clipping weeds at the edge of the long-unused highway.

At the rail station radio equipment was installed to keep contact with the first train on the trial run over rusty rails to Berlin.

Both British and Americans moved in reinforcements for the small units at the border point to check the papers of travelers. Hotels and rooming houses already were filled with persons waiting for the barriers to be raised.

The first train into Berlin will be a British military passenger train, the British announced. It will carry many correspondents. It is expected to reach the border at 1:04 a. m. Thursday and, after an hour's stopover at Helmstedt, reach Berlin at 6 a. m. It will pick up two coaches from the American zone center of Frankfurt at Hannover.

On the first day it is planned to move 10 trains of coal and 6 of fresh potatoes and consumer goods for the city which has lived for 10 months on airlift supplies.

Transport men said the first engineers "will take it easy" over lines idle so long.

Chuikov ordered maintenance of present regulations concerning the East mark, West mark and foreign currency until the currency question is settled in high-level talks.

The 16 freight trains a day into Berlin are counted on to carry about 12,000 tons of supplies, almost the level of the record haul by the airlift in 24 hours.

Body Badly Bruised

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

Dana Marie Weaver, who was found dead yesterday.

Roanoke, Va., May 9 (AP)—Dana Marie Weaver, attractive 16-year-old Jefferson High Schol junior, was found dead in the kitchen of Christ Episcopal Church today. She was severely beaten and had been dead for several hours.

The young girl had gone to the church about 6 o'clock Sunday night to attend a young peoples' meeting. But the meeting had been canceled and the group was on a picnic.

Police apparently found little to go on in their investigation. They said the girl apparently put up a fight before she died. Several of her fingernails were broken off. There was no evidence of rape, police said.

Beaten With Bottle

Two soft-drink bottles, one of them shattered, were found on the kitchen floor. Dr. Charles M. Irvin, city coroner, said the girl had been hit on the head with a bottle. She also had a large bruise on her neck and other bruises on the legs, leading officers to believe she had been kicked in the struggle.

She was last seen alive by three Virginia Polytechnic Institute students with whom she and two girl friends had been automobile riding Sunday afternoon. They let the two girls out at their homes and then took Miss Weaver to the church.

Commonwealth's Attorney C. E. Cuddy and Detective Capt. Frank H. Webb went to Blacksburg this afternoon to question the three VPI students. One, they learned, was in Roanoke. They refused to identify him.

The body was found about 8

Byrd Is Ready If President Tries 'Purge'

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

A remark attributed to President Truman yesterday brought this sharp retort from Senator Harry Flood Byrd (D., Va.):

"I will be on hand when the purging starts."

A group of war veterans, calling at the White House, had just quoted Mr. Truman as saying there are too many Byrds in Congress.

Said Gilbert A. Harrison, national chairman of the American Veterans Committee:

"He (Mr. Truman) told us there are too many Byrds in Congress. He wants us to see that Congressmen are elected who are able to see things in the terms of national interest, rather than local interest, and make large plans, rather than small plans."

It was the first time since the election that the President had singled out a member of his party in Congress for personal attack.

A few days ago he threatened to punish members of Congress who voted against Administration bills by depriving them of patronage but he mentioned no names.

Senator Byrd, who has opposed many of the President's proposals, is the only B-Y-R-D in Congress. He waited only long enough to be reasonably certain the President didn't mean "B-I-R-D." Then he fired this salvo:

"If the President means he will attempt to purge me from the Senate because I will not accept his dictatorship in matters of legislation, then I will be on hand when the purging starts.

"I owe my allegiance to my constituency of Virginia. So long as I remain in the Senate I will vote as my conscience dictates and to reflect the wishes of my constituents."

Truman Asks Reorganizing Action Soon

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday urged Congress to speed legislation giving him the power to reorganize the executive branch of the Government. Such power has been recommended by the Hoover Commission.

Mr. Truman, in a special message, pointed out that the measure now before Congress requires any reorganization plan he submits to lie before Congress 60 days, without being disapproved by either House or Senate, to become effective.

"Because of this 60-day waiting period," Mr. Truman said, "the bill should be enacted soon if any reorganization plans are to be submitted to the present session of the Congress."

At yesterday's weekly White House legislative conference a new labor bill and extension of reciprocal trade legislation were discussed.

Speaker Sam Rayburn (D., Tex.) told reporters President Truman "just listened" when told of plans for a new bill to repeal the Taft-Hartley law.

Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill.), Senate Democratic leader, said he promised the President the Senate soon would take up the reciprocal trade extension bill and pass it in about 10 days.

A bill giving the President the reorganization powers he asked has passed the House, and is now on the Senate calendar awaiting action.

The House-passed version exempts some Government agencies from reorganization plans, but the Senate version, as approved by the Senate Executive Expenditures Committee, would not exempt any.

70 Million Can't Be Warlike

2-Per-Family Limit on Babies Urged by Japanese Physician

Tokyo, May 9 (U.P.).—A physician suggested today that families in crowded Japan be limited to two babies per family during the next 20 years to reduce the nation to a "peaceful population of 70 million."

Dr. Shozo Toda, honorary professor of Kyoto University, also urged women who are considering marriage to postpone it for five years. To popularize this, he said an educational campaign should teach the country that unmarried women over 30 are not "old maids."

Toda said he will appeal to Diet members to adopt legislation legalizing abortions after the birth of a second child in a family.

He said there should be no births in Japan for the next five years because 6 million nationals have been repatriated. If the present rate of population increase continues, the doctor said, Japan will swell from 80 million to 90 million in 1955.

If this occurs Japan then will have to import at least 3 million tons of food to prevent starvation, Toda said.

Sales Tax Bill Filibustered By Johnston

South Carolinian Talks for 4½ Hours Against 2 Per Cent Levy for District

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Senator Johnston (D., S. C.) yesterday launched his long-threatened filibuster to beat the 2 per cent District sales tax bill.

Johnston began his talk against the sales tax at 1 p. m., and held the Senate floor for the rest of the day. He stopped at 5:35 p. m. His tactics left Senate District Committee Chairman McGrath (D., R. I.) and other Senate leaders uncertain when voting would begin on the District revenue measure. But McGrath said there is no question the 18-million-dollar revenue bill will reach a vote.

Bill to Be Set Aside

McGrath agreed to the request of Senator Maybank (D., S. C.) to set aside the revenue bill when the Senate meets today to bring up the Treasury Postoffice appropriation bill.

He did so with the understanding that the District revenue bill debate will be resumed when the appropriation measure is cleared.

Johnston began his talkathon after proposing that the District committee revenue bill with the sales tax be scrapped entirely and that instead of more taxes, the Federal Government pay 25 per cent of the District annual budget.

Johnston talked to lightly filled galleries, and frequently to a nearly empty Senate floor. Several times, his Senatorial audience dropped to two. Shortly after 5 p. m. he looked around and saw no other Senator. "I've almost got a notion to vote this bill out of existence," he drawled.

But Senators Hunt (D., Wyo.) and Schoeppel (R., Kan.), in charge of the bill, rushed to their places from the fringes of the Senate chamber, and Johnston continued talking.

Hunt Pleads for Passage

Senator Hunt, in a 20-minute speech opening the revenue bill debate, appealed for passage of the committee measure. It includes:

1. Two per cent general retail sales tax, exempting food for home consumption, medicine, and restaurant meals up to $1.50.

2. A 15-cent boost in the $2 per $100 tax on real estate.

3. A 1-cent tax on each package of cigarettes.

4. A 50 per cent increase in liquor license fees and gallonage taxes, and a doubling of the present 50-cent tax on each barrel of beer.

5. Lowering of the unincorporated business income tax exemption from $10,000 to $5000.

6. Starting next January 1, an increase in the District personal income tax exemption from $1000 to $4000.

Shortly before Johnston ended his speech, he presented three other amendments, two of them designed to scrap the sales tax and substitute for it a broadened income tax law that would keep present exemptions, extended the levy to persons now exempt, and approximately double present rates. The third amendment calls for a 25-cent increase in the $2

'Invasion' With Helicopters Demonstrated by Marines

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Quantico, Va., May 9.—The Marine Corps unveiled here today a revolutionary new invasion technique designed to counteract the threat of atomic attack on a concentrated amphibious force.

Under the heretofore secret method demonstrated for members of Congress, swarms of helicopters launched from aircraft carriers would replace the landing barges and alligators of World War II in the assault phases of a landing.

Leatherneck chiefs express confidence that the new tactics—though still in the development stage—are practicable. They've been working quietly on them here since 1946 and felt they were far enough along to show Congress.

Some 60 Senators and Representatives witnessed eight Piasecki "flying windmills," laden with Marines, take off from a simulated flattop, land back of an "enemy-held" beach and go into action.

Actual tests have been staged from carriers, and some more extensive maneuvers are planned from a CVE, the USS Palau, at Camp Lejeune, N. C., this month.

"We expect that in the future helicopters will replace boats in the assault waves in many situations," Maj. Gen. Lemuel C. Shepherd, Commandant of the Marine Corps Schools here, told The Washington Post.

"The new field has great possibilities. It permits the dispersion of ships of the invasion force—making them less vulnerable to air attack—and saves time in getting troops ashore in the crucial early hours of a landing."

Gen. Clifton B. Cates, Marine commandant, also said he is confident that improved performance of helicopters will prove the worth of the present experimental techniques.

"Combined with such things as the troop-carrying submarine, the helicopter will, I believe, become the spearhead of amphibious warfare," he told The Post.

Here is the way the experts here—"intellectual and research center of the Marine Corps"—view the helicopter:

The atomic bomb has made huge concentrations of ships, like those in the amphibious invasions of the Pacific, extremely vulnerable to attack. The only answer offered thus far is dispersion, and slow landing barges must start from ships anchored close in.

By putting assault troops aboard spread-out carriers and sending them off in Piasecki "flying bananas" at night, from 40 miles out instead of eight, the invasion force could not be wiped out with one A-bomb.

Assault troops, moreover, could be put down at any point desired, not just where the beach is favorable. They'd have the added ad-

Bill to Release Salary Funds Still Unsigned

President Truman has not yet signed the congressional joint resolution authorizing funds to pay Federal employes who have been—or soon will be—forced to go without pay.

Mr. Truman is himself one of the 15,000 public servants affected.

What he will do about the joint resolution eventually was not clear yesterday, but it was learned that his failure to sign promptly was due to a distasteful proviso which Congress wrote into the resolution before it was adopted Friday and sent to the White House.

This proviso, echo of a fight between Mr. Truman and the Republican-dominated Eightieth Congress, says:

"No funds . . . shall be used for salaries and expenses of any person in any of the following positions in the Bureau of Reclamation . . . who is not a qualified engineer with at least five years engineering and administrative experience: (1) Commissioner of Reclamation; (2) Assistant Commissioner of Reclamation; (3) Regional Director of Reclamation."

By use of somewhat similar language, tacked on as a rider to the Interior Department appropriation bill last year, the Eightieth Congress "fired" Michael W. Strauss, Commissioner of Reclamation, and Richard L. Boke, Regional Director of Reclamation for California.

Neither Strauss nor Boke is an engineer. What the Eightieth Congress disliked about them most, however, was their views on public power and land policies.

Mme. Pandit Greeted Here By Hundreds

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

India's Mme. Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit, diplomat, author and mother of three children, was warmly welcomed to Washington yesterday, the first woman Ambassador to the United States.

Several hundred members of the Indian Embassy staff and other residents of the Indian colony here, together with State Department officials and foreign diplomats, greeted the tiny, silver-haired Ambassador at National Airport.

Wearing a lavendar Indian sari under a gray coat, Mme. Pandit stepped from the plane which brought her and her 19-year-old daughter, Rita, from New York, to be enveloped in a swarm of newspaper reporters, photographers, radio broadcasters and well-wishers.

Gracious and Calm

With gracious calmness she told the reporters who crowded about to hear her over the roar of the plane's engines, "I would like to record my sense of privilege of being able to represent India in the world today . . .

"I hope and trust that India and America together can be helpful in contributing to the solution of some of the many problems which the world is facing."

She repeated this, speaking into a Voice of America microphone, as other sari-clad Indian women thrust bouquets of roses and carnations upon her. Two-year-old Lakshman Rai was held up so he could place a garland of carnations about her for the Indian Merchants Association.

Sister of Nehru

Mme. Pandit is the sister of Prime Minister Pandit Jawaharlal Hehru. She became India's first Ambassador to the Soviet Union in 1947, and has frequently headed India's delegation to the United Nations.

Stanley Woodward, State Department chief of protocol, welcomed her at the airport on behalf of the United States, together with Joseph C. Satterthwaite, director of the department's Office of Near Eastern and African Affairs, and Elbert G. Matthews, chief of the division of South Asian Affairs.

Sir Oliver Franks greeted Mrs. Pandit on behalf of the United Kingdom.

Judge Backs Fay in Phone Removal Case

District Court Judge Alexander Holtzoff yesterday refused to enjoin the United States Attorney from seeking to remove a telephone allegedly used to violate District gambling laws.

Decision on a similar injunction against the telephone company was postponed until Wednesday.

The injunction is sought by Nola Andrews, 1223 12th st., nw., in whose apartment indicted gambler Atillio Acolotti was arrested on March 26.

United States Attorney George Morris Fay has asked for the removal of the Andrews phone and 296 others, in his efforts to curtail District gambling.

In refusing to enjoin Fay, Judge Holtzoff ruled that Fay was "properly performing his duty" in trying to remove telephones suspected of being used in gambling.

But the judge also ruled that the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. could not remove a telephone solely on the basis of a letter from Fay saying that the phone was being used to violate the law.

The company must be prepared to prove unlawful use, he said, and the burden of proof falls on the company, not the subscriber. He postponed his decision with relation to the injunction sought against the company until Miss Andrews' attorney, Charles E. Ford, could answer government affidavits.

In an earlier but similar case, District Court Judge David A. Pine did enjoin Fay from seeking to remove a Maryland telephone.

The government yesterday presented three affidavits to support its contention that the Andrews' telephone was being used unlawfully.

In one, Downey Rice, former FBI agent and a special consultant to Fay, quoted Miss Andrews as saying that Acolotti was using her telephone to run his business. Rice led the party which arrested Acolotti in Miss Andrews' apartment.

Another affidavit, signed by deputy United States Marshal Sam Wertleb, listed the property seized in the Andrews' apartment.

This property included memoranda listing scores of members and 32 names, each followed by notation of sums of money varying from $5 to $800; a three-page poem, a notebook entitled "I must remember," and copies of income tax returns.

In Miss Andrews' bedroom, Wertleb said he found: An Alco-

Invited to Paris

Duties May Keep Connally, Vandenberg From Big 4 Talks

Senators Tom Connally and Arthur H. Vandenberg have been invited to the Paris conference of Big Four Foreign Ministers, but the pressure of legislation probably will prevent their attendance.

This was disclosed yesterday after the Senators met in private to discuss plans for the May 23 conference with Secretary of State Acheson, Ambassador-at-large Philip C. Jessup, and Ernest A. Gross, Assistant Secretary of State for Congressional Affairs.

The invitation to Connally, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relation Committee, and to Vandenberg, ranking Republican on the committee—who together are the chief spokesmen in Congress for this Nation's bipartisan foreign policy—apparently was extended as a gesture of Administration good will.

However, they face such key upcoming legislation as ratification of the North Atlantic Treaty, the $1,450,000,000 global arms program, and the second-year appropriation for the European Recovery Program.

Reuther Plea To Company Head Ends Deadlock

New Negotiations Will Begin Today But Manufacturer Declines to Debate

Detroit, May 9 (AP).—Walter Reuther's top-level appeal to Henry Ford, 2d, today broke the ice in the five-day strike deadlock.

Renewed peace talks were scheduled at 2 p. m. Tuesday. They ended abruptly when the strike began Thursday.

The Ford Motor Co. head, however, declined an invitation from the CIO United Auto Workers' president to attend personally.

He said other company officials would be "happy" to meet in an effort to settle the walkout of 65,000 workers. His reply came within two hours after Reuther's request.

Layoffs Mounting

The talks will take place as wheels in Ford's empire continue to grind to a stop, and layoffs mount across the Nation.

In his acceptance, the youthful Ford president also turned down a debate challenge from Reuther. The UAW head asked that Ford debate with him the "speed-up" issue at a mass meeting of strikers, if talks failed after four days.

Ford said his company was going back into negotiations "on the assumption that they will be continued until this strike can be brought to a close."

Ford said the company will be represented by John S. Bugas, vice president in charge of industrial relations. Bugas headed the company delegation last Thursday when negotiations were broken off.

Ford previously had expressed willingness to negotiate the speed-up issue, but said arbitration would be the most effective means of settlement.

He had suggested that an industrial engineer consultant be called in to determine whether assembly lines in one building of the River Rouge plant make employes work too fast.

The UAW had contended it was a "human" problem that could be settled fairly only through direct negotiations.

Ford had rejected mediation offers by Acting Mayor George Edwards of Detroit, and Mayor Orville L. Hubbard of Dearborn, home of the company's key Rouge plant.

Reuther's Overture

Reuther's peace overture came as thousands of workers in other Ford plants and supplier firms were facing layoffs.

Only 500 additional Ford workers have been idled indirectly so far by the strikes at the two plants.

Today, however, the company announced a timetable for future plant closings. It indicated that virtually all its factories would be shut down within a week.

By nightfall Tuesday, 14,000 more Ford workers are slated for layoffs. The list will increase Friday, according to the timetable, with materials in transit scheduled to keep the Los Angeles plant operating until Monday.

Elsewhere, 47,600 auto industry employes returned to work after interruptions. Hudson recalled 25,000 laid off last week by a shortage of brakes; Briggs Manufacturing Co. solved a small walkout which had idled 16,800 employes. Chrysler resumed operations at Plymouth, Mich., where 5800 had been laid off by a shortage of car bodies from the Briggs plant.

About 950 workers at three National Carbon Co. plants walked out today after expiration of the firm's contract with the CIO United Chemical Workers. The union said six issues remain unsettled.

Chrysler Idles 22,000 For Lack of Windows

Detroit, May 9 (AP).—Chrysler Corp. announced an indefinite layoff of 22,000 employes at once. Chrysler said a labor dispute over company slowdown charges at Motor Products Corp. had cut off its supply of car windows. Final assembly of Dodge, De Soto and Chrysler cars and some other operations were halted.

Texas Stalls in Oil Case, U. S. Charges

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

The Government charged before the Supreme Court yesterday that Texas seeks to delay a legal settlement of the tidelands oil case so it can "continue lobbying" in Congress for complete control of the multimillion-dollar prize now at stake.

The oral arguments at times wandered far afield from the one legal question at issue—whether the Federal Government can sue a State without its consent.

Solicitor General Philip B. Perlman, arguing that the Government be permitted to sue both Texas and Louisiana, said Texas has been engaging in "unfair propaganda" whi h has confused the public over the issues in the long-drawn-out battle. He made the lobbying charge.

Texas' peppery Attorney General Price Daniel retorted that what Texas has been doing in the halls of Congress was no different from what the Federal Government has been up to.

Texan Interrupted

Then, with a request that Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson stop him if his remarks were out of order, Daniel said:

"If this court would leave this to Congress, there are compromises pending—"

Vinson did interrupt but Daniel got over the further point that the Government has been trying to get Congress to pass a bill to give some Federal agency power to handle the tidelands.

Congress, however, has refused to do this while, on the other hand, it has failed in efforts to turn the tidelands over to the states. The last Congress voted to do so but failed to override President Truman's veto of the bill.

In Reply to Decision

It was amid this legislative deadlock and on the strength of a 1947 Supreme Court decision giving the Federal Government "paramount" interests in California's tidelands, that the present case was brought to court.

Daniel did not explain what compromises he had in mind, but he said 31 Senators have introduced bills to give the tidelands to the states.

To the Texas argument that the Supreme Court should wait on Congress, Vinson leaned over the bench to say:

"We do what we think proper under the law. We can't anticipate another branch of Government."

Texas Trial Asked

Daniel also asked that, if the court decided it does have jurisdiction in the case, it order the issue to trial in Federal court in Texas.

Perlman said this would cause "great delay" and that the case would not reach the high court "for years." During that time, he said, the states would be lobbying on Capitol Hill.

Louisiana, represented by Washington attorney F. Trowbridge vom Baur and I. H. Perez of New Orleans, contended that the State could not be sued without its consent and that it had not consented.

The attorneys delved into the Constitutional Convention of 1787 to show the founding fathers never intended to let the Government sue a State without its consent.

Daniel said that Texas was taking "a free ride" on this point, just in case the court should accept it, but he did not argue it.

Ban on Word Asked

Senate Group Hears Plea By Leper

By the United Press

A leper stood before a congressional committee yesterday and urged that the Federal Government stop treating those with his malady as outcasts and that it ban the use of the word "leper."

It was a far cry from days when lepers were shunned as "unclean."

There wasn't a murmur as the witness, who used the assumed name "Nick Farrell," told members of the Senate Labor Subcommittee that victims of the disease are treated unfairly because of public misunderstanding.

"Farrell," who came to this country as a boyhood immigrant, has an arrested case of leprosy. He was formerly a patient at the National Leprosarium at Carville, La.

He said less than half the lepers at Carville are bedridden, and most of them live fairly active lives. He indorsed a bill which would authorize care of lepers at other Federal hospitals under certain conditions.

Senator Claude Pepper (D., Fla.) urged approval of the bill which would call the affliction "Hanson's Disease." He said the word leper should be removed from the dictionary because of its "unjustified and shameful stigma which hurts its victims and efforts to control and wipe the disease out.

The subcommittee also heard several witnesses indorse legislation to promote research on arthritis and rheumatism.

Study Urged For Voiding Tax Confusion

Governors of three States urged Congress yesterday to set up a commission to study intergovernment relations, with emphasis on overlapping taxes and administrative functions.

The need for such a survey is "imperative" to determine which level of government — Federal, State or local—can most advantageously perform necessary services, they said.

Governors Lane of Maryland, Knous of Colorado and Driscoll of New Jersey—testified before a joint subcommittee of the House and Senate Executive Expenditures Committee.

Earlier, Senator O'Conor (D., Md.), author of a bill to establish such a commission, told the subcommittee the system of Federal taxation "now spreads over the land like a giant octopus, absorbing practically every important source of tax revenue.

"Many competent students of government can see in the present fiscal outlook nothing but danger to the national economy," O'Conor added.

Knous asserted that so far, for the most part, there have been from governing bodies only "pious and general statements of policy" regarding the elimination of conflicts and depulications in government.

"Until we can get a commission set up to make specific recommendations very little can be done," he said.

"Continued usurpation" by the Federal Government of tax sources formerly held by States and localities, Driscoll said, has dried up revenues and increased the dependency of the subordinate units on the Federal Government.

"We have, therefore, a vicious circle in which requests for assistance compel the Federal Government to maintain abnormally high taxes when the solution of the problem is to be found in the reduction of Federal spending and the restoration to the States and their political subdivisions the capacity to finance Government services at the local level where the benefit is received," he said.

High Court Orders Immigration Hearing

The Supreme Court yesterday handed down only one decision in an unusually brief decision day.

The Court, by 6-to-3, ordered immigration officials to give May Johnson, a 33-year-old Swedish immigrant, another hearing to decide if she should be barred from this country as a "mental defective." She is now being held for deportation.

The court also said, in effect, that some lower court may have the power to act in the case of an American civilian sentenced by an American military court in Tokyo.

The court denied Arthur Curtis Antrim Bush's request for a hearing and said it did so "without prejudice" to his right "to apply to any appropriate court that may have jurisdiction."

The court also denied a hearing to an employer who claimed a union used force and violence "under cover of the National Labor Act" in an attempt to drive him out of business at Harrodsburg, Ky.

Fred P. Weissman, a manufacturer of women's coats, appealed from a National Labor Relations Board order to cease asserted unfair labor practices against the AFL International Ladies' Garment Workers Union. The NLRB said it found evidence of such conduct related only to plants Weissman operated previously in Cincinnati and Lawrenceburg, Ind.

'49ers Wagon 'Launched' in Bond Drive

Miss Drucie Snyder, daughter of the Secretary of the Treasury, yesterday "launched" a 140-year-old covered wagon representing 30 similar vehicles which will take part in the "Opportunity Savings Bond Drive," beginning Monday.

Miss Snyder whacked a bottle of water from Sutter's mill race, Calif., where gold was discovered in 1849, against a wheel at ceremonies on the 15th st. side of the Treasury Building. The wagon carried the words "Be a Modern '49er, Buy U. S. Savings Bonds" and was loaned by Franklin and Marshall College, Lancaster, Pa.

The 30 wagons will be hauled to 700 cities on trailers donated by the Fruehauf Trailer Co. and driven by costumed International Harvester Co. employes.

Next week the wagons will be in Independence, Mo., where President Truman will launch the drive for $1,040,000,000 in series E bonds. The District quota is $11,980,000.

Because freedom and opportunity are the campaign's objectives, the covered wagons, used by the '49ers in their search for opportunity, were chosen as emblems for the drive, Secretary Snyder said.

9 Jailed in London For May Day Disorder

London, May 9 (AP).—Nine men who chained themselves to a railing in front of the U. S. Embassy in a May Day demonstration were sentenced today to six weeks in jail.

The men were charged with using insulting language and causing a "breach of the peace." Police testified they shouted such slogans as "No British blood for Yankee dollars" and "Bloody American warmongers."

Contest Winner Denies Use of Mails to Defraud

Philadelphia, May 9 (AP).—ohn Lengyel, 29-year-old former Pottstown, Pa., postal clerk, today pleaded guilty to a charge of using the mails to defraud.

Lengyel was winer of numerous sports score predicting contests.

Postal inspectors told Federal Judge James P. McGranery that Lengyel postmarked envelopes in advance, waited until the games were over, wrote in the correct scores and mailed his entries.

He won two contests

Caged Lion Kills Girl While Parents Watch

Nelspruit, South Africa, May 9 (AP).—While her parents watched helplessly an 11-year-old girl was mauled to death by a caged lion yesterday.

Young Marie Vandermerwe and a playmate went to watch the lions while Marie's parents had tea at a table nearby.

The captive lion lunged at them. He caught Marie by the waist and pulled her through the bars into the cage. As onlookers watched, the lion's mate played with the child's body as it would a toy.

The body was recovered only after the lion and his mate had been shot.

Advisers Ask Truman to Hold Spending Down

By Sterling F. Green
Associated Press Staff Writer

President Truman's Council of Economic Advisers favors a checkrein on Federal spending to bring the budget closer to a balance, responsible officials said yesterday.

As for tax increases, the council is reported to have suggested it might be well to accept a "lesser goal" than the four billion dollars for which the President has been asking.

The April report of the council, drafted in the light of current business trends, was delivered to the White House last week. It suggested the removal or lowering of some Federal excise taxes, it was learned.

Such levies as the tax on transportation of goods, in the council's opinion, add to business costs and consumer prices and impede an orderly withdrawal from the postwar business boom.

The council did not recommend at this time the launching of an expanded works program, an authoritative source disclosed. The advisers have consistently urged that Federal and local governments prepare "shelves" of public work blueprints for use when needed to bolster employment and public purchasing power.

But the present trend of the economy—which Council Chairman Edwin G. Nourse calls a "healthy disinflation"—does not warrant large-scale works spending now, the council feels. Such outlays would make it harder to reach the goal of lower Government costs.

The three-member council—Dr. Nourse, Vice Chairman Lean Kyserling, and Dr. John D. Clark—was reported to be in substantial agreement on the April report.

While there may have been some conflict of views, it was indicated, there was no such outright split as occurred early in the year when Kyserling and Clark outvoted Nourse in advocating the passage of standby anti-inflation controls.

After a White House visit last Tuesday, Nourse informed newsmen that the council expects "some further easing of living costs." He said prices are continuing downward "but not on a demoralizing basis," and that there is no need to "dig into the storm cellars."

He did not divulge the council's advice to Mr. Truman. As now reported, that advice was:

It would be unwise to plunge into red-ink financing. But an effort to avoid it by sharply raising taxes might hinder the attempts of business firms to adjust their prices to the weaker market and keep their plants running at high capacity. The safer course would be to trim Federal spending.

On the tax question, the council reportedly suggested that study be given these policies:

1. Reducing those wartime excise taxes which basically affect business operations and which produce only a comparatively small amount of revenue. The 3 per cent levy on air, land and water freight, for instance, pyramids costs because it applies anew at each step from the mine or mill to the consumer.

2. Delaying the date of the proposed increase in the Social Security payroll tax from July 1—as proposed by Administration leaders—to the presently scheduled date, next January 1. The levy, shared by workers and employers, bites directly into pay checks and heightens business costs.

3. Accepting a "lesser goal" than the four-billion-dollar tax increase which Mr. Truman asked in January. Some officials hold that such a tax increase now might eat up private capital needed for industrial expansion, or cause business to retrench so severely that the "healthy disinflation" might skid into a serious recession.

No major part of the economy is now in serious trouble, the council is understood to believe; but hazards exist which will bear watching—including the possibility of a heavy "fourth round" wage increase and large crop surpluses.

Bailey Quiz Likened To Russian Trials

MRS. JULIET S. POYNTZ

A former Federal judge charged yesterday in District Court that "Soviet trial" tactics have been used in the Government's employe loyalty hearings.

The accusation was made by Thurman Arnold, former judge of the United States Court of Appeals and now attorney for Miss Mildred Bailey, 4936 Butterworth pl. nw. She is an official of the United Public Workers Union (CIO).

Miss Bailey was relieved October 29 of her $8000-a-year training specialist position with the United States Employment Service after she was charged with disloyalty and quizzed about possible Communist affiliation. She has sued for injunction.

Yesterday's action for a preliminary injunction pending a court hearing on the merits was taken under advisement by Judge F. Dickinson Letts.

Arnold called Loyalty Review Board proceedings a "travesty" unprecedented in Anglo-Saxon law. He said the Government was using "secret evidence obtained by secret police in secret trials." He said it was the same procedure used in Soviet state trials.

H. Graham Morison, Assistant Attorney General, replied that an injunction would "cast a cloud" on the entire loyalty program of the President. The court would, Morison said, be assuming part of the responsibility of the program.

Court interference, Morison contended, might cause numerous discharged or resigned employes to bring court suits.

The court record contains an affidavit of Seth W. Richardson, chairman of the Loyalty Review Board, stating the loyalty program is an "urgent and critical necessity" in view of world conditions.

"If necessary, the Government may conclude that any suspicion of disloyalty, whatever, however slight or remote, would warrant denial of a person's application for employment or reinstatement without a hearing."

Spy Witness Subpenaed by Government

NYHT News Service

Plans by the House Committee on Un-American Activities to feature a new "inside witness at Communist espionage hearings starting May 24 suffered a jolt late yesterday when the Department of Justice stepped in with a grand jury subpena for the star witness.

The witness, Paul Crouch, Miami, Fla., 45-year-old self-acknowledged former Communist agent, had testified in secret before the committee last Friday. He then had been subpenaed to return for hearings scheduled to run from May 24 to May 27. He was expected at that time to contradict denials by some of the committee's atomic espionage suspects that they are Communists.

Notice that the Department of Justice was tagging Crouch as a witness, probably for the New York spy grand jury, thus supposedly silencing him as a committee witness, was given to the House group late yesterday.

The department's action brought into question an arrangement made with the committee early in the present session under which the committee agreed to refrain from calling any witness under Federal subpoena. Whether the agreement contemplated such a development as today's, when the Department of Justice suddenly subpoenaed a witness in whom it had not previously shown an interest, was not clear.

Chairman Wood and other committee members denied a published report that Crouch had told them in executive session that Juliet Stuart Poyntz, one-time important American Communist who disappeared mysteriously in the spring of 1937, had been killed and thrown into the East River in New York.

Chicago U. Faces New Red Inquiry

Springfield, Ill., May 9 (AP).—An Illinois legislative commission voted today to reopen its inquiry into alleged subversive activities at the University of Chicago.

Senator Paul Broyles (R., Mt. Vernon), chairman of the Seditious Activities Commission, said seven University of Chicago professors will be subpenaed to appear at a hearing in Springfield Monday.

Broyles said the faculty members will be asked to explain "discrepancies" in affadavits denying membership in organizations described by a witness at an April commission hearing as "Communist-fronts."

Broyles said the commission was "not quite satisfied" with the sworn statements replying to allegations made by Howard Rushmore, a New York Journal American reporter specializing in stories on communism.

Reds Wanted Revolution

New York, May 9 (AP).—A Toledo, Ohio, FBI undercover operative went on the witness stand today in the conspiracy trial of 11 Communist Party leaders—the sixth secret Government informant in the party to testify. He said that in 1945 two party officials believed there would be a U. S. revolution soon.

The witness, William Cummings, a Negro who joined the party in 1943, said he was vice chairman of the organization in Lucas County, Ohio, at the moment he unmasked his real role by appearing as a witness.

He said Ohio Communist leaders told a Toledo party meeting in 1945 that "world conditions" would bring the revolution to this country much earlier than they had expected.

Court Orders Sanity Test for Alleged Traitor

Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut yesterday ordered that a mental examination be given Herbert John Burgman, who is awaiting trial for treason allegedly committed for the Nazis during the last war.

The District Court jurist ordered the investigation made after the Government said that Burgman's history showed medical treatment for a nervous condition dating back to before the crime was committed.

Burgman, 52-year-old native of Hokah, Minn., was accused in an indictment of making treasonable broadcasts from a station called D-E-R-U-N-K in Germany.

Maryland Jurist Calls Red Agents Lawless 'Vipers'

Hagerstown, Md., May 9 (AP).—"Maryland has challenged communism as subversion within its borders," the Washington County grand jury was told today, "and those charged with preserving the blessings of liberty must act with firmness."

Associate Judge Oliver H. Bruce, jr., of Cumberland, made the statements at the opening of the May term of court.

He called on the new grand jury to see that people of the area are not "deluded by vipers"—persons "in the garb of men who know no law and who care for no law and who care for no order, emissaries of the Soviet government."

But "in seeking to determine whether or not there is any subversion and violation of the Ober Act, there must not be any so-called Gestapo methods or so-called witch hunting. You must act in an orderly fashion," the jurist declared.

Physicist, Lawyer Selected For Atomic Energy Posts

Associated Press WIREPHOTOS
Gordon Dean Henry DeWolf Smyth John C. Franklin

President Truman yesterday appointed Dean, former Justice Department official and Smyth, chairman of the department of physics at Princeton, to the Atomic Energy Commission. Meanwhile, Franklin resigned as manager of the AEC's division at Oak Ridge, Tenn.

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday named a top authority on atomic fission and a former Nazi war crimes prosecutor to fill two vacancies on the Atomic Energy Commission.

Nominated to the critically important posts were:

Henry DeWolf Smyth, author of the famed "Smyth Report" on the atomic bomb and chairman of the physics department at Princeton University.

Gordon Dean, former Justice Department attorney, now professor of law at the University of California, Dean assisted Supreme Court Justice Robert H. Jackson in prosecuting Nazi war criminals.

Five-Man Status Restored

Subject to Senate confirmation, the appointments will restore the commission to its full five-man membership for the first time since W. W. Waymack returned to private life last December.

The President meanwhile accepted the resignation of Dr. Robert F. Bacher, another member of the original commission. Bacher told Mr. Truman he has waited for eight years to return to his "normal work."

Chairman Brien McMahon (D., Conn.), chairman of the Joint Atomic Energy Committee and a former law partner of Dean, said he will open hearings on the nominations Thursday morning. Both nominees will appear.

"I feel certain they not only can, but will, carry the share of one of the biggest jobs in Government," McMahon told newsmen.

Three "Originals" Remain

If confirmed, Smyth and Dean will serve with three members of the original commission—Chairman David E. Lilienthal, Sumner T. Pike and Lewis L. Strauss.

The 51-year-old Smyth participated in the early development work on the bomb and later, at the request of Maj. Gen. Leslie R. Groves, head of the Manhattan project, prepared his famous report, "Atomic Energy for Military Purposes."

The so-called "Smyth Report," released shortly after the first atomic bomb was dropped on Japan, was widely hailed as one of the most important books published in our time.

Called Security Breach

But a controversy developed around Smyth's nuclear disclosures. Early in 1947, Chairman Lilienthal, with whom Smyth will serve on the commission, testifying before a Senate committee, termed it "a serious breach of national security."

Smyth's answer to such criticism: "The biggest breach of security and secrecy occurred when the armed forces exploded the atomic bomb over Hiroshima."

Later the same year Lilienthal warmly praised Smyth's work as "an example of the release of information that is in our own interest; without which not only would our own technical progress have been hampered, but the formulation of intelligent public policies rendered well-nigh impossible."

Last October Smyth became a member of a committee set up by the Federation of American Scientists to advise scientists under Government investigation. Smyth said the purpose was to see that accused scientists got fair treatment.

The 43-year-old Dean, who succeeds Waymack, served as a Justice Department attorney from 1934 until 1940. He was one of the experts who drafted the Federal criminal laws for the Seventy-third Congress. Later he defended the Lindbergh Kidnaping Act before the Supreme Court, which upheld it.

Nine years ago Dean joined the law firm of McMahon, Dean & Gallagher and practiced law until 1945.

Dr. Bacher's resignation, creating the second vacancy as of tomorrow and clearing the way for Smyth's appointment, was disclosed in an exchange of letters between the President and the nuclear physicist.

Bacher Given Praise

Mr. Truman praised Bacher for "many and invaluable contributions to national security" and said:

"In the light of the circumstances which impel your letter of April 15, I have no recourse but to accept your resignation. The public service will be poorer because of your decision to leave it."

Resignation of John C. Franklin as manager of the commission's Oak Ridge (Tenn.) operations meanwhile was announced by Carroll L. Wilson, commission general manager.

Franklin will return to private business when his resignation takes effect next month.

Wilson praised Franklin's "large part in the advances of the program during the past two years" and said the commission accepted his resignation with "great regret."

Two FBI Girls Trailed Judy In New York Night of Arrest

The Judith Coplon espionage trial, moving into the third week, reached a point yesterday where the prosecution began unfolding the story of how the defendant and Valentin A. Gubitchev, 32-year-old Russian, were arrested on the night of March 4.

It developed that the Federal Bureau of Investigation used two girls to help in the surveillance of Miss Coplon.

Miss Catherine T. Condon, attractive 26-year-old blonde stenographer for the FBI in New York, told in District Court how she helped trail Miss Coplon on the fateful March afternoon.

Saw Her in Station

She testified that she first saw Miss Coplon in the Pennsylvania Station, following the arrival of the Washington train. For the next 35 minutes, she said, she kept the one-time Department of Justice analyst in view as she walked from the station, stopped in Weitzman's restaurant, and then walked to the Eighth Avenue subway to board a Washington Heights train.

Archibald Palmer, Miss Coplon's counsel, brought out in cross examination that Miss Condon had walked along with FBI Agent Brewer Wilson. He protested because the prosecution hadn't made this clear.

The Government's lawyer—Raymond P. Whearty and John M. Kelley, jr., special assistants to the Attorney General—pointed out that Miss Condon had said that she saw FBI agents on the surveillance job.

"This hocus-pocus won't do," said Kelley.

Defense Attorney Palmer appealed to Judge Albert L. Reeves to tell Kelley not to use such language.

"You've noticed how agreeable I've been the last two days," said Palmer. "Why doesn't he take a page out of my book?"

Halted Sudveillance

Miss Condon, wearing a blue suit and a red flowered hat, testified that she broke off her surveillance of Miss Coplon when the defendant boarded a subway train. Apparently, she wasn't expected to stalk her any further.

Miss Sappho Manos, another FBI girl assigned to the surveillance task, testified last week that she broke off when Miss Coplon asked her and her escort how to get to Broadway.

FBI Agent Wilson, who followed Miss Condon to the witness box yesterday related how he followed Miss Coplon on March 4 and saw her come "face to face" with Gubitchev on Broadway.

"Bubitchev turned toward her and stopped," he said.

"What did you next observe?" Whearty asked.

"Miss Coplon did not stop but continued walking north, on the west side of Broadway," Agent Wilson said.

Gubitchev Catches Up

He said that Gubitchev watched for a while, and then, moving at a fast pace, caught up with Miss Coplon. He said the Russian "took five or six steps alongside of her."

Agent Brewer told, finally, how he saw Miss Coplon and Gubitchev on Third Avenue between Fifteenth and Sixteenth streets. They had been arrested. Miss Coplon was already in an FBI car and Gubitchev was being held on the street. It was 9:40 o'clock on the night of March 4.

Judge Reeves wanted to know more about the neighborhood.

"That's an extension of the Bowery," volunteered Attorney Palmer. "Perhaps Your Honor will remember the song, 'The Bowery, the Bowery, I'll never go there any more.'"

The arrest had just been touched when the trial was adjourned to 10 o'clock this morning. The prosecution expects to call a number of witnesses to elaborate on the trailing of Miss Coplon and Gubitchev on that afternoon and night, and to testify to the papers found in Miss Coplon's handbag—papers which it says will show that she was taking documents from Department of Justice files to aid Russia.

Earlier yesterday Attorney Palmer suggested that the jury be taken to New York City to look over the scenes where Miss Coplin had her meeting with Gubitchev.

Judge Reeves took the suggestion under advisement, but indicated that he was not favorable.

Patterson Appeals For Atlantic Pact

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Former Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson yesterday called upon the Senate to ratify the North Atlantic Treaty as the "first stepping stone" towards the ultimate "federation of free countries."

Speaking "as a vice president of the Atlantic Union Committee and as a citizen," Patterson declared that a "united front against conquest out of Miscow" will "reduce the chances of war."

"How are we to prevent war? How are we to preserve the peace?" Patterson asked the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

"Not by appeasement, which is synonymous with surrender when we are dealing with dictators.

"Not by shutting our eyes to the fact that the world is faced with an ambitious and power-hungry dictatorship that has never had any moral scruples against launching a war, a dictatorship whose guilt in starting World War II in 1939 was second only to that of Hitler, a dictatorship that has respect for nothing but physical force. I refer to the Ribbentrop-Molotov treaty," he added.

"To follow those counsels of timidity is to take the straight road to war. Those policies led us unwillingly to war eight years ago, and they will lead us there again."

The former Army head then declared, slowly and emphatically: "Moscow pays strict attention to physical power." The combined strength of the "free nations" that have signed the Atlantic Pact, he said, "is far in excess of any that Moscow could muster." This strength he listed as:

1. Manpower at least equal.
2. Steel-making capacity 10 times greater.
3. Petroleum production six times greater.

"4. A lead in science and invention and industrial skill that cannot be measured in tons or cubic feet."

"I say nothing as to the tremendous asset of freedom, for however priceless we feel it to be it is not an asset in the eyes of Moscow," he added.

Just before Patterson took the stand, the committee's hearing was interrupted by two events:

1. In less than two minutes the group voted unanimously to approve the nomination of David K. E. Bruce of Maryland to be Ambassador to France, and a short time later the Senate confirmed the appointment. Bruce will succeed Jefferson Caffery.

Committee Chairman Connally (D., Tex.) noted to the Senate there is to be a meeting in Paris this month of the Big Four foreign ministers to discuss the German problem.

"It is highly important he be confirmed," Connally said, "so he can take part in the preliminary discussions."

2. Senator Watkins (R., Utah) angrily withdrew from the committee room, charging he had been "lectured and humiliated long enough" by Connally.

"tired of being humiliated."

Watkins and Senator Donnell (R., Mo.) have attended all open hearings on the Atlantic Treaty, although not members of the committee. They also had been granted permission to question witnesses. Their questioning has provided the only opposition to the pact in the hearings.

Watkins and Connally have tangled several times. Yesterday, while Watkins was questioning Mrs. Kathryn H. Stone of the League of Women Voters, a witness for the pact, Connally objected.

He complained that Watkins "spends his time explaining his own attitude." Watkins angrily declared he would "decline to question any more witnesses." A few minutes later he left the hearing room, declaring:

"I'm sick and tird of it. I don't intend to be embarrassed and humiliated by Connally any longer. I'm through with any further questions in committee. Those I have to ask from now on will be on the Senate floor."

Later Watkins said he will continue to attend the committee hearings, in which he and Donnell requested permission to take part.

Donnell remained, and questioned all subsequent witnesses, including Patterson. He declared he would not withdraw, and would continue to ask questions.

Both visiting Senators have clashed with Connally almost daily since the hearings began. At times they clashed with witnesses, particularly former Senator Warren R. Austin, American representative to the United Nations.

When told of Watkins' remarks, Connally declared "Those two have used up two-thirds of the time of the hearings with their questions." In spite of this, he said, the committee has "endeavored to be courteous and considerate" and the two have "received all the privileges of committee members."

Mrs. Stone told the committee her league had "reluctantly" indorsed the Atlantic Pact "as necessary to help keep the peace until the United Nations is able to do so."

"We live in unsatisfactory times and must make unsatisfactory choices," she quoted her group as deciding. She also indorsed the European Recovery Plan, Reciprocal Trade Agreements and the International Trade Organization.

Similar indorsement of the pact was delivered by Mrs. Frederic Beggs, for the General Federation of Women's Clubs. The federation, she said, voted such action at its convention last month at Hollywood, Fla.

Romanians Here Set Up Committee

Formation of the Romanian National Committee in the United States, under leadership of former Prime Minister Nicolae Radescu, was announced here yesterday.

The group consists of ten members representing the three main Romanian democratic parties, the National Peasant, Liberal and Independent Socialist parties.

A proclamation issued yesterday said the committee "undertakes to fight for the independence of Romania and to restore the human rights aid fundamental freedoms destroyed by the Bucharest puppet government at the direction of Moscow." It expressed "the Romanian nation's devotion" to King Michael and made public a message to the Romanian people approving formation of the committee.

Besides General Radescu, the committee includes Cornel Biau, former member of Parliament; Niculae Caranfil, former Minister of Aviation; Alexandru Cretzianu, former Romanian minister in Ankara; Mihail Farcasabu, president of the Romanian Liberal Youth Organization; Grigore Gafencu, former Foreign Minister; Grigore Niculescu-Buzesti, former Foreign Minister; Augustin Popa, former member of Parliament; Constantin Visoianu, former Foreign Minister, and Iancu Zissu, member of Independent Socialist party.

vantage of surprise, and could fight their way back to the beach, where heavy weapons and larger forces could be then landed by normal means for their support. The risks of the critical early hours of an invasion thus would be lessened.

Six CVEs—the Navy has 60 of them in "moth-balls"—carrying 200 of the "flying bananas" or "sagging sausages," as the Marines call the Piasecki helicopters—could put a Marine regimental combat team on the beach.

The present "bananas"—nicknamed for their shape—can carry seven combat troops besides the crew. A larger craft, capable of carrying 35 Marines, is under development by Piasecki, while the Sikorsky division of United Aircraft, also is working with bigger helicopters.

Marine chiefs would like a craft that could carry a squad of 13 men. The size of the elevators aboard carriers, however, is a limiting factor. Marine airmen also want helicopters with quick-folding wings for instant launching after being brought up from the hanger deck of aircraft carriers.

In today's demonstrations, the craft came in at 50 feet, covered by ground-strafing and smoke-laying Marine jet fighters. The assault Marines were out and fighting in a matter of seconds. Later waves, brought in 75 millimeter pack howitzers and supplies and took off wounded men.

On later runs, the "bananas" brought in an aviator air controller and laid wire between his advance position and the howitzers. The Congressmen then were given an effective demonstration of close coordination between air and ground.

Marine officers stressed the importance of such intimate cooperation of "specialists working as a team" to the Congressmen, as the fliers poured bombs, 5-inch HV rockets, napalm and Tiny Tims on the target within 100 yards of the front line of their own troops. A realistic demonstration of an assault on an enemy position followed, bringing applause from the guests.

Mt. Rainier Head Pledges New War Against Gambling

Mayor Herbert W. Reichelt of Mt. Rainier, Md., after taking his oath of office last night, promised to take the town's police department "out of politics" and to wage a war on gambling.

"Known gambling will no longer be tolerated," said Reichelt, an attorney, who was administered the oath of office in the Mt. Rainier City Hall by Waverly W. Webb, clerk of the Prince George County Circuit Court.

Councilmen, also sworn in, were Fred J. Richardson, First Ward; Warren W. James, Second Ward, and Gurney F. Thompson, Fourth Ward.

Reichelt proposed a fifth war be created to represent residents of the Kaywood, Queen's Manor and Queenstown apartment areas. He promised to work with the County Commissioners for a new elementary school.

A parade from Kaywood shopping center at 7:30 p. m. to city hall preceeded swearing-in ceremonies.

Along Our Street

with Aunt Penny

There was a big crowd at the market this morning. On top of that, two of the regular checking girls were at home, ill.

When the manager saw how many people were standing in line waiting, he asked the girls who were packing groceries to take over as cashiers at the two vacant counters. That way, a lot more people were taken care of, sooner.

It reminded me of something Cy Stubbs (one of the local telephone men) was saying the other day about the importance of sharing our telephone party lines.

He said that in spite of all the headway being made on the job of expanding the local telephone system, a lot of folks are still waiting for telephones. And party lines mean more service for more people, sooner. The Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Company.

Secret Agreement Revealed On Italy's Colony Question

Lake Success, May 9 (NYHT).—An agreement was reached secretly in London last week between the Italian and British foreign ministers for solving the Italian colonies question, it was revealed here today.

Delegates immediately launched into a study of the formula with hopes it might break the deadlock in the Political Committee of the United Nations, which has been discussing disposition of Italy's former North African holdings for five fruitless weeks.

Count Carlo Sforza and Ernest Bevin, Italy's and Britain's foreign ministers, agreed on this formula, United Kingdom sources said:

British trusteeship over Cyrenaica; continued British administration of Tripolitania until the end of 1951 with the assistance of an advisory council including the United Kingdom, United States, France, Italy, Egypt and a representative of the local populations; Italian trusteeship for Tripolitania effective in 1952, and a French trusteeship for Fezzan.

Other provisions would cede Eritrea to Ethiopia except for the western province, which would be incorporated in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan. The cities of Asmara and Masawa would be given a special status, possibly internationalization. Somaliland would go under an Italian trusteeship.

Mechanic Charged With Stabbing Woman With Pick

A 36-year-old mechanic last night was charged with stabbing a woman with an ice pick two and one half hours after he had been released on bond to appear in Municipal Court to answer charges of beating her.

Police arrested Avis C. Summers, at 10 p. m. in his apartment, 1438 Fairmont st. nw., after Miss Audra Foote, 42, a cashier at the Leader Theater, 507 3th st. ne., told them Summers stabbed her in the right breast about 7 p. m. during an argument. She was admitted to Garfield Hospital.

Pvt. A. M. Shutts of the Tenth Precinct, who made the arrest, said Summers was arrested earlier yesterday on a warrant sworn by Miss Foote charging that he had beaten her Saturday night. He was released at 4:30 p. m. on $300 bond and to appear in Municipal Court today. He is now being held on charges of assault with a dangerous weapon.

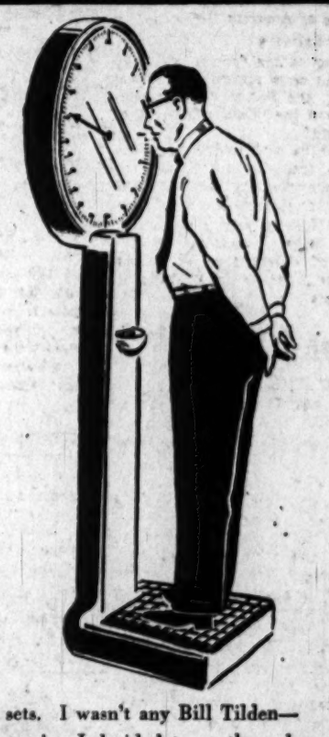
Savings Account becomes CHAMPION WEIGHTLIFTER!



There it was—the scale rudely pointed an accusing finger! I had gained 9 pounds. "Exercise," I mumbled, "a few sets of tennis and I'll be down to my proper weight."

So I played, or stumbled, through three sets. I wasn't any Bill Tilden—but I enjoyed the workout. The next morning I decided to go through an Oh-What-a-Beautiful-Morning routine, leap out of bed and greet the new day with open arms. I started to rise. Then it happened—I could scarcely move. Every muscle I knew, and some I'd never met, ached. I plopped back on my pillow and groaned, "If I'm in this shape at 34, what will I do when I'm 65? I won't be able to earn a living"

That's when it dawned on me that there was one worry I didn't have. My Columbia Federal Savings Account would help take care of me.

Bigger 'Voice' Plea Cites Red Jamming

To 100,000 Watts

U. S. to Make Radio 'Voice' Stronger

Berlin, May 9 (AP).—America's radio voice in Berlin will step up its power five times over in an attempt to smash through Soviet jamming of the Voice of America, it was learned today.

Official American sources said Station RIAS, controlled by the American Military Government, will be increased from 20,000 watts volume to 100,000 watts by June 15.

Informants said DIAS with its new power will have a 500-mile range, bringing in such Soviet-controll ed points as Lithuania, Poland, Czechoslovakia and Romania.

"Depending on broadcasts," an American radio technician said, "If they jam us they will knock out most of their own local stations at the same time."

The United States and Britain have opened a counter-offensive against what the British Broadcasting Corp. called "very powerful jamming stations."

The BBC beamed 21 new stationse at the Soviet Union and the United States added 36 more in an effort to break through the interference.

Russia's "tremendous" efforts to jam Voice of America broadcasts beamed to her people is the best argument for expanding the broadcasts ,a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee was told yesterday.

"I can't think of anything that would be a better indication of whether we are doing any good than what Russia has been doing on this jamming effort," declared George V. Allen, Assistant Secretary of State for Public Affairs.

On Sunday it was disclosed that Russia was employing an estimated 100 "jamming stations" in an attempt to blot out a peak total of 61 American and British transmitters broadcasting Russian-language news to the Soviet.

"If they didn't care what we said," declared Allen, "they wouldn't be devoting themselves to this tremendous effort."

Allen and other State Department officials urged the Senate subcommittee, headed by Senator Pat McCarran (D., Nev.) to restore a two-million-dollar cut made by a House subcommittee in the 36 million dollars sought this year for carrying on the Voice of America, foreign student exchange and other affairs of the International Information and Educational Activities program.

Charles Thayer, director of international broadcasting for the State Department, said that in many cases within 12 seconds after Voice of America programs go on the air to Russia, Soviet jammers try to obliterate them.

"Certain improved devices" are being used to counter this, said Thayer, "which I'd prefer not to discuss in public."

While the State Department requests appeareed to receive some sympathy from a few Senators, the department was strongly condemned on many scores:

1. Senate Republican Leader Kenneth S. Wherry (Nebr.) demanded to know, "Who's responsible for ostracizing Spain in our State Department?" and "What's America going to do now?" about its future policy to Spain.

Senator Wherry noted that last week the United Nations' political committee, by a vote of 25 to 16, with the United States and 15 other nations abstaining, passed a resolution which would permit U. N. members to resume full diplomatic relations with Franco Spain.

When Secretary of State Acheson next appears before the subcommittee, said Senator Wherry, he will call for an answer to his questions.

2. Senator Kenneth McKellar (D., Tenn.), after demanding to know, "Is it necessary to advertise United States policies?" through the Voice of America, asked for the reasoning behind the 8½-million-dollar educational exchange with other countries.

He described the latter program as "claptrap," saying he would introduce a bill to repeal it. Allen later pointed out that it does not include aid to pupils in Russia or her satellite countries.

Senator McKeller said later he believed from the evidence submitted that the whole State Department program should be cut two million dollars instead of raised two million dollars.

3. Senator McCarran, whose plan for $1,500,000,000 in new aid for Nationalist China is vigorously opposed by Secretary Acheson, declared:

"I'd like to know . . . why we will appropriate millions and millions of dollars to go on with this program . . . and yet we won't make even a mere gesture to stopping the greatest (Communist) onslaught in the world—in China."

Mikolajczyk Asks 'Crusade' Against Reds

Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, former Polish premier, declared here last night there can "be no lasting peace while the world is divided into Communist and democratic parts."

Warning that the lifting of the Berlin blockade will not solve any decisive issues, the refugee president of the International Peasants Union said:

Calls for 'Moral Crusade'

"The ultimate goal should be destruction of communism everywhere, as it is a doctrine contrary to the spirit of real liberty—a doctrine which violates innate human rights and is antagonistic to Christian teachings of love and social solidarity."

Mikolajczyk spoke in Gaston Hall, under auspices of Polish Club of the Georgetown School of Foreign Service. He called for a "moral crusade against the bloody terror . . . to sustain the spirit and hopes of those now forced to remain silent and merely listen to the Voice of America."

Points to Failures

Pointing to the failure of Communists to seize control in France and Italy, the Polish refugee said he believed the "Communist wave is receding."

He said he and fellow refugees from the Iron Curtain speak out not to provoke war but because "systematic enlightenment of the public of free nations about communism is as necessary as expansion of alliances so as not to tempt the Kremlin to attack still weak spots."

West Europe Is Past Crisis, Harriman Says

Geneva, Switzerland, May 9 (AP). W. Averell Harriman today told the United Nations Economic Commission for Europe that western Europe, under the Marshal Plan, has brought the "trend toward disaster" to a halt and reversed it.

"Recovery is no longer in doubt," said Harriman, roving United States Ambassador for the European Recovery Program.

At the same time Harriman urged expanded trade between eastern and western Europe.

The commisison is composed of representatives of western and eastern Europe. Earlier today it heard a report from its executive secretary, Gunnar Myrdal, to the effect that something is wrong with the economic planning of both East and West.

Discussing the Marshall Plan, Harriman said:

"The nations which have voluntarily joined together in a cooperative recovery program will regain their economic health, and in doing so will preserve their own independence and confirm faith in liberty and democratic government wherever the truth can be known."

In his report Myrdal said the present pattern of production and trade in Europe "is definitely not conducive to the best use of European resources."

"If political discursions do not give way to more positive acts of cooperation," he added, "the economic consequences will inevitably take the form of a further division of Europe and a failure to develop those complementary trading relations which would aid the various national economies to overcome their present weaknesses and their abnormal dependence on outside support."

Israel Assured of Admission In U. N. by Committee Action

Lake Success, May 9 (NYHT).—Israel became assured today of speedily being admitted to membership in the United Nations when the Special Political Committee approved its application by a vote of 33 to 11, with 13 abstentions.

Only the Arab bloc and its strong supporters voted against admitting Israel. The margin of approval was well over the two thirds majority required when the full Assembly takes final action on the application later this week.

The new nation will become the 59th U. N. member when the Assembly takes action within a few days, but since this Assembly is scheduled to end by Saturday, it will be autumn before Israeli delegates can participate actively as members.

Annecy, France, May 9 (AP).—Israel was formally excluded today from the 1947 Geneva tariff agreement.

Representatives of the 23 contracting nations to the agreement unanimously decided that Israel is not bound by commitments made on behalf of Palestine by Britain in 1947. Thus each of the 23 nations becomes free to impose tariff increases on exports from Palestine.

Britain originally negotiated tariff reductions on behalf of her Palestine mandate, but the legal force of those concessions had remained in doubt since the mandate was liquidated a year ago.

In order to enter the agreement, Israel must negotiate bilateral tariff treaties with the original members—a procedure which could not be completed before late summer of 1950.

Danish Yachtman Hitchhikes Here for Boat Reparations

The Washington Post

SEEK DAMAGES—Capt. and Mrs. Einer Henrichsen, Danish sea captain and wife, who hitchhiked to Washington to prosecute a claim against the Government for damages to their yacht, Viking, off the coast of Florida. The Henrichsens were on their way around the world

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

Capitol Hill is about to ve visited by a seagoing Dane whose blond beard is getting white hairs from American red tape.

Capt. Einer Henrichsen and his 34-year-old lithe and tanned wife arrived in Washington yesterday after hitch-hiking from Mobile, Ala. Behind them they left their 40-foot yacht "Viking."

What's a yacht owner doing hitch-hiking?

Well, what this Dane says happened to him shouldn't have happened to Hamlet. Here it is as he tells it:

The United States was to be a few days stop on the Henrichsens' round-the-world trip when they came here July, 1948. They were bound for Mobile when a gale blew their boat, manned only by themselves, into Destin, Fla. Suddenly next day they were ordered under way by Eglin Air Force base at Destin. The captain doesn't know why—except maybe that officials didn't know international maritime law and thought he needed a visa.

He protested—it was dusk, a strange harbor and his ketch is motorless—but an Army tug took him in tow and headed Gulfway. The tug ran the Viking aground, springing her seams bow to stern.

The boat is completely ruined and cost 100,000 kronen, which is a lot of kronen—$20,000 worth.

A brief stop on a round-the-world cruise has turned into ten months of trying to collect from the American Government.

Henrichsen, a civil engineer by profession, figures he and his wife have typewritten 800 pages in the case. They used one singular technique—picked one Senator and one Representative from each State and wrote them.

Net result to date: not one kronen.

They're running out of money to live on—their home's aboard their damaged yacht at Mobile. They aren't allowed to work.

Also they've been ordered out of the country in about 90 days—hence the last-ditch trip to Washington.

As for Washington: "We look at these buildings," he said, stroking his beard, "and we think: do we have to go from one to the other and so through all of them?"

He and his wife, who are at the Prince Karl Hotel, got rides here by standing beside the road and waving the Royal Danish Yacht Club flag. If they do collect, they say, they'll continue their round-the-world tour.

"Everybody here is very hospitality," said Mrs. Henrichsen. "But we have no desire to visit this country indefinitely."

Soviet Army Termed Best By Sokolovsky

Moscow, May 9 (AP).—Marshal Vassily Sokolovsky, deputy minister of the armed forces, wrote today that only the Soviet army—an army of a new type—is able "successfully to decide all problems of modern warfare."

His article was published in Pravda on the occasion of the fourth anniversary of VE-Day.

Sokolovsky, until recently top Soviet commander in Germany, said the military science of "present imperialist armies" was like the "adventurous" German military science which failed in the past war.

"In our era," he said, "it is impossible to win a war without true scientific organization and direction of forces."

He repeated Soviet charges that "reactionary circles of Britain and the United States" in the last war pursued their own selfish purposes by postponing the opening of a second front in Europe.

Armies of the capitalistic states "shivered" and dared carry out only limited operations, while the Soviet army alone demonstrated its ability to destroy the "Hitlerite war machine," he declared.

He said capitalistic "greedy aims" were further demonstrated since the war by the "artificial tenseness being created in international relations" and by preparations for a new war.

Vandenberg May Miss Talk

"our joint conclusion that it was inadvisable for them to leave Washington at this time," but added that "should any situation arise which serves to raise an urgent need for their presence in Paris, they assured me of their readiness to respond to such a call."

Both the President and Acheson were understood to have presented the invitation to the two Senators. Both attended the 1946 meeting in Paris of the Council of Foreign Ministers, when James F. Byrnes was Secretary of State.

Jessup, who conducted the negotiations for the United States which led to the agreement with Russia to lift the Berlin blockades this Thursday and to meet in Paris on the overall problem of Germany's future, will be Acheson's chief assistant at the coming meeting.

Connally told reporters he will work for ratification of the Atlantic Pact and approval of the ECA appropriation and the arms program by July 1. Of the arms program, $1,130,000,000 is earmarked for treaty members.

He said he hoped debate on the treaty will be "well along before the Berlin talks" in Paris, and while it would be "desirable" to have it ratified by then, "I don't think it's possible."

At yesterday's meeting, he said, he and Vandenberg approved the position the United States will take on German questions at the Paris meeting, but he said discussion of that is "up to Mr. Acheson—he's the delegate." Russia is expected to propose removal of all occupation troops from Germany, which is opposed by the United States, Britain and France.

China Reds Drive Toward Rail Center

In Early Returns

Monarchists Gain Votes In Sardinia

Rome, May 9 (NYHT).—The beginning of trend of sympathy back toward the monarchy and fascism were indicated tonight in early returns from elections on the island of Sardinia.

According to early returns, monarchists made a seven-fold stronger showing in yesterday's elections than they did in the natino-wide elections of 13 months ago. But despite their gains the monarchists still apparently obtained only 1 per cent of the votes.

The Italian Social Movement, which has been accused of fascist sympathies, nearly doubled its support, according to the same returns. It also remained a minority, getting only 5 per cent of the vote.

The Christian Democratic Party (mainly Catholic) continued as the largest party but lost ground considerably.

Mrs. Gehrig will appear on behalf of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society. Multiple sclerosis is a physical disorder marked by progressive paralysis. It is frequently confused with polio. The cause is unknown.

Kenya Gets ECA Grant

London, May 9 (AP).—The Economic Cooperation Administration has approved a grant of $72,000 for the purchase in the United States of mining machinery to increase cyanide production in Kenya, East Africa, Colonial Secretary Arthur Creech-Jones said today.

Shanghai, May 9 (U.P.). — The Chinese Communists drove rapidly west along the Chekiang-Kiangsi railway today in what appeared to be a major attempt to cut off Gen. Pai Chung-hsi's 300,000 central China troops.

A Communist broadcast reported the capture of the rail town of Tunghsiang, less than 50 miles from Nanchang, key rail center and Kiangsi provincial capital. Capture of Nanchang would imperil Pai's escape route south along the Hankow-Canton railway.

Nanchang is about 400 miles southwest of Shanghai and about 100 miles below the Yangtze River.

Fighting in the immediate Shanghai area was reported to have lessened today. Persistent reports said Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek was personally directing the defense of Shanghai.

A Canton dispatch quoting high government authorities there also said the retired president was directing strategy here. Official sources refused to comment and imposed a news blackout on the generalissimo's whereabouts.

The Shanghai garrison command reported small-scale fighting around Shanghai in its communique today but said the Communists were rushing reinforcements to the Quinsan area, 30 miles to the west.

The garrison said the bulk of the Communist army operating north of Taichang, just above Quisan, was veering south toward Quinsan to join the attack on the old walled city which guards the western approaches to Shanghai.

Both sides were regrouping in the Kashing area, 70 miles southwest of Shanghai, after the Communists captured that rail town.

Poling Urges U. S. to Block Asia Red Drive

Philadelphia, May 9 (AP).—A noted churchman reported today on his return from a six-week fact-finding tour through the Orient that a vast Communist outflanking movement is being attempted in Asia.

Dr. Daniel A. Poling, Philadelphia religious leader and newspaper columnist, was sent by President Truman's Committee on Religion and Welfare in the Armed Forces.

Speaking at a breakfast, Dr. Poling said:

"Communism is promising China what General MacArthur and his administration has given Japan—land and the means of earning a living."

He said the answer to communism in the Far East can be found in the U. S. policy of "patience with strength" in Europe. He urged a broadening of that policy to cover the Orient.

Dr. Poling attributed the recent assassination of Mrs. Aurora Aragon Quezon in the Philippines to Communists.

Dr. Poling, now chaplain of the Chapel of the Four Chaplains, said he narrowly missed going along with the Quezon party on their ill-fated trip. He had had trouble rearranging his schedule.

Sale of Liquor At Hamilton Gets ABC Board Study

A charge against the Hamilton Hotel of selling liquor on credit to nonregistered guests was taken under advisement yesterday by the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board.

An ABC inspector told the board he had found four violations within 26 days in April.

Joseph McGarraghy, attorney for the Tishman Realty & Construction Co., Inc., owners of the hotel, called the four instances isolated ones, since the hotel handles hundreds of customers daily, and said that in each case the credit sale was made by a waiter without the authorization of the hotel.

The board also has under advisement similar charges against the Statler Hotel.

Record Reveals

Red Request Halted Czech Liberation

By The Associated Press

The State Department published World War II official records yesterday to show that American liberation of Czechoslovakia was halted at Russian request.

Moscow and the Czech Communist regime have sought to make political capital out of the fact that Red army troops—not forces of the Western Allies—liberated Prague. Western Allied troops were held back in western Bohemia, after having taken Pilsen from the Nazis on May 5, 1945.

The department made public exchanges of messages between Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and the Soviet high command in Moscow. They were published on the fourth anniversary of the liberation of the Czechoslovak capital, Prague.

The record showed that Eisenhower telegraphed the American military attache in Moscow on May 4 to inform the Soviet high command that the Western forces intended to "advance immediately to the line Carlsbad-Pilsen-Budweis and to capture these points."

"Thereafter, we are ready to continue our advance into Czechoslovakia to the Elbe and the Vltava (Rivers) for the purpose of clearing the west banks of these rivers in coordination with Soviet plans to clear the east banks, if the situation requires it," Eisenhower said. He was then Supreme Allied commander.

This advance against the disintegrating Nazi forces would have taken Eisenhower's troops east of Prague.

However, on May 5, 1945, the military attache forwarded a letter from Gen. Antonov, chief of the Red Army General Staff, which said:

"The Soviet command requests Gen. Eisenhower to refrain from advancing the Allied forces in Czechoslovakia beyond the formerly designated line, that is, Karlsbad-Pilsen and Budweis so that a possible confusion of forces can be avoided."

The department said "the decisions and actions of the Allied Command in this connection were purely operational without any political implications and were directed solely at the objective of destroying the enemy forces," the department said.

Pope Holds Rights Of State Limited

Rome, May 9 (U.P.).—The Catholic Church approves the idea of nationalization of property within certain limits, but the policy can be carried too far, Pope Pius XII told a group of visiting businessmen and industrialists Saturday. His talk was made public today.

"The mission of public rights is, in effect, to serve the private rights, not to absorb them," the Pope said.

"The (national) economy—any more than any other branch of human activity—is not by nature an institution of the state."

Pope Pius said also that employers and workers were not irreconcilable antagonists but collaborators in a common task, in which both profited from the national economy.

Sees Profits Shared

"They eat, so to speak, at the same table since they live, in the last resort, from the net global profit of the national economy," the Pope explained.

"Each of them draws his pay and hence their mutual relationship should not make either the servant of the other."

The Pope made his speech, an exposition of the views of the Church on the relation of public to private interest, to two groups of visitors. One group was made up of Catholic businessmen from Canada, Chile and Europe; the other of European industrialists holding a convention here.

In the elaboration of forms of public organization, the Pope said, the time came when the questions of state ownership and nationalization of enterprises arose.

"There is no doubt that the Church also—within certain just limits—admits nationalization and judges 'that one may legitimately give to the state certain categories of properties, those which represent such a power that one could not abandon them into the hands of private individuals without imperilling the common interest,'" the Pope said, quoting from the Papal encylical "Quadragesimo Anno."

(The encylical in question, on the reconstruction of the social order, was issued by Pope Pius XI on May 15, 1931, and thus the speech of Pius XII was a commentary on it in the light of events in the 18 years since it was issued.)

"But to make of this nationalization a normal rule of public organization of economy would be to reverse the order of things," the Pope continued.

It is not true, he held, that every private enterprise is by its nature a society in which all persons, whether owners or not of the means of production, should have the right to share in the property or at least in its benefits.

"Such a conception starts from the hypothesis that each enterprise enters by nature of the sphere of public right," the Pope said. "It is an inexact hypothesis."

Iron, Steel Bill Passed By Commons

London, May 9 (AP).—The House of Commons passed and sent to the House of Lords today the controversial bill to nationalize most of Britain's iron and steel industry.

The key vote came on a proposal by the Conservative opposition to reject the bill. The motion lost 330 to 203, and the bill was "read" a third time. This was formal passage.

Consideration of the measure by the Lords is expected to begin without delay. The Labor Government measure faces bitter but probably futile opposition in the chamber.

The bill authorizes the Government to buy up the stock of 107 companies at an estimated cost of $1,200,000,000. These companies, employing about 300,000 of the nation's 495,000 iron and steel workers, are capitalized at 780 million dollars.

Actual direction of the iron and steel business will be left in the hands of the men who now run it. They will work under a government holding corporation.

Hearing Is Set On Repair Fund For White House

A Senate Appropriations subcommittee will take up the $5,400,000 item for White House renovations at a public hearing at 10 a. m. Wednesday.

The estimate is now carried in the second deficiency supply bill. It was removed from the first Deficiency appropriations bill last week when the measure became deadlocked in conference over other items.

Federal Works Agency and Public Buildings Administration officials will testify on the White House remodeling request.

Strike Voted in Paris

Paris, May 9 (AP).—Stock exchange workers voted unanimously today to strike for higher wages. No date was set. Delegates from both Communist and non-Communist unions voted for a strike after a week deadlock with the government over wages.

'Turtle' Flies To Portugal In 17 Hours

Lisbon, Portugal, May 9 (AP).—The U. S. Navy bomber Truculent Turtle today retraced in 16 hours and 50 minutes the first transatlantic flight, made 30 years ago by the Navy's NC-4.

Aboard as a passenger was Rear Adm. Albert C. Read, who piloted the canvas-and-plywood NC4 across in 19 days in 1919.

"It was a good flight and I enjoyed it almost as much as 30 years ago," said the Admiral.

The Truculent Turtle, big two-engined Lockheed Neptune, flew from Floyd Bennett Field, N. Y., by way of Newfoundland and the Azores nonstop.

At the controls was Comdr. Thomas D. Davies of Chevy Chase, Md., who commanded the plane on its 1946 record nonstop flight of 11,236 miles from Perth, Australia, to Columbus, Ohio.

Music will be provided by Cantor Jacob Barkin of Congregation Adas Israel and a Meyer Davis orchestra.

Rabbi Solomon Metz, of Adas Israel, will deliver the invocation and Rabbi Henry Segal of B'nai Israel Synagogue will pronounce the benediction. Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld of the Washington Hebrew Congregation will introduce the speakers.

Princess Will Visit Pope Despite Protestant Objections

Rome, May 9 (AP).—Princess Margaret of England "will definitely see the Pope," a spokesman for the British legation to the Vatican said tonight.

He declined to disclose the time of the audience, but Msgr. Enrico Pucci's unofficial Vatican news service said it will be at 5:30 p. m. Tuesday.

The prospective audience has drawn bitter objections from Protestant groups in England. A last-minute telegram today to King George in London by the Protestant Truth Society expressed shock and "profound grief" and asked him to intervene.

But the King, temporal head of the Anglican Church, looks upon it as a personal matter for his daughter and is neither encouraging or discouraging the meeting, said an authoritative Buckingham Palace source.

It was understood the Vatican would take unusual steps to insure that the 18-year-old Princess Margaret is not photographed with a Vatican background.

The many photographs of Margaret while visiting beaches in Italy have raised vehement protests in Britain.

The French weekly newspaper, France-Dimanche, was seized by Paris police last weekend before it reached the streets with a picture of what seemed to be a nude girl on seaside rocks. The paper said it was not known whether the picture was the princess or someone else.

The newspaper was seized under a French law banning "insults to the head of a foreign state."

Jarman Held Choice For Australian Post

Pete Jarman, former Democratic Representative from Alabama, is reported to be President Truman's choice for new American Ambassador to Australia.

Diplomatic officials said yesterday the White House would announce his appointment shortly to succeed Myron Cowen, who has been transferred to the Philippines.

Jarman was Representative from the Sixth Alabama District for six terms. Last November he was defeated in the primaries by Edward de Graffenried.

Safeway Trims It Before Weighing

SO YOU SAVE MONEY

We'll give you 2 T-Bone Steaks
(they won't cost you a penny)
if ever you get a SAFEWAY T-Bone not trimmed this money-saving way

TOUGH MEAT removed from end of steak by Safeway before we weigh your T-bone on the market scales. It gives you a steak that eats tender in every part

EXCESS BONE and gristle at top end of steak cut off by Safeway before weighing . . . so you don't pay for these waste parts

EXCESS FAT is trimmed off by Safeway before we weigh the steak. This is another extra step that gives you more good-eating meat for your money

Test purchases by Independent Bureau show you can save money on meat

We asked an independent research organization to check methods of trimming meat in this area.

And we secured proof that it pays you to check trimming as closely as you check price when buying meat.

In 231 representative markets in this area where they bought meat they found a great variation in the way meat is trimmed.

In 97% of the markets other than Safeway, T-bone steaks purchased were not trimmed before weighing.

Had the T-bone steaks been first trimmed and then weighed (as Safeway does), the average saving would have been almost 24¢ per pound. Customers of some of these stores would have saved amounts up to 52¢ per pound.

This survey shows unmistakably that thousands of housewives in this area are paying regular meat prices—which are high enough these days, goodness knows—for waste that is thrown away!

- Example: For T-bone steaks purchased UNTRIMMED shoppers paid an average of almost 48¢ more per 2-lb. steak than if these steaks had been trimmed BEFORE weighing. In some markets as much as $1.04 more!
- Example: For rib roasts purchased UNTRIMMED shoppers paid an average of almost 56¢ more per 6-lb. roast than if these roasts had been trimmed BEFORE weighing.
- Example: For rib lamb chops purchased UNTRIMMED shoppers paid an average of over 34¢ more for six chops than if these chops had been trimmed BEFORE weighing.
- Example: For legs of lamb purchased UNTRIMMED shoppers paid an average of over 61¢ more per 6-lb. roast than if these roasts had been trimmed BEFORE weighing.

Wherever you buy meat you are entitled to money-savings that result from proper trimming of each cut before it is weighed. Insist that your butcher trim this way. If he refuses, why not buy at a market where this kind of trimming is done?

It means more tender, juicy meat in every pound you pay for...a bigger value for your meat dollar at Safeway!

YOU SEE ABOVE how Safeway removes excess waste, fat and bone from T-bone steaks before weighing. And the test-purchase report presented here shows you how important it is to compare trimming, as well as price.

We prepare other cuts in similar fashion—each one according to its special requirements. This waste-free cutting is part of Safeway's Guaranteed Meats plan. We regularly trim our meats this way.

When you compare meat prices, remember that Safeway's prices always are on the TRIMMED cut, free of excess bone, waste and fat, ready for cooking.

If ever you're not satisfied that the meat you buy at Safeway is trimmed the money-saving way we say, just show it to the manager of the Safeway store where you bought it. If your Safeway T-bone steak (for example) is NOT trimmed as shown above—you get TWO T-bone steaks without a penny's extra cost (and without quibble or argument!)

Safeway buys nothing less than the top government grades of beef (all beef sold at Safeway is U.S. Government graded) . . . nothing less than the top grades of lamb, pork and veal. More. We hold our meats the full number of days needed to bring out peak flavor and tenderness. And we safeguard their goodness with exact temperature controls.

Come prove for yourself—there's more good-eating at less cost in Guaranteed Meats from Safeway!

SAFEWAY GUARANTEED MEATS *This offer effective at all Safeway markets

New Pump Will End Falls Church Thirst

An auxiliary water pump to bring in 700,000 additional gallons of water daily from Arlington County will be installed tonight to boost the Falls Church water supply.

Plans for the auxiliary pump were revealed last night after the Falls Church City Council heard complaints from families in the city's Prout Hill area that they had been almost without water for the past five days, because of low pressure.

Robert Fleming, 1308 Tracy pl., and A. C. Lieber, 303 Poplar dr., said the water pressure on the hill had been so low, families there had been collecting water in buckets at night when there are fewer users for the day ahead.

W. M. Johnson, consulting engineer on the city's water situation, told the council the current water famine developed last week when the indicator on a 200,000-gallon water storage tank went awry, failing to indicate the water level.

Johnson said the auxiliary pump would start work at midnight tonight.

Arlington now supplies all of Falls Church water, more than 700,000 gallons daily. The auxiliary pump will double the supply, Johnson said.

The city's new million-dollar water supply system won't be completed until November, Johnson said—too late to ease the water shortage expected in the summer.

The council last night, in other matters, amended its license ordinance to tax out-of-city contractors 10 cents on each $100 estimated cost of construction and wrote off as a donation $3934 loan made to the city's 'teen canteen.

Boy Drowns In Anacostia; Aid Try Fails

A 10-year-old boy drowned yesterday in the Anacostia River despite the efforts of a Bolling Feld staff sergeant to rescue him.

S/Sgt. Tidmore

The dead boy was identified as Lawrence Randolph by his grandmother, Mrs. Lila May Johnson, with whom he lived at 744 Howard rd. se. Coroner A. Magrauder MacDonald issued a certificate of accidental death due to drowning.

Police said S/Sergt. Robert Tidmore, 30, was driving an Army truck near the South Capitol st. bridge, when he was stopped by an unidentified man, who said a child had fallen into the water.

Tidmore ran down to the river, saw the boy disappearing below the surface and plunged in without removing his fatigue clothes. He was unable to reach the boy, so he stripped to his underwear and got the boy on a second try.

Meanwhile, Fire Rescue Squad No. 1 arrived at the scene and members applied artificial respiration but were unable to revive the boy. He was pronounced dead at the scene.

Police said the youngster was swimming with two other little boys, who fled in terror when they saw him start to struggle in the water.

Youth Found Shot Dead in Virginia

Luray, Va., May 9 (AP).—Sheriff Abram Brubaker of Page County said the body of Edward Turner, 20, shot through the stomach, was found yesterday on a mountain road leading from Catherine Furnace, near Newport.

Brubaker said today it has not been determined whether the young man was shot with a .32-caliber revolver found beneath the body. Dr. George Long, county coroner, planned an autopsy to probe for the bullet. Turner was a son of Jacob Turner, farmer of Stanley.

1950 Home Census Approved by House

The House yesterday passed a bill calling for a census of housing as part of the regular census in 1950.

The bill to discover the truth about the housing shortage passed, 222 to 51, and is expected to add $15,000,000 to the estimated $70,000,000 cost of the regular census.

Several Republicans said the bill sent to the Senate provides the Democrats "with some extra jobs" to hand out before the 1950 elections.

Representative John J. Allen, Jr. (R., Calif.) assailed the bill as a measure to set up a "super squad of snoopers."

ADA Sets Housing Goal

Americans for Democratic Action, meanwhile, proposed to the House Banking Committee a national goal for construction of 1,500,000 new homes a year, with emphasis put on dwellings to rent for $15 to $45 a month.

The committee is nearing the end of its hearings on the Administration's new public housing bill, and is expected to approve it.

Robert F. Wagner, son of the New York Democratic Senator, sent the ADA statement to the committee with a statement of his own.

If private builders do not meet the goal, Wagner said "the Federal Government should, through the facility of local public housing authorities, assure production of whatever number of units the private builders cannot produce."

ADA's proposed goal compares with present housing production running at a rate of about 875,000 a year.

The Right Rev. Monsignor John O'Grady, secretary of the National Conference of Catholic Charities, told the committee taht he was "strongly opposed to a needs test for admission of families to public housing units" because it is "demoralizing."

"Bringing together into one community a considerable number of relief families would create a very unnatural community," he said, and it "would bear many of the earmarks of a poorhouse."

Msgr. O'Grady said that "those who are opposed to public housing apparently have discovered a new substitute within the past week.

"For the 1,050,000 public housing units provided for in HR-4009 they would substitute a large sanitation program" similar t o the "Baltimore Plan."

While the Baltimore Plan has possibilities for application elsewhere he added, "it cannot, however, by any stretch of the imagination be regarded as a substitute for a long-range and greatly expanded public housing program."

'Poll Taxed' Out, Says Candidate In Falls Church

Robert M. Cullum, 38, said yesterday he had been "poll taxed" out of the Falls Church City Council race, and announced he would withdraw his candidacy.

Cullum, of 203 W. Cameron rd., did not pay his 1946 poll tax, although paying those in 1947 and 1948. Virginia law requires voters and candidtaes to pay for the last three years they have lived in the State.

Another candidate who appeared to be eliminated by the poll tax, Thomas H. Graham, 225 S. Lee st., has said he will leave the matter up to the City Electoral Board.

Both men will appear tonight at 8 o'clock at a forum for the 15 council candidates at the Oak Street School. Cullum said he would explain his reasons for withdrawing.

Arlington Man Pleads Innocent To Murder Charge

Trial of a 33-year-old Arlington cleaning store employe for the shotgun murder of a neighbor began yesterday in Arlington Circuit Court.

Defendant William E. (Buster) Warren pleaded innocent to slaying Luther T. Tillman, 36, of 1912 S. Rolfe st. on February 5. The shotgun blast blew off the top of Tillman's head.

Attorney John Paul Jones, representing Warren, said his client shot in self-defense after he thought he saw Tillman reach for a gun. The trial will continue at 10 a. m. today.

Takoma Park May Lose County Police

Withdrawal of Montgomery County police officers and desk clerk assigned to Takoma Park is called for in a bill scheduled to be introduced today at a legislative session of the Montgomery County Council.

Also expected to be introduced today are bills which would set up a countywide library system and authorize an emergency $735,000 bond issue for county school construction needed this September.

The police bill, to be sponsored by Councilman J. Douglas Bradshaw, would re:uire the county government to turn over to Takoma Park certain tax funds in lieu of county police service.

The funds, it was said, would amount of about $15,600 the first year based on a 12 cent tax on each $100 assessed valuation within the town limits.

The bill would eliminate duplicate police service in the town, since the town has its own police force.

At present there are eight town officers, four county officers and three county desk clerks in the setup.

Town police are under the direction of Lieut. Chester E. Thomas and county police are supervised by Corp. Joseph Hawkins.

County Police Chief Charles M. Orme said yesterday he was in favor of the measure.

The bill would not impair county police jurisdiction in Takoma Park in the event of an emergency, it was said.

Girl Drug Addict Held for Jury on Theft Charges

Miss Frances V. Smith, a 20-year-old drug addict who said her $20-a-day habit forced her to steal, was arraigned yesterday on two charges of mail theft and forgery.

United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence held her for the grand jury, set $2000 bond, and recommended hospitalization. She was charged with stealing a pension check mailed to Lulu B. Veit from a mailbox at 1206 10th st. nw. The prosecution said she had confessed to stealing 50 Government check letters.

Court Searches Trial Spectators

Welch, W. Va., May 9 (AP).—Spectators were admitted to the murder trial of Matt Justice today only after they were searched for weapons. Eight deputies and State troopers were kept on duty in the courtroom.

The sheriff's office said the precautions were taken because of a bitter feud between the families of the 55-year-old farmer and the two brothers he is accused of killing, Curtis and Thomas Whitt.

Matt's son, Dennis, 22, awaits trial on a separate charge of slaying the Whitt brothers last November when he and his father met them at a small bridge near Panther, W. Va.

Suit Is Filed In Protest of New Rent Act

New York, May 9 (AP).—A Federal Court action was filed today by two landlord organizations seeking to prevent Tighe E. Woods, Federal Housing expediter, from continuing with his recently announced rent increase formula.

The suit also seeks a judgment declaring the Federal Housing and Rent Act of 1949 unconstitutional.

The action attacks the Housing and Rent Act as an invasion of State rights and therefore in violation of the Ninth and Tenth Amendments to the Constitution.

The suit was brought by the Federal Landlords Committee, Inc., and the Diamond Construction Co., Inc., representing a number of owners of New York apartment houses.

Loans on REAL ESTATE

Here are two of the more popular types of real estate loans The Washington Loan and Trust Company makes on improved business and residential property in the District of Columbia, nearby Maryland and Virginia. A loan plan can be designed to meet your special needs and at low interest rates.

1. MONTHLY PAYMENT PLAN—Under this arrangement one payment each month covers interest charges and pays back part of the loan. With each payment you owe less—and you own more of your home. Unlike rent payments, these monthly installments will permit you eventually to own your own home.

2. TERM LOAN PLAN—Straight mortgage loans are available for a specified period of time at a standard, low rate of interest. This interest is generally payable every three months. When the term is up, new arrangements must be made to finance the balance of the loan.

This Bank also invites applications for loans to modernize your home, including new heating equipment, roofing, insulating, building additional rooms, modernizing bath, kitchen or laundry. Loans are made up to $2500 and can be repaid in monthly installments in three years or less.

HERE ARE HINTS THAT MAY HELP YOU WIN!

Today's modern laundry service is vital to health, comfort, and good living. It eliminates hard work. When you send your clothes to the laundry, you have more time to enjoy life—to take care of household duties—to devote to your family—to spend in the kitchen making more delicious meals. You say good-bye to washing-and-ironing drudgery when you call on your "Pledged Quality" laundry.

The laundry washes clothes better. Bed and table linens come back snowy white, gleaming in their cleanliness, faultlessly pressed. Shirts are factory-fresh, buttons are replaced, collars are crisp, wrinkleless and inviting.

The weather is never a factor when you use the laundry. Rain or shine, snow or sleet, your laundry is ready to relieve you of worry. No more colds from hanging out the wash in a biting wind! No more cluttered house when nasty weather sends the wash indoors! No more chapped and wrinkled hands from soap and water.

Your professional laundry protects health—not only in the elimination of drudgery, but in the battle against germs. Home-laundered clothes, by actual test, have been proved to be amazingly unhygienic. Professional laundering is truly germicidal, with controlled temperatures and rinse water as pure as the water you drink.

Today's modern laundries give you "gentled" clothes. They're easier on your garments. Special multiple rinsing processes never leave soap in your wash to shorten the life of fabrics.

Take the matter of cost. When your laundry is returned, there's a bill attached for the total cost of the whole operation. Compare it with the total cost of doing the laundry at home. Figure operating costs of your equipment, the price of soap and other materials used, the water, the cost of heating the water, the wear and tear on your machines. Add the cost of maid service, or if you do it yourself, the time you spend. Don't forget the interest on the investment on the equipment—the amount your money would be earning if it were in a savings account or government bonds.

And how much is a tired back worth? Or legs weary from climbing stairs, or arms from lifting and hanging wet and heavy clothes? What price would you put on a miserable head cold or rough chapped hands? Add in all costs, both hidden and obvious—then figure if you can afford not to use the laundry!

It seems that the business of sports forecasting is running into the same contumelious hazards as those which attended Exhibit A of the political prognosticators last November. Whether it was because of a failure to sample enough of the equine population, whether because of an inability to appraise feeling at the grass roots, most of the sporting fraternity could hardly have been more wrong on the outcome of Saturday's Kentucky Derby. The dark most of them picked was Olympia, though some of the smart money was on a nag called—appropriately enough in the liquor country—Old Rockport, and our own Walter Haight hedged by picking Palestinian on a wet track. Small matter; a horse named Ponder came up from behind, and most of the dopesters are now, shall we say, Pondering.

As if this were not enough by itself, the Kentucky bust followed by only a few weeks the upset—rather, convulsion—in England's Grand National. At that famous meet a good, solid horse proudly named Cromwell was the favorite, and only the Daily Worker, probably because of a slight ideological bias, picked Russian Hero to be the winner. To cap the climax, our own Nats, who, according to authorities, seemed to have a permanent lease on the cellar, whipped the world champion Cleveland Indians Sunday to make it seven in a row. Altogether, it's enough to make one lose all faith in expertise, let alone crystal balls, and at this chancey rate we shall begin to doubt the identity of tomorrow.

Indonesian Prospects

Hopes of peace in Indonesia have been dashed so often that the latest cease-fire will be viewed with some skepticism in the islands and on the Asiatic mainland. The Dutch have now agreed to return the Republican leaders to the former capital at Jogjakarta, and to free all other prisoners taken since the start of their disastrous military action last December. The Republicans, in turn, have agreed to stop the guerilla fighting and to take part in a conference at The Hague on the future of Indonesia as a whole. It looks at first sight like a belated return to sanity on the part of the Dutch, partly induced, no doubt, by the patient diplomacy of Mr. Merle Cochran, the American member of the Good Offices Commission of the United Nations, and by the good sense of Mr. Van Royen, the Dutch representative.

Yet the new agreement leaves almost every important question unanswered. One wonders whether President Soekarno can persuade his embittered fighters in the hills to lay down their arms. One wonders, too, whether the Batavia Dutch will obey their home government more honestly than they did last January, when they kept the Republican leaders as prisoners on separate islands in spite of the contrary assurances given to the U. N. Even with good faith and ample authority on both sides, the withdrawal of Dutch troops from Republican territory will be a difficult task. Conditions on Java and Sumatra are more tragic than they were five months ago, due not only to the fighting but also to the economic regulations which, the Republicans always insisted, amounted to a cruel blockade.

Looking back, one wonders what the Dutch think they accomplished by their misguided military action last winter. The fabulous Duke of York merely looked foolish with his hundred thousand men: "He marched them up the hill, then he marched them down again." The Dutch Government now looks worse than foolish. The catalogue of human folly contains few pages more tragic than the record of miscalculations at Batavia and The Hague. The resort to force in Indonesia has cost lives, treasure and good repute which Holland could not easily spare. It has also delayed the economic recovery of the Far East, has weakened the authority of the United Nations, and has hampered the progress of the North Atlantic Treaty by arousing all the latent anticolonialism in the United States.

Worst of all has been the undermining of the entire moral position of the West in Asia. Thanks to the Dutch—and to some extent to the French in Indo-China as well—the Communists can picture themselves as the only true allies of nationalism in the East. The Dutch can redeem their record now by proving that they can adjust themselves to new conditions; by using the republic as a partner instead of as a whipping-boy; by listening to the pleas of their friends abroad, and by setting up the United States of Indonesia with good faith, good will, and the greatest possible speed.

A Start In Civil Rights

To date, Administration and Congress have manifested a positive genius for running into the old futile controversies on civil rights. The House is giving preference to antipoll tax and fair employment practices bills; a Senate group is putting forth a mild antilynching bill; and there is danger that the fundamental and most manageable of the civil rights measures may be crowded out by these old perennials. The measure to which we refer is S. 1725, introduced by Senator McGrath.

One reason for this unsatisfactory situation is undoubtedly the delay in getting the McGrath bill before the Senate. It was introduced only two weeks ago. Considering the legislative log jam already bedeviling the Senate, that does not give the bill a very good chance in the present session. Yet is seems to us that this bill is the natural and logical spearhead of the President's civil rights program.

In S. 1725 Senator McGrath has combined seven elementary steps that ought to be taken to minimize discrimination in those areas where the Federal Government has special responsibilities. It would set up a civil rights commission of five members to reflect the conscience of the Nation in the matter of civil liberties. The commission's work would be supplemented by a Joint Congressional Committee on Civil Rights that would be in a position to investigate discriminatory practices as well as to recommend legislation. We think the latter task could be more appropriately assigned, however, to the House and Senate Judiciary Committees with a change of name to include the civil rights function.

Having thus laid the groundwork for future progress, the bill strikes at the foundation of many present abuses. It would give statutory backing to the Civil Rights Division in the Department of Justice and expand the FBI for investigation of civil rights cases. In clear and unequivocal language it would prescribe severe penalties for any person or group convicted of injuring, oppressing, threatening or intimidating any residents of any State or Territory in the free exercise or enjoyment of his constitutional rights. The Federal Government would become in fact, as it ought to be, the guardian of those constitutional rights that have been specially entrusted to its protection. Whether the bill goes beyond this is a matter that will require thorough study, but the history of inaction under the old civil rights law now on the books is sufficient indication that more positive instructions to law-enforcement officials are desirable in this field.

Perhaps more important are the sections designed to safeguard the right to vote. The Fifteenth Amendment puts Congress under obligation to protect the right to vote against discrimination on grounds of "race, color, or previous condition of servitude." Congress has never adequately met this responsibility. We have previously expressed the belief that if this one basic right were safeguarded as it ought to be, other problems of discrimination would be gradually ironed out through the democratic method of electing State and local policy-makers.

The last provision of this omnibus bill would end discrimination in interstate transportation facilities. Certainly this, too, is a field in which a national policy in keeping with the democratic tradition ought to be declared. The Supreme Court has tried to put such a policy into effect without any specific legislation, but it can never be satisfactorily applied until the will of Congress has been positively declared. In our opinion, Congress would be making an excellent start on a long-range program for the safeguarding of civil rights if it would enact this bill at the present session and send to the States for their ratification Senator Holland's resolution to amend the Constitution by outlawing State poll taxes.

Unified Officers

From the Navy, which has just lost one of its pet projects in the interests of integrated planning, now comes a constructive suggestion for advancing unification. Admiral W. H. P. Blandy, Atlantic Fleet commander, proposes that officers be interchanged between the armed services for one or two year periods of duty with the view of eventually building a top command of men familiar with the functions of each individual arm.

This is not a new idea—it was broached by General Eisenhower in his valedictory talk last year and doubtless has been taken up by others—but it gains merit with repetition. One may suspect that in the present circumstances Admiral Blandy was directing his suggestion toward the particular end of opening Air Force eyes to the possibilities of carrier aviation, especially in high altitude bomber interception. But the plan would work just as well in reverse; certainly the Navy could stand some first-hand education on the B-36 bomber, and men of both the sea and air arms ought to know something of the problems of the infantryman.

In one respect the business of unified education has already taken hold. Several of the more important service schools now are open to members of all three services. For example, the old Army War College in Washington is now the National War College. The staff college at Norfolk operates on an integrated basis, as do the industrial college here and the information school at Carlisle, Pa. The way is open for the extension of this sound principle to a number of the lower-level armed forces schools.

One of the best-proved lessons of the war was the necessity for unified command, both of task forces and entire theaters. If a commander is to make the best use of the components at his disposal, then he must have a thorough knowledge of their capabilities—and this knowledge can best be instilled by actual assignments to each service. General Eisenhower's prescription of a year ago February still serves as an excellent guide. Not only did he call for free transfers of officers between the services, he called for a joint training program for graduates of West Point and Annapolis. Finally, he asserted that after some years of experience senior officers of the Army, Navy and Air Force ought to lose their identity with one particular service and become officers of the armed forces as a whole. This is as valid a formula as we know for realizing the concept of a unified national defense.

Austrian Deadlock

More than three months have gone by since the Foreign Ministers' deputies of the Big Four powers began their current session in London—their seventh since the war—to try to get a treaty for Austria. The session has bogged down into the usual futility and over the usual disputed issues. The Russians have shown no sign of receding from the demands that have wrecked agreement in the past; the westerners have refused, and rightly so, to make concessions which would endanger Austria's independent future. In the circumstances the United States probably took the only practical course in suggesting a suspension of the talks until June 25. By that date, a month after the start of the Foreign Ministers' meeting in Paris, there should be at least some indication whether Russia is in a mood to make concessions.

Austria was not mentioned in the four-power communique on the ending of the Berlin blockade, nor was the Austrian treaty included among the subjects to be raised at the meeting of the Foreign Ministers. Strictly speaking, there is no reason why Austria should be discussed in a conference called to debate German problems. All four powers officially regard Austria as a liberated, not a defeated, nation; yet as a practical matter the Austrian treaty seems dependent for the moment on the outcome of the discussions on Germany. We hope, therefore, that Mr. Acheson will seek at least an informal discussion of Austria as a matter of urgency during the Paris conference.. There is no procedural reason why any of the foreign ministers cannot raise any issue he chooses. There is every substantive reason why a new and determined push toward an Austrian treaty should be made.

One consequence of the unending deadlock is a growing sense of grievance and impatience within Austria, which has borne the undeserved burden of four occupying armies for the past four years. Up till now the coalition government of Socialists and Catholics has been a model of moderation and good sense, but it may lose some of its authority over its own people if the treaty is delayed too long. Even if a German settlement proves impossible this year, an Austrian settlement is worth the utmost efforts of diplomacy. The four-power military occupation ceased long ago to have any practical meaning. An end of the occupation would pay rich returns to Austria and to all of Europe.

Sweatless Gardening

In our constant check on the progress of mankind we have just discovered that radishes, lettuce, petunias, even beans and tomatoes, may now be grown virtually without sweat. Why mess around in the dirt when we can buy "odorless, scientifically prepared" soil in a neat plastic bag? Why worry our neighbors as to what ails our pining plants when we can buy soil-testing equipment, put a little soil in a test tube and check the color it turns to in order to find out whether it needs lime, potash or phosphorus? If we need to dig for a perennial bed, a gasoline driven gadget will do it for us. And come those torrid days in June or July when the weeds shoot high and our interest in seed catalogues has vanished, we can buy one of the paper mulches that smother weeds while letting flowers grow. Or in the case of our hardy vegetables, we can spray the areas around them.

We learn also that earthworms can be purchased—instead of dug for, that rabbits, gophers, moles can be driven away by powders, that "clean deodorized" manure can be bought, and that all kinds of mechanical robots can be obtained for watering our gardens and doing all the other dirty work while we sit and—and—well, while we just sit.

BEAUTY ONCE SHARED

Close fast the door upon the lovely night,
Until the high, full, summer moon shall pass;
Shut out old apple trees in silvered grass
And muted paths where heliotrope gleams white.
Forget the lemon lily and pale phlox,
The rosy, bending lithrum, ghostly sweet,
Where shadowed lawn and shadowed orchard meet;
Forget the glow of opened hollyhocks.
Light all the lamps and keep them blazing high,
And call the neighbors in with laughing talk;
Forget the mystery of the garden walk,
Beneath the tender, sad, moon-ridden sky.
For well I know, being a woman grown,
Beauty once shared cannot be borne alone.

Pot And Kettle

When Government officials cite the sum raised by the American Medical Association to "educate" the public against compulsory health insurance as a "slush fund" or a "lobbying fund," they should, in fairness and consistency, be willing to admit their own adherence to the same devices. Both sides have poured plenty of currency into the battle.

Probably the Administration's efforts to sell the compulsory program to the country have cost far more than has been spent by organized medicine in opposing it. And, in credit to the AMA, it should be noted that their funds are coming from the pockets of their own members, whereas the proponents of the compulsory program are digging into the taxpayers' pockets for their publicity kitty.

At any rate it's a spirited Donnybrook, but one in which the Government pot has no logical monoply on the right to call the opposition kettle "black."

Vivisection Issue

Having a dog of my own, a member of the family for over 10 years, I was recently moved to protest the careless handling of a tagged pet by the poundmaster or a subordinate, as related by one of your correspondents.

Now I am assured by a lady correspondent in a letter of May 1 that the "true issue" is not what I was protesting about, but something entirely different. The picture is of a "sadist" who is "torturing" a dog.

I ask your lady correspondent to investigate and she will find that "sadist" is party line talk for any man or woman who experiments on animals in search of a cure or preventive for some as yet unconquered disease. "Torturing" similarly means operating surgically with ether, or putting to death with ether. Death of living, sentient creatures by suffocation from the fumes of a gasoline engine, the fate of some 5000 dogs a year, at the hands of the poundmaster, is accepted in the party line. Does this make sense?

When she asserts that no good to humanity has ever come out of vivisection, I must turn my eyes away in embarrassment, for there she is out on a limb with those few remaining who insist that the earth is flat.

Alien Doctors

A bill of significance to all residents of the District has been brought through the House District Committee, without any public hearing, and would have been voted upon by the House of Representatives on May 2, but for the absence of a quorum. This bill (H.R. 2056), which has been temporarily withdrawn at the suggestion of Representative Ribicoff (D., Conn.) would add citizenship to the present requirements necessary for obtaining a license to practice medicine in the District of Columbia.

Of course we want aliens to be subject to the same high standards for practicing medicine as required of citizens, but citizenship in itself surely has nothing to do with qualifications to practice medicine. This bill would deny alien doctors their right to practice their profession and would deprive us of their services.

H.R. 2056 is not in keeping with our country's efforts to help the displaced persons of Europe. Taking into account the facts that all of these people have been carefully screened and that each one has obtained personal sponsorship in this country, it appears reasonable that they can be absorbed by our economy. Certainly a declaration of intent on the part of these future citizens should be enough, in addition, of course, to the regular requirements in effect for the licensing of local physicians.

Such legislation is clearly discriminatory. To deny a medical license to a person who has been legally admitted to this country and who is otherwise qualified simply on the ground of being an alien is making such discrimination an end in itself and is contrary to American principles.

Maryland Health

Believing as I do in the general high standard of The Post, I feel free to criticize any example of slanted headlines as, for example, those used in the recent series of articles on the Maryland health plan written by Agnes E. Meyer.

Mrs. Meyer apparently approves leaving the solution of the health problem largely to the individual States, which would result in postponing it indefinitely for the poorer Southern States that need it most. Although I do not agree with Mrs. Meyer, my criticism is directed primarily at the slanted headlines more than against the content of the articles. For example, "Maryland Solves Health Problem" is misleading, since the article on May 3 makes it clear that even in Maryland the health program is not succeeding in reaching all the "medically indigent."

Hoover Reports

In a letter Thomas Jefferson wrote to William Ludlow at the age of 81, he had this to say among other things:

"I think that we have more machinery of government than is necessary, too many parasites living on the labor of the industrious. I believe it might be much simplified to the relief of those who maintain it."

When the above was called to the attention of former President Hoover, he made this observation:

"I was glad to have that quotation. And the Federal civil employes have grown from 1500 in Jefferson's time to 2,100,000."

There can be no question but that we have today much more machinery of government than is necessary. As the Hoover Commission has demonstrated, there is an enormous amount of waste, duplication and featherbedding. If the recommendations contained in the reports were turned into reality a great many overlapping and duplicating agencies, boards and bureaus could be abolished, consolidated or reorganized, thus saving the taxpayers two to three billion dollars annually.

Congress has appropriated nearly two million dollars to the commission which has done a marvelous job. As pointed out in one of your editorials, it would be a tragic waste of money and effort if the proposals were to go by default.

Benning Congestion

The change-over from streetcars to buses on the Benning line has just been made. The immediate effect is one of increasing the congestion on this important traffic artery.

Work has already started on the removal of tracks from 15th st. eastward. In my estimation, the making of the center strip available to vehicular traffic in itself will not increase the rate of flow very appreciably. Therefore, I suggest that the lanes thus created be used as express lanes all the way to the downtown area during the morning and afternoon rush hours.

In my plan, buses, cabs and other vehicles picking up passengers along the route would be confined to the first two lanes near the curb. Through traffic would move in the center lanes at a rate of, say, 35 miles per hour.

I firmly believe that there can be no real solution to the traffic problems encountered by Northeast and Southeast residents until spans are built over the Anacostia River at Massachusetts, East Capitol and Maryland avenues.

Catholic Health Plan

As a lay Catholic, I should like to refute in my small way the unfounded slander heard of late, that seeks to place a wedge between the Catholic laity and our clergy. The latest voice to be heard locally in this respect is that of Paul Blanshard, a constant critic of Catholicism.

In response to Mr. Blanshard's charge that the health program sponsored by the church is a challenge (i.e., threat) to democracy, may I quote Bishop Alter, who said as their spokesman, that the three Catholic agencies "have given careful consideration to the varied phases of a national health program, and in formulating their conclusions they approach the problem . . . from a positive viewpoint. They recognize the existence of social responsibility for the health and well-being of the American people.

"They reaffirm their conviction that a partnership between the state and voluntary association provides the better solution and is more consistent with our democratic processes. Monopoly means control; partnership means freedom." This to me is a truly American viewpoint.

Will Assistance

Have just finished reading your news article of May 5 relating the story of the will of the late Charles B. Henry of Winchester, Va., under which "$100,000 Trust Fund Is Set Up for Winchester Grade Pupils." In the article is the following paragraph:

"The will was witnessed by Robert D. Glaize, Harold G. Brown and Howard Holland, officers of the Shenandoah Bank. Holland, the bank's trust officer, helped draw the will."

Our policy as set forth in our advertising informs the public that the officers of this bank do not draw wills; that we do advise in connection with the preparation of wills. We further inform the public that they should have their wills drawn by a lawyer. Even though the undersigned is a graduate of a law school and has passed the State Bar Association, he is not engaged in the practice of law, but is the trust officer of the Shenandoah Valley National Bank, and, therefore, does not draw wills. I repeat that the trust officer does advise in connection with wills, both with clients and customers, and that is part of his duty.

HOWARD A. HOLLAND,
Trust Officer, Shenandoah Valley National Bank.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

White House Memories

Marquis Childs' column is devoted today to an open letter to Congressman Clarence Cannon of Missouri, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee.

Dear Congressman Cannon:

I notice you are urging that the White House be torn down and a new one built from the ground up. Your idea seems to be that the house would exactly duplicate the present structure. But it would be strong enough to last for many generations.

You say it would be cheaper to do this than to restore and recondition the present structure which, as you point out with considerable accuracy, is a hollow shell. You may be right about the cost. I wouldn't know about that.

But I want to tell you about a visit I made to the White House the other day. I walked through those empty rooms, stripped of furniture, stripped of paintings, with holes here and there where the architects and engineers had made tests of the old walls.

On the landing of the grand staircase the plaster is chipped away, and on the ancient beams are the marks of the fire of 1812, when the British burned the President's mansion that had scarcely been occupied. After that fire only a small part of the original walls was left standing, but the rebuilding began with that fragment.

DOWN in the basement, in what was the old kitchen and in later years became a servants' dining room, is a big, plain old fireplace made of the same stone as the outer walls. The stone in the fireplace has never been painted and you can see its original color—a kind of sandy shade—and feel the rough texture.

You're right, Congressman Cannon, it isn't very good stone. The legend is that it came from a quarry owned by George Washington.

In the room that was Lincoln's office and in recent years was a bedroom with the big, old Lincoln bed in it, is a fireplace with a small bronze plaque on the mantel. It reads, "In this room Abraham Lincoln signed the Emancipation Proclamation of January 1, 1863, whereby four million slaves were given their freedom and slavery was forever prohibited in the United States."

The walls of the oval study next door have heard so many secrets; looked down on so much sorrow and joy and hope and fear. It was here during the last war that Franklin Roosevelt met with the leaders—Churchill, Marshall, King, Leahy and the others—who were directing the most terrible conflict in history.

You don't need very much imagination to people these empty rooms with the ghosts of the past. Old John Quincy Adams, inflexible, unyielding, stalks past, and impetuous Andrew Jackson. This was where Andrew Johnson went through his long ordeal after the tragedy of Lincoln's assassination.

HERE the noisy, vigorous children of Theodore Roosevelt romped with their noisy, vigorous father. Here Princess Alice Roosevelt was married. Here Woodrow Wilson lived out the last months of his second term, an unhappy invalid. Here was held the funeral of young Calvin Coolidge, son of Calvin and Grace Coolidge, and for the taciturn New Englander the rest was dust and ashes.

No, Congressman Cannon, you can't raze the White House. Even if all that is left is a hollow shell, once the first and second floors are torn out as they must be, no "new White House" could ever be the same. No, not even if you put all the old furnishings in the new house.

This sounds sentimental, but that is the way most of us feel about the President's house. There are symbols so important that they must be preserved at almost any cost, and this is one of them.

On these fine May days the view from President Truman's balcony—what a fuss they made about that balcony, and you can't help wonder now what it was all about—is fine. On the lawn below, the big old horse chestnut trees are a mass of bloom as though they were lit by a thousand candelabra. You can look down a long axis to the memorial to Jefferson, who lived in this house. Way down by the iron fence you can see the tourists with their box cameras, wanting to get some of this beauty to take back home.

The architects say it will cost $5,400,000 to restore the White House. We seem to be able to afford a lot of things in this country, and I think that is one of them. Sincerely yours,

MARQUIS CHILDS.

Immigration Quotas

I note that the Italian government plans to seek the emigration of one million of Italy's inhabitants to other countries and wants to finance the venture with Marshall Plan funds.

America should have no part of the Italian government's scheme. Our own population increases by 2,500,000 people every year. Our economy may someday soon reach a point where it cannot adequately support the tremendous pressure of abnormal gains in population.

I strongly recommend that America adopt extremely low immigration quotas and that the efforts of organized pressure groups to establish large quotas be beaten back. These so-called humanitarians and professional do-gooders are deliberately trifling with America's future security and will succeed only in reducing America to a condition comparable to many European countries.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Not The Four But The Five

THE MEETING of the Foreign Ministers in Paris on May 23 will be unlike any of the others. For this time the Germans, though they will have no foreign minister to represent them, will nevertheless be present as one of the principal powers. In the year and a half since Mr. Marshall and Mr. Molotov broke off in London, the Germans have recovered what they lost by unconditional surrender—the power to negotiate the peace treaty which will do much to determine the future of Europe.

LIPPMANN

This would have happened even if the four victors had not become engaged in the cold war. The two biggest powers in it are non-European; the third, Britain, is only partly European; the fourth, France is not a very great power and moreover, the other allies thought they knew more about Europe and about Germany. It was always an illusion to suppose that the shape of Germany and of the European continent could be decided for a generation or more and imposed and enforced by the Council of Foreign Ministers. The Germans would have resisted and frustrated any settlement dictated by the Big Four. But when the Big Four became divided over how they would dictate the settlement the whole concept of unconditional surrender collapsed. The cold war between Russia and the West has brought about what it was bound to bring about: the exceptionally swift recovery of the political power of Germany.

SINCE a recovery was inevitable anyway, a sound policy has always depended on recognizing that it was inevitable, and of formulating a program accordingly. Neither the Russians nor the Westerners have—at least until now—been able or willing to recognize the great fact that the recovery of German power was certain in the long run, and that the net result of their own actions since the surrender has been to bring about the recovery in a very short run.

The Russians and the Westerners have been acting on two variations of the same fallacy—namely that Germany could be dealt with not as a principal European power but as a satellite or dependency. The Soviet form of this fallacy was to work for a Communist Germany directed from the Kremlin. The Western form of the same fallacy was to work for a West German State which was to be "integrated" with "western Europe."

THE TWO fallacies are dead, but still unburied, as Mr. Acheson and Mr. Bevin and Mr. Schuman meet with Mr. Vishinsky. It is a safe prediction that the leadership of the conference will fall to the Foreign Minister who first recognizes the implications and the possibilities of Germany's reappearance as a European power.

That ought to be Mr. Acheson if he can shake himself free of the fallacies which he has inherited. He has inherited a series of ideas about Germany which, if he adheres to them, will place him on the defensive and prevent the United States from exercising a constructive influence upon the future of Germany and of Europe. They are the ideas that Germany could remain divided, with the western part a dependency of the West, and with Europe divided by a military frontier on the Elbe River. The Germans cannot and will not accept such an agreement. Europe cannot endure such an arrangement. And if the Soviets are permitted to be the first and the foremost to propose an alternative, they may not win but we shall certainly lose a leading position in Germany.

THE BONN constitution itself makes it quite clear that the German leaders who wrote it have no intention of forming a West German state in a Germany that is to remain partitioned by military occupation. It begins with a preamble which speaks of the resolve to preserve German national and political unity and to serve world peace as an equal partner in a united Europe and it calls upon "the entire German people" to "accomplish by free self-determination, the unity and freedom of Germany." The preamble describes this constitution as "a basic law . . . for a transitional period," and the final paragraph of the constitution—article 147—says that "this basic law shall become invalid on the day when a constitution adopted in a free decision by the German people comes into force."

What is meant by "a free decision by the German people"? The answer to that question was supplied at the Bonn council eight months ago by the leading figure in the strongest German party—by Professor Schmid of the Social Democratic Party. He said then that "the German people, being under an alien occupation, are not free to form such a constitution; on the contrary what they are going to do is imposed on them by external compulsion." Article 147 puts Germany and the world on notice that this constitution will become "invalid" when the Germans no longer under "alien occupation" have "a free decision."

THAT IS why it is of such paramount importance that we, and not the Russians alone, should stand for the end of partition and of military occupation and for a united Europe, not merely for a united western Europe. If we do not look out, the Russians will steal our clothes while we are bathing in the pool of our own illusions and miscalculations.

For it is we, not they, who should be the champions of a united Germany and a united Europe and for the liberation of the whole of Europe from alien occupation. That we should allow ourselves to be identified with the partition of Germany, the division of Europe, and the perpetuation of military occupation has long seemed to me a most flagrant example of how to miss the bus.

Slot Machine Case Brings Fines on 2

The Prince Georges County men were fined $200 each on slot machine charges yesterday by Trial Magistrate Alan Bowie in Hyattsville Police Court.

The men were: Joseph J. Kroto, 47, of 2901 Jamestown rd., Hyattsville, operator of Duck Inn at Berwyn; and Rufus Devane, 37, of 6113, 42d pl., Riverdale, owner of two slot machines seized last Wednesday in Duck Inn after County Policeman Emmett F. G. Gray said he obtained a 25-cent pay-off.

Devane told the court he made nothing from the machines but had lent them to a sorority which was holding a party in the private rooms in the Inn's basement. The profits from the machine were to go to the sorority, he said.

U.S. Salary Bill Still Unsigned

Strauss-Boke part of the first deficiency bill, and a deadlock ensued.

In this situation, the two houses adopted a resolution to take care of Federal employes who either had missed a pay day or soon would miss one.

The resolution provinded that these employes might be paid out of Treasury funds not otherwise appropriated until the first deficiency bill becomes law.

But in adopting the reseolution, Congress wrote into it the old Strauss-Boke rider which Mr. Truman denounced in January as "arbitrary and diametrically opposed to the principles on which this Government is founded."

Five thousand employes of the Office of the Housing Expediter have now missed three pay days. Employes in the Office of Defense Transportation haven't been paid in two months.

The threat of payless pay days alos hangs over employes in War Assets, Federal Housing, Bureau of Engraving and Printing, Commodfity Credit, county offices of the Production and Marketing Administration, Office of Export Contro land the Bureau of the Mint.

Miss Franklin Signs

Bernice Franklin, key Government witness in the special gambling probe and once Acolotti's girl friend, signed the third affidavit. She swore Acolotti had told her he operated his numbers lottery business from Miss Andrews' apartment, since Miss Franklin first contacted Government agents.

She identified many of the names and codes written on the material seized by Wertleb. She identified the word "Lou" written on the back of a slip of paper, as a woman who ran numbers for Acolotti from the telephone, National 6000, extension 446, the office of the collector of taxes for the District.

Government agents identified "Lou" as Mrs. Lou Quimby, 1216 10th st., nw., a District government clerk.

Acolotti, already indicted for running a numbers lottery, and threatening a Government witness, was subpenaed yesterday to appear in court Wednesday, when the case will be resumed.

Meanwhile, District Court Judge Richmond B. Keech postponed until May 20 the trial of Nicholas R. Floratos, 60, 1020 9th st., nw., one of the 36 men indicted by the special gambling grand jury and the first scheduled to go to trial.

Defense Counsel William B. O'Connel asked for the time to prepare a motion to suppress evidence. He claimed the warrant for Floratos' arrent was isued 105 days after Floratos is alleged to have placed a numbers bet with Pasquale Sanducci, a New York employe of the Justice Department.

Plans to End River Pollution Told Here to National Board

Plans to combat water pollution in the Nation's 350 river basins were outlined yesterday by officials of the United States Public Health Service.

The plans, still in the formative stage, were discussed at the first meeting of the National Advisory Board set up under the Water Pollution Control Act. The meeting was held at the Federal Security Administrative Building, 4th st. and Independence ave. sw.

Though the act became law last June 30, and authorized a total of 27 million dollars a year for five years in loans, grants and expenses for the program, no funds have been appropriated.

Under the plan, construction work to control or eliminate pollution would be done by States, municipalities or interstate agencies, subject to approval by the Public Health Service. Such projects must fit into the comprehensive program to be drawn up by the PHS, in order to qualify for the $22,500,000 in loans authorized annually.

Carl Schwob, chief of the division of water pollution control, told advisory board members the Health Service also would provide technical assistance for the local governments, drawing on other Federal agencies for specialists.

The international water commissions on the Canadian and Mexican borders also would be tied into the nationwide program, Schwob said, and such agencies as the Army Engineers, the Geological Survey and the Fish and Wildlife Service would be asked to provide data.

A. H. Wieters, assistant chief of the pollution control division, said the program is not confined to public health, or any other aspect of pollution, and applies to all waters under legitimate uses. The Health Service has enforcement powers only on interstate waters, he noted.

Mark D. Hollis, assistant surgeon geenral and chief sanitary engineering officer of the Public Health Service, presided as chairman designated by Surgeno General Leonard A. Scheele. The board members represent the Army Engineers, several Government agencies, industry, municipalities, engineers and conservation interests.

"I also enclose you a letter for Mr. Horatio Greenough which you will please have delivered . . ."

This heroic work weighs 20 tons, stands nearly 12 feet high and was 8 years in the making.

In 1843, Corcoran & Riggs received the above request from AUGUST BELMONT, New York banker, capitalist and former branch manager for the fabulous European House of Rothschild." The sculptor, Greenough, was in Washington defending his massive statue of George Washington, then the center of a storm of criticism because of the unorthodox portrayal of the Father of Our Country in Roman sandals and toga.

The work was originally executed for the rotunda of the Capitol but was later moved to the East Capitol grounds and finally transferred to a corner of the Smithsonian Institution where it remains today.

Grade Crossing Suit To Cost Club $9250

Congressional Country Club was equally at fault with the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad in a grade crossing accident at Kenwood, Md., in May, 1947, which killed three persons, and must pay $9250 damages, a Montgomery County Circuit Court jury decreed yesterday.

Attorneys Charles W. Prettyman and David E. Betts, representing the railroad, had asked in the suit that the country club whose bus loaded with employes collided with the freight train be made to pay at least half the $18,500 the railroad has already paid to relatives of the two deceased and to one of the injured.

The jury found both the trainmen and the bus driver were negligent. Those who received awards in the suit were relatives of Jeff Handy, 40, 2300 N st. nw., and Shirley Gordon, 27, of 810 4th st. nw., who were killed in the accident, and Gwendolyn Stewart, 34, of 623 Anacostia ave., ne., who was injured.

Suits concerning Mrs. Elsie Williams, 47, of 1214 25th st. nw., who also died from injuries received in the crash, and four other injured persons, were not involved in yesterday's settlement.

2 Frederick Canning Plants Not to Operate

Frederick, Md., May 9.—Plants of the Monocacy Valley Canning Company in Frederick and Walkersville will not operate this year, it was announced today by Charles W. Ross, general manager.

Acreage of sweet corn contracted for by the firm is being assigned elsewhere. The plants give seasonal employment to several hundred residents of the city and county. The action has been attributed to a surplus of canned sugar corn.

Ellender Decides to Block New Senate Office Building

Senator Ellender (D., La.) yesterday threw a roadblock before the proposed 20 million dollars new Senate Office Building.

The Senator also cited the housing hardship that would be inflicted upon occupants of the present dwelling if they were demolished now to make way for the new structure.

Twenty-one of the 33 street houses on the site have already been vacated, but all of the 23 alley dwellings in the block are still occupied. Issued vacancy notices call for complete vacancy by May 15.

Senator Chavez (D., N. Mex.), chairman of the Senate Public Works Committee to which the Ellender resolution was referred, said last night:

"Plans for the new structure were approved unanimously by the New Senate Office Building Commission composed of myself as chairman, and Senators Green, Sparkman, Malone and Bridges—who certainly cannot be accused of being wasteful."

Mississippi Dice Playing Case Reversed

Jackson, Miss., May 9 (AP).—Mississippi Supreme Court justices admitted their slight personal knowledge of crapshooting today, and wrote a decision in football terms.

They reversed $25 fines for 12 of 13 persons who exploded out of a crap game when the law appeared.

In the opinion written by Justice Lee Hall, conviction of the thirteenth was upheld on the ground he was the one who was "rolling the bones."

"Applying our combined meager and insufficient knowledge thereof (crapshooting)," the justice wrote, "we are unable to find any proof that all of the appellants were engaged . . . or were wagering money thereon."

Borrowing more familiar football terms, the opinion continued: 'A diligent constable, intent upon upholding the peace and dignity of the State of Mississippi . . . approached the hapless and unwary appellants and discerned that they were huddled in a manner similar to that in our . . . game of football.

"But there is no evidence of the proverbial pigskin," the opinion added. "The appellant . . . was calling the signals and carrying the ball. At the moment play was interrupted he was calling for a six and rolling something upon the ground which one of the witnesses identified as dice."

All 13 were convicted in a Simpson County peace justice court and fined $25 each. But they appealed to the circuit court and from there to the Supreme Court.

Musician's Local Sued for $100,000 By Negro Group

The D. C. Federation of Musicians Local 161 was sued yesterday for $100,000 for stopping the music during the National Negro Opera Company's performance of "Aida" April 30 at the Armory.

The suit was filed in District Court by Mary Cardwell Dawson, 1037 Evarts st. ne., who put on the opera. According to her action, the musicians unjustly demanded part payment of their earnings during the performance right in the middle of the aria, Celeste Aida. The show resumed after payment.

Also named defendant was Samuel Feldman, 1538 Ogden st. nw., an official of the union.

Spiny Babbler Bagged at Last

A new specimen of Nepal's rare spiny babbler, called the Acanthoptila nepalensis by people with a flair for such phrases, has been bagged at long last.

Bird in hand

In fact, the National Geographic Society reported yesterday, this bird is the first obtained for science in 106 years, bagged 5000 feet above the steaming tropical valley of Karnali; furthermore:

"The trophy is historic, for this is the first time the babbler was ever taken by a nonnative," announced the society, sponsor with Yale University and the Smithsonian Institution of a safari in the Himalayan kingdom which produced the bird among other things.

The spiny babbler incidentally, is distantly related to the mocking bird, ornithologists say. The stiff shafts of its upper plumage and breast feathers become spiny when worn; hence the name.

Daniels Declined Top Navy Post, Friends Report

By The Associated Press

Friends of Jonathan Daniels said today he has declined the post of Secretary of the Navy.

They said Daniels, editor of the Raleigh (N. C.) News and Observer, reached that decision after a weekend conference with Secretary of Defense Johnson.

President Truman previously had said Daniels was under consideration to succeed John L. Sullivan, who resigned in a huff after Johnson ordered work halted on the Navy's projected super-carrier.

An official in a position to know said Daniels gave other business commitments as the reason for being unable to accept the Navy post. Daniels was said to have discussed the matter with Mr. Truman, as well as Secretary Johnson, over the weekend.

Home Run-Clouting Nats Are Transformed

CLEVELAND, MAY 9.—Laughed off in March, and laughed at in April, the Nats are providing no mirth at all in American League circles right now. They're the rootin', tootin', high-falutin' home run champions of the league as of this date, scattering woe throughout the West and worry among the first-division clubs.

All of a sudden the Nats are a team transformed, unrecognizable as the club that wasn't supposed to hit, and was thin on pitching and doubtful on defense. Seven straight they've won now. With a new hobby of hitting home runs. How did they get that way?

For one thing, they are never to be confused with the same club that finished seventh last year. There are different people on it—guys who can take that lusty cut like Clyde Vollmer and Ed Robinson and Sherry Robertson and Buddy Lewis. Their 22 home runs have been no great accident. For the most part, they've been hit by home-run hitters.

Sure, fellows like Mark Christman and Gil Coan and Ed Stewart have chipped in with homers once in a while, but the Vollmer-Robinson-Lewis-Robertson quartet are pure power guys, who weren't around last year when the Nats were the league's push-overs.

THE Nats' finest demonstration came in Cleveland, where they were supposed to curl up and play dead before the Champion Indians who had just taken three in a row from the Red Sox. True enough, they had beaten nobody but the White Sox and Browns to win five straight. And here they were greeted with seemingly proper scorn and a who-did-you-ever-lick attitude.

So they went out and beat the Indians twice on Sunday, and without resorting to their home-run hitters in any great degree. Sherry Robertson got his fourth of the season, but that was all. The Nats, at the proper moment, came up with tremendous pitching by Ray Scarborough and Sid Hudson, who held the Indians to eleven hits all day and gave 'em their first shut-out of the season.

They didn't beat any push-over, either, when they licked Gene Bearden in the first game. Nobody else had beaten him in three starts this season, but the Nats came out swinging and had him out of there in four innings. On a day when the Red Sox and Yankees won, it was a galling dose the Nats handed the Indians.

THE Nats have been winning ball games all kinds of ways, the mark of a good ball club. In Chicago, when the White Sox scored 12 runs, the Nats came up with 14. When they needed shutout pitching, against the Indians, they got it, from Hudson. Their actions have done wonders for their morale.

They know they're beginning to look tough to all clubs, and that's a nice feeling. The curves that were supposed to bother big Clyde Vollmer, haven't been. On the two days that Buddy Lewis came down with fever, Ed Stewart moved in and pumped out homers. They're picking each other up. Eddie Yost tailed off in his hitting and Mark Christman rescued two games in a row, with his.

They've been lucky, too. Manager Joe Kuhel, in desperation, benched non-hitting Al Kozar and gambled on Outfielder Robertson as his second baseman. He got the benefit of Sherry's big bat, without sacrificing anything on defense, where Robertson is concerned. It's been remarkable, in that Robertson in six games hasn't been asked to handle anything at second base except a big hop.

WHAT they've been doing is truly story-book stuff. All last season they hit 31 home runs. In the first three weeks this year, they've clouted 22. Nobody hit more than seven homers for the Nats in 1948. Vollmer already has five to his credit, Robertson and Robinson four each. Christman, who totaled three homers in three previous years, got three in three days last week.

But long before this, I should have hauled into this dissertation on the Nats, the absolutely most-valuable player on the club. He's neither Vollmer nor Robinson nor any of the home-run hitters. In fact, he hasn't hit even one homer. If he never hits a homer, he'll still be the best thing that has happened to the Washington club in a dozen years.

Little Sam Dente makes 'em look big league around shortstop. The scorned cast-off from the Browns has driven in only five runs this season, but three of 'em broke up ball games. The Nats love to watch him step in there in the clutch. And those Washington pitchers are working with new assurance, with Dente roaming all over the premises to their rear. The deal that brought Dente to the Nats was pure inspiration, or luck. Gee whiz, which seems to be the theme of this piece, Dente's wunnerful.

Gray Tames Yanks, 4-1; Tigers Take 2d Place

Is This the Answer?

Haight Analyzes Ponder's Victory

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

WHAT MADE PONDER CLICK? How come a colt thought so little of by his handlers won the Kentucky Derby? What made him fool the experts, including shrewd Ben Jones, one of the era's most successful trainers? What transformed Ponder from a so-so 3-year-old into a champion all of a sudden? Where has that stretch punch been all this time?

Haight

Those are samples of questions being asked, not only by those who confine their race interest to radio, television and newspapers, but by turf-wise fans as well.

It just doesn't seem in the books that a man like Jones, who has watched each and every move of Ponder, would hold him in such light regard that he told Jockey Steve Brooks to see if he couldn't "get a piece of the purse.".

Perhaps this will read like 6 o'clock handicapping (picking winners at dusk after program is over) but there could have been one of several reasons for the rags to riches move of Ponder.

I BELIEVE the first is Jockey Brooks. Second could have been the fact that Ponder was not considered an important factor in the race. Third, the colt could have been great all the time. Fourth, he could have just found his real racing legs.

Let's go back on Ponder's case history. He came to the races late as a 2-year-old, making his first start at Laurel October 25, 1948. He showed nothing that day, the only time, incidentally, that he ran in the mud. His next two races in Florida were little better but he showed closing ability the next time.

Last January, Ponder graduated from the maiden ranks. He was rushed throughout this race and won by three parts of a length. In his next start, he was almost identically ridden and won. Then followed a rather dull outing but Ponder followed with a fast-closing effort, coming from ninth to be second.

At Hialeah, he came from sixth in a seven-horse field to win going away by three and a half lengths at seven furlongs, his last victory before his history-making one in the Derby.

Mr. Giantkiller was given a different ride in his only start at Gulfstream, and finished second beaten a nose. Moving to Kentucky, he trailed the field and rallied mildly to be fourth, beaten three lengths at six and a half furlongs.

THEN CAME the Derby Trial last week. He developed momentum in the stretch to be a fast-going second but the reports were that Olympia "was coasting" at the end, which might have led his watchers, including Jones, to believe Ponder's move was something of an optical illusion.

In summing up Ponder's dozen starts before the Derby, the charts show that in nine cases he was closing ground at the finish. In the other, he probably was eased when beaten off.

That Ponder had not been fully tried is brought out by his record. Until the Derby Trial, he had never ran more than six furlogns. The Trial was at a mile.

Ponder made his great rush last Saturday, the most effective part of it, in the last quarter—the added distance he had never before negotiated in competition.

Now let's get back to Brooks and the fact that Ponder was an outsider when compared to the Olympias, the Palestinians and the Old Rockports, who. it must be remembered, had been tried and proved capable in stake company.

BROOKS, contract rider for Calumet, flew down to Louisville after last Friday's program at Pimlico. He thought it was a useless ride. Ben Jones didn't increase his enthusiasm when he simply told him to get what he could.

Thus Brooks had all to win and nothing to lose. If Ponder finished up the race track, nobody was going to be particularly disappointed. The colt was being shunned by all but the longshot bettors, which incidently did not include Brooks.

The Nebraska boy probably was the coolest person for the reason that nothing of importance was expected of him.

Thus when the start came and there was crowding near the inside of the field, Brooks eased Ponder back and into last position. Then he allowed the colt to lope along in the rear.

Had he been on a favorite or near favorite, Brooks might have had the tendency to take chances in tight quarters or rush Ponder in an effort to get a good position in the run to the clubhouse turn.

BROOKS, who had seen Ponder's past performnaces listed but had not seen the horse, knew that Ponder's forte was closing well. So if the colt wasn't in a hurry early in the race, neither was Brooks.

Ponder saved ground along the inside rail to the backstretch. On the far side of the track, he gradually eased Ponder out, probably figuring at least he would keep the colt out of the way of any stopping horses.

Most fans are familiar with the one-two punch of an entry of two horses from the same barn. That of sending out one horse to kill off the front runners and using the other to come from behind.

Ponder, actually did not have a runningmate, but he had Capot, Wine List, Lextown, Model Cadet and all the others who were close to Olympia's pace working for him.

The rush of the first flight in the race might have fooled Arcaro, too. For he seemed eager to keep Olympia in front at any cost and the factional time shows he might have overdone it.

GETTING back to Brooks and Ponder, the field was going into the far turn before they had a horse beat—the outclassed Seneca's Coin.

On the far outside, Brooks was clear of horses and taking the overland route. Had he been on a pre-Derby choice, he might have been critcized for losing so much ground. However, he was aboard Ponder.

Then Brooks went to work. Yes, he'd get a piece if he could, but there would be no ducking to the inside. He'd stay where he was.

Ponder began to gain on horses as Brooks increased the cadence of his riding. The boy probably believed he only was passing tired, through horses, for weren't the big shots—Olympia, Capot and Palestinian still up front.

But as Ponder came on, Brooks went to the whip. He seemed to sense something was doing. He let Ponder have it again and again.

We all know the rest.

It all adds up to Ponder going a distance he liked under a ride that fitted him—and we might add against opposition that couldn't keep going a mile and a quarter.

Six o'clock handicapping, perhaps, but it could be the right answer.

Giants Beat Cubs for 7th In Row, 7-2

New York, May 9 (AP).—The amazing New York Giants coasted to their seventh straight triumph tonight, dumping the Chicago Cubs, 7-2, behind the steady hurling of Sheldon Jones. Sid Gordon and Willard Marshall hit home runs for the Giants.

The triumph kept the Giants in first place, a game and a half ahead of the National League defending champion Boston Braves.

Cards Pound 6 Bums Hurlers for 14-5 Win

Brooklyn, May 9 (AP).—The St. Louis Cardinals, who blew a big lead to Brooklyn yesterday, took no chances today as they hammered four of six Dodger pitchers for 15 hits and a 14-5 victory.

Big guns of the Cards attack were Rookie Eddie Kazak and Tommy Glaciano. Kazak drove in five runs with a double and a homer with the bases loaded in a five-run eighth inning spree. The grand slam homer was belted off Reliefer Joe Hatten and crushed the oncoming Dodgers who looked like they might come from behind and steal another close one.

Reich Returns To Cleveland

Cleveland, May 9.—First Baseman Reich parted company with the Nats today after an eight-day sojourn on their payroll. He was reclaimed by the Cleveland Indians at the $10,000 waiver price.

The husky Reich, who went to bat only once for the Nats, and struck out as a pinch-hitter, returns to the Indians on a technicality.

In Washington, Nats' Owner Clark Griffith put Reich on the waiver list in the hope of drawing trade offers, and lost him because of Reich's status as a "bonus player." Waivers cannot be withdrawn on bonus players, a fact that Griffith overlooked.

Reich achieved "bonus" status, Cleveland Owner Bill Veeck disclosed, because of an agreement he had with the Portland, Ore., club, that he was to receive part of the purchase price if sold to the majors. When Cleveland drafted him from Portland, Reich's percentage of the $10,000 sale plus his salary by the Indians, put him over the $6000-a-year bonus limit.

Fred Boysen of Durocher Case Arrested On Nurse's Charge That He Stole Purse

New York, May 9 (AP).—Fred Boysen, Brooklyn baseball fan, was arrested on a robbery charge today when he appeared in court to withdraw an assault charge against Manager Leo Durocher of the New York Giants.

The 22-year-old unemployed Puerto Rican, who accused Durocher of flattening him after a Dodger-Giant baseball game last April 28, was charged with stealing a handbag containing $85 from a registered nurse. He denied it.

The nurse, Mrs. Mary Ryan, said she recognized Boysen from newspaper pictures appearing after his widely publicized mixup with the Giants' manager.

Mrs. Ryan said she communicated with Edgar Feeley, attorney for the Giants, and that Feeley advised her to appear in court today.

She took the advice. Minutes after Boysen withdrew a summons against Durocher, shook hands with him and apologized in court, he was arrested on Mrs. Ryan's complaint.

The nurse said Boysen and two companions accosted her late at night last March 27 on an upper Manhattan street. The three men leaped from a car, she said, and one seized her while another took her purse. When she screamed, Boysen beat her in the face and body with his fists, Mrs. Ryan said.

Boysen pleaded innocent at his arraignment and was held in $500 bail for a hearing tomorrow.

Boysen was late reaching the courtrom, arriving after his attorney already had requested court permission to withdraw the summons.

The magistrate agreed to the withdrawal, but when Boysen arrived a few minutes later she asked him: "What do you intend to do?"

"I want to withdraw for the simple reason that I have no case, no witnesses and the heat is off," the Puerto Rican replied. "I'd like to take it like a good sport and forget the whole thing."

Feeley, who told the court he felt a "great injustice" had been done Durocher, asked Boysen if he would apologize to the Giants manager.

For a moment Boysen hesitated. Then he put out his hand to Durocher and said, "Sorry, Mr. Durocher, I hope you have luck."

The smiling Durocher grasped the youth's outstretched hand and said, "Thanks, very much."

Cooper made his first mound appearance for the Cubs last Saturday against the Brooklyn Dodgers and failed to last even a third of an inning. He walked Pee Wee

Haefner Goes After Nats' 8th Today

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Cleveland, May 9.—Manager Joe Kuhel's pitching worries have been dissolved nicely, and tomorrow he will bestow on little Mickey Haefner the newly discovered pleasure of going to the mound for the Washington club.

Amid joyous overtones of the extra-base swatting of the Nats, no Washington pitcher has been beaten in the last seven games, and pitching for the Washington team is not the hazard it was earlier in the year.

Haefner will be trying to make it eight straight for the Nats in the series finale with Cleveland. The Indians will send out Steve Gromek, one of their 1948 World Series heroes, in an effort to salvage the last of the three-game series.

When last seen Haefner was doing a neat seven-hit job on the Browns for his first victory of the year, and the pitching picture has brightened considerably for Kuhel.

Only one of the Nats' pitchers was able to go the route in their first eleven games because of (1) lack of batting support and (2) downright incompetence, but it's a different phase of their pitching program that is now in evidence.

In three of their last four games, the Nats have found winning, nine-inning pitchers in Haefner, Ray Scarborough and Sid Hudson. The last-named's four-hit shut-out of

Vic Raschi Beaten With Five-Hitter

Detroit, May 9 (AP).—Young Ted Gray of the Detroit Tigers outpitched the veteran Vic Raschi of the New York Yankees today to give the Tigers a 4-1 decision and second place in the American League race.

Gray held the league-leading New Yorkers to five hits while winning his second straight decision. Raschi, who had won four straight before today, gave up only five hits but yielded four costly walks.

The victory moved the Tigers ahead of Cleveland, which dropped to third place as it had an open date today.

Elmer 'Hap' Hardell Resigns As Track Coach at Georgetown

Elmer P. Hardell, track coach at Georgetown University for the past 10 years, has resigned, he said last night.

Asked if his resignation had been accepted, Hardell said he "wasn't waiting on any acceptance." He wouldn't elaborate on that statement.

Hardell took over at the Hilltop after 16 years at McKinley Tech High, where he turned out several track and field champions.

In 1939 when he moved up to Georgetown after turning down several other offers, Hardell also was freshman football coach and served as a scout for the Hoyas.

Hardell was a track star himself while attending Michigan University after graduating from Tech High. In fact, he actually began coaching track at Tech while still a student.

After leaving Michigan he returned to Tech as graduate coach in 1921 and two years later also took over the football teams.

In 1936, his last year as coach of both teams, he won interhigh titles in both sports.

AT PIMLICO

Dear Folks:

Looks as if Pimlico should shift to Laurel. The mutual handle here last Saturday shaded $800,000 while the Louisville crowd bet more than a million on the Derby alone. I saw one official and remarked, "ice day." He replied, "that's the only thing nice around here right now." Ray Haight, one of my relatives, left today for the Detroit track where he will man the public address system and broadcast a couple of races daily. He's a graduate of Charles Town University. Upward of 70 colts and fillies are entered in the 15th annual Pimlico yearling show Thursday morning at 10 o'clock on the clubhouse lawn. The public is invited, for free. By the way, the annual ladies' race will be staged Wednesday at 10:30 a. m.—BILL.

Arcaro Rides Palestinian; Olympia Out

Pimlico, Md. May 9.—Today brought three major developments on the Preakness front:

(1.) Crispin Oglebay's Noble Impulse became a definite starter in the Maryland classic when he set a new track record of 1:42 for a mile and a sixteenth in winning the $7500 added Survivor Stakes, leading every jump of the way.

(2.) F. W. Hooper's Olympia was withdrawn from the famous test, being shipped from Louisville to New York where his next start could be in the Withers.

(3.) Jockey Eddie Arcaro, sixth with Olympia in the Derby, obtained a Preakness mount when Trainer Hirsch Jacobs signed him to pilot Isidor Beiber's Palestinian.

Noble Impulse, ridden by Jockey R. J. Martin, earned his Preakness post position when he shouldered 119 pounds, top weight in today's feature, and laughed at the opposition, fairly coasting into the finish line five lengths in front of the closest opposition.

Brookmeade Stable's Blue Hills, not named for the Preakness or Belmont, was second and Edward Lasker's Hedgewood was third in the field of six.

While the Surviver "made" Noble Impulse, it also apparently sent into discard two colts considered possible Preakness starters although each had some excuse. S. W. Labrot, jr.'s Taran dwelt at the start and King Ranch's Swap Out, was slightly bothered at the clubhouse turn.

Noble Impulse paid $12 and was making his third start of the year. At the 'Graw he was fourth to Danherst, beaten three lengths and fifth to The Pincher, beaten a similar margin. In both races, the son of Bulldog slowed after showing early speed.

Today it was simply a case of chasing him all the way with no catchers in sight. He ran the six furlongs in 1.11 which would indicate that he would take the top at the start of the Preakness, taking the place of Olympia, the Derby pacemaker.

Trainer Jacobs, who shipped Palestinian to Louisville despite Beiber's objections, also made the choice of Arcaro over Jockey Headley Woodhouse who took third money with the Sun Again colt in the Derby.

Olympia's withdrawal came as somew hat of a surprise. His handlers had said they would go to the Preakness win, lose or draw. However, at that time they didn't know Olympia was going to be a beaten-off sixth at the Downs.

Indications are that about ten horses will go postward here Saturday. Calumet's Ponder, diamond-studded Derby winner, and Greentree's Capot, second in the "Run For The Roses" are sure starters, as are Palestinian, Clifford Mooers' Old Rockport, King Ranch's Curandero, Mrs. Eben H. Ellison jr.'s Sun Bahram and Mrs. Ada L. Rice's Model Cadet.

Angling Around:

Hardhead Season Here for 90 Days

By Ralph Murdock

On April 16, A. R. Hansrote, 2426 14th st. nw., caught the first croaker in this area, over at Benedict, Md.

That opened the hardhead season just as officially as President Truman's inauguration of the 1949 baseball season two days later with a southpaw spitball pitch at Griffith Stadium.

And Hansrote's catch marked the beginning of a period for which fishermen around here wait, year by year.

It means that for the next 90 days the hardhead season will be with us, and improving day by day.

Since April 16, the croakers have entered the rivers to spawn and are now scattered over the Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries.

Several catches of croakers have been reported from the pier at Franklin Manor on the Chesapeake. Joe Cordes, Sam Gloriosa and John A. Clarke were among the lucky anglers. Four was the maximum taken from the pier in 3 feet of water after sundown.

FERDIE WALTER of Union Trust Co. and Eddie Hays, painting contractor, tried their luck. Ferdie was one up on Eddie when they pulled anchor. Walter won the undisputed distion of being the first to go in swimming in the upper bay when he stepped overboard while getting into the boat. He was quickly rescued by his cohorts and continued on his merty way to the grounds.

Joe Lare and Reds Smith of Capitol Heights captured six croakers in two hours while fishing 200 yards from shore. A northeaster suddenly popped up and stopped the excitement for this pair just before dark. Their fish averaged about 1¾ pounds and were caught on shrimp.

At this season, for better results on hardheads, we suggest for day fishing that you either drift or change fishing locations often. Anchor if you cannot drift at the proper speed. The idea is to cover the fishing grounds thoroughly because the croakers are scattered to the four winds. They will not school for several weeks, and then they will go into deeper waters. Still fishing is the best procedure if you contemplate night fishing. You will only need from 3 to 6 feet of water for good results after sundown.

FOR THE TROUT fishermen, here are a few figures on how the West Virginia streams were stocked. Evitts Run, near Charles Town, received 800 rainbows about 10 inches long and 30 large rainbow. Cattail Run got 200 brook trout and 300 rainbow trout. Long Marsh Run, near the Virginia line, received 300 brook and rainbow trout. Wall Creek, near Bunker Hill, was stocked with 500 of the larger rainbow and 300 brook trout.

Heavier stocking was impossible due to the increased cost of trout food and the fish-eating birds. The predatory birds destroyed 38,000 trout, totaling almost 700 pounds. The main offender is the night heron which feeds on the trout after dark. Money has been requested so that the pools can be enclosed.

HERE'S ANOTHER report on the blues and it comes from local fishermen who have just arrived from the Cape Hatteras area. They were John Snell, A. R. Shepard, E. D. Yates, J. J. Underwood, and Durand Dean. They caught 35 blues while trolling and 35 sea bass while still fishing.

Large quantities of blue fish from Onslow Beach to Oregon Inlet have been sighted. They were caught by trollers using bone lures. One party landed 163 blues and 17 bonita which had a total weight of 263 pounds. The blues are averaging between 1½ and 2 pounds.

FEW SHAD were caught in the upper Patuxent over the weekend but the oldtimers that fish this area are expecting one more run of white shad. Could be but it is getting a trifle late for shad. They have practically stopped spawning.

Griffs Play Tribe Today

the Indians on Sunday is notice, Kuhel hopes, that big Hudson has rounded to form.

For Scarborough, his victory over the Indians was a special tonic. He ran into three dismal experience after winning the Nats' season-opener, and there was no telling when his next winning performance would come about.

Now Kuhel visions a consistently rotating Big Four of Scarborough, Hudson, Haefner and Paul Calvert. He is no longer panicked by Joe Haynes' sore arm, or the similar complaint of Forrest Thompson. And he is drawing added encouragement from Walter Masterson's tolerable seven-inning job against the Browns in his first start, when he allowed only four hits.

Their seven-game splurge which has carried them to within one victory of the .500 mark and within a half game of the first division, finds the Nats now an eager ball club.

"When the Washington Club hits home runs, they call it a rabbit ball," grinned Sam Dente. "Why aren't those other clubs hitting 'em like us, then? We got the most muscles."

Ruling Due Today On Sewage Disposal

Richmond, Va., May 9 (AP).—A State Water Control Board spokesman said tonight a decision may come Tuesday on the question of sewage disposal for the 7 million dollar Hunting Towers Apartment project in the City of Alexandria.

Representatives from the city and the project conferred with the board here today. The board took the matter under advisement.

The board spokesman said the question that concerns the board is the increase of pollution in Hunting Creek if the City of Alexandria begins to send sewage from the apartment project into the stream.

[Construction of the 795-unit Hunting Towers Apartment development is expected to begin within 30 days, one of the developers said last night. The site is between Mount Vernon blvd. and the Potomac River, across the boulevard from the present Hunting Terrace Apartments. Construction was originally scheduled to begin February 15.]

Also scheduled for tomorrow before the Water Control Board is a hearing on the City of Petersburg's plans for pollution control in the Appomattox River.

Loot Set at $5200

5 Burglaries Laid to Boy in Indictments

A 19-year-old youth was indicted here yesterday for a series of burglaries in which more than $5200 was taken.

In contrast, a 19-year-old girl was charged with four robbery attempts netting her only $27.25.

These were among 45 indictments handed down in District Court by the District Grand Jury.

The boy, Arthur Jones, no fixed address, sawed through iron window bars and smashed doors to gain entrance to the places he looted, police said.

Haberdashery Leads

Listed as stoleh in goods and money in Jones' cases were $3000 from the York Haberdasher, 3600 Georgia ave. nw.; $261 from "Helen's and Herb's," 3600-B Georgia ave. nw.; $20 from a Giant Food Shopping Center, 1438 Rhode Island ave. nw.; $20 from a barber shop at 113 U st. nw., and $1939 from the Brookland Bowling Alley.

Nineteen-year-old Mrs. Eloise C. Shelton, 1002 Mississippi ave. se., told police, according to them, that she tried four pistol street-corner holdups to get money for her husband and child. She is charged with securing $27 from Arthur Williams, 702 3d st. se., and a 25-cent automatic key from Arthur H. Morgan, 1433 T st. nw. She failed, police said, in two attempted holdups where she was frightened away.

Holdups Charged

Two young men were indicted on charges that they held up five stores here and obtained $637.31. They are Glenn A. Anderson, 19, 1026 Kenyon st. nw., and Clinton L. Kilpatrick, 23, 1314 10th st. nw. In three of the robberies, Johnnie Hogan, 30, of the 10th st. address was also charged. In the other two, Ernest V. Willingham, 21, of the 10th st. address, was charged.

Ralph Lee Flinchum, alias Robert Lee O'Riley, 28, now a fugitive, was charged with bigamy in marrying two women here.

The grand jury ignored a charge of arson which had been placed against Lillian V. Bartels, 49, of 2315 Lincoln rd. ne.

Worker Dead, Insecticide Firm Probed

Baltimore, May 9 (AP).—Maryland Health Department inspectors today investigated an insecticide company using the powerful chemical parathion after the death of one employe and the illness of three others.

Arthur Norton, 35, died in a hospital Saturday and the State's toxicologist is examining his vital organs to determine if he was poisoned by parathion fumes.

Two other employes remain hospitalized.

Health Department spokesmen said the inquiry probably would take a week. The company also is making an investigation and has halted production pending the outcome.

Parathion was developed by German chemists and the formula for it fell into Allied hands during the war. The Government released it to private industry after the war.

It has been hailed as powerful replacement for DDT.

Truman Urges Reorganizing

ence of the Administration's congressional leaders yesterday, Lucas said the Senate—which has been proceeding at snail's pace all session—might take up the reorganization plan soon.

Mr. Truman in his message said, "The highest commendation is due the membership of the Hoover Commission."

He stated there will be "honest difference of opinion concerning many of the commission's specific recommendations."

"The commission," he said, "has further urged that there be a clear line of authority from the President to and through each department and agency for which he is accountable and responsible; that the executive functions of the Government be grouped under the smallest practicable number of departments and agencies; and that the ability of the President and the department heads to carry out their responsibilities not be impaired by numerous detailed statutory regulations.

"With these general propositions of the commission I am in full accord," Mr. Truman declared. "My approval and aceptance of them springs not alone from my personal conviction but equally from the compelling mandate of my oath of office to support the principles of the Constitution."

Mr. Truman called attention to the measures now before Congress dealing with reorganization of specific departments but, he said, general reorganization is of equal importance.

Among the specific measures mentioned were:

1. Bills to improve the organization of national security and foreign affairs activities.
2. A bill to create a national science foundation.
3. Conversion of the Federal Security Agency into a department of welfare.
4. Increased pay for Federal officials.
5. The creation of a General Services Agency with improved arrangements for property management.

D. C. Sales Tax Filibustered

property tax rate. Another amendment in the making would approximately double present liquor taxes.

Johnston served notice that he and other Senators planned to talk at length about each amendment. McGrath pointed out that each opponent of the sales tax could make two speeches on each amendment. But he said no "extraordinary" measures are planned to hurry a final decision.

At one point, Senator McGrath sought to take Johnston out of action on the ground that by yielding for two quorum calls he had completed his quota of two speeches on the Federal payment amendment. He charged that Johnston was engaged in filibuster. But his challenge was overruled by Senator Margaret Chase Smith (R., Me.) in the chair, on the ground that Johnston had permitted the quorum calls with unanimous Senate assurance that he could keep the floor. Later McGrath conceded the ruling was correct.

Johnston read at length from the 1936 Jacobs report on Federal District fiscal relations. He cited figures showing that for many years the Federal Government paid about half of District expenses. With the present 12-million-payment toward a 100-million-dollar city budget, Johnston said "the Federal Government is not doing its duty to the District."

He also read lengthy excerpts from testimony of labor representatives in hearings on the revenue bill opposing the sales tax on the ground that it falls most heavily on those least able to pay.

Hunt defended the revenue bill as providing an adequate and equitable tax system that placed no undue burden on any one group.

Before Johnston spoke, the Senate approved a series of Senate District Committee amendments to the House-passed revenue measure. They included the cigarette tax, exemption for all medicines, exemption for restaurant meals up to $1.50 and the 50 per cent increase in liquor gallonage taxes.

3400-Pound Pipe Crushes Man to Death in Fairfax

A 41-year-old construction worker was crushed to death yesterday at Franconia, Va., when a 3400-pound concrete pipe fell on him.

Fairfax County police identified the victim as Charles oJnes, of 2 Butz Ct., Alexandria. They said the clutch of a crane lifting the pipe slipped, dropping the pipe.

Jones was climbing out of a newly dug ditch at a construction project about 3:30 p. m. when the accident occurred.

Gloucester Board To Study Fines

Gloucester, Va., May 9 (AP).—Chairman Stanley T. Gray said today the Gloucester County School Board probably will meet "in a few days" to consider punishment imposed on four school officials in a school equalization case.

Judge Sterling Hutcheson in Federal District Court at Richmond on May 4 fined Gray, two other board members and Superintendent J. Walter Kenney $250 each for failing to equalize school facilities for Negro and white children.

Others fined were Wallace Fletcher and Otis Hogge, board members.

Roanoke Girl Found Slain

a. m. by the church janitor, Alexander Robert Roland, 51.

Miss Weaver, who lived with her mother, Mrs. Murrell Weaver, had left home about 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon to go automobile riding.

Her two girl friends told police the party drove to Andrew Lewis' tavern west of Salem and had soft drinks. Then they returned to Roanoke and the three students took the girl to church after dropping her companions.

Dr. Irvin said she may have been killed before 8 o'clock Sunday night.

Group Reurned to Church

The church group which went on the picnic returned to the church about 8 o'clock. The rector, the Rev. Van Francis Garrett, and several young people went into the church to lock the building.

Some of the girls hung the rector's vestments on a hook a few feet from the room in which the murdered girl was later found.

There is a telephone in the hall near the kitchen.

A church official expressed the belief Miss Weaver went upstairs to use the telephone to inquire where the group had gone after finding the church deserted.

The girl, friends said, was not a member of Christ Church, but frequently attended its Young People's Service League meetings on Sunday evenings.

The girl's mother was reported to have called one of the VPI students Sunday night when her daughter did not return home.

Creditors Ask Receiver for Photo Firm

Appointment of receivers for the District photographic corporation of Underwood and Underwod was asked in a complaint for judgment against the corporation alleging rent due to the extent of $2320, filed in District Court yesterday.

The complaint, filed in behalf of Josephine and Pauline Light, 1436 Kennedy st. nw., who leased premises at 1026-1028 20th st. nw., to the defendant, also asks an injunction to prevent any interference by Underwood and Underwood against the receivers, should they be appointed.

The complaint alleges the Lights have obtained a judgment for $590 against the corporation for rent for the month ending January 31. Ten other suits have been filed in Municipal Court by creditors asking sums ranging from $90 to $980. They total about $3000. Mrs. Rhoda Ruble, president of the corporation was not available for comment.

Bus Service Criticized

Baltimore, May 9 (AP).—Maryland's Public Service Commission heard complaints today that Greyhound Bus Lines does not provide adequate service along Washington Boulevard.

George D. Quigley, an instructor at the University of Maryland, was one of the main witnesses.

He appeared on behalf of the Boulevard Bus Riders' Association to give voice to these complaints: Drivers are discourteous; buses are in poor condition and usually overcrowded; drivers frequently refuse to stop and pick up passengers; buses do not adhere to the schedules.

About 30 persons gathered for the hearing, one of many in long years of agitation over bus service on the main highway between Washington and Baltimore.

Attorney for the association is Louis B. Arnold of Washington and Hyattsville. Joseph R. Byrnes, president of the Maryland Senate, is counsel for the bus company.

Complex Problem

Bunche Asks Equality for U. S. Negroes

New York, May 9 (U.P.).—Dr. Ralph J. Bunche, the American Negro educator who mediated between Jews and Arabs in Palestine, said tonight that the denial of political, economic and social equality to American Negroes is a mockery of the U. S. Constitution and the United Nations Charter.

Bunche, acting United Nations Palestine mediator, spoke at a dinner in his honor given by the American Association for the United Nations. He received the association's annual award for distinguished service to the U. N.

"As an American and a Negro," Bunche declared, "I cannot avoid reminding my fellow Americans that all of us who have a sense of justice and fair play must contribute to the solution of a problem on our doorstep which is perhaps more complex and baffling than the Palestine problem, if our own great country is to be enabled fully to live up to the principles of the Charter to which all of the United Nations are solemnly pledged.

"This it clearly cannot do so long as 14 million Negroes are deprived of many of their fundamental rights and are denied political, economic and social equality. I believe that you will agree with me that racial bigotry makes mockery of both the Constitution and the Charter."

Bunche termed the U. N. "with all its imperfections and weaknesses," the sole force in the world today which can issue reliable peace and freedom insurance.

Park Police Discrimination Report Ready

An Interior Department fair employment practices board will report this week on charges of discrimination against Negro Park policemen, it was learned yesterday.

Interior Undersecretary Oscar Chapman revealed yesterday he set up the five-member board April 1 after hearing complaints of a delegation of Negro Park policemen.

The delegation claimed Negro personnel were denied duty in plain clothes and scout cars, certain traffic and administrative assignments.

Chairman of the investigating board is Daniel Wheeler, Interior fair employment practices officer. He said a hearing was held April 11 and a report will be made to Chapman "in the next few days."

The delegation complained also to Edward Kelly, special assistant to Superintendent of Parks Irving Root. When Kelly brought the complaint to the attention of Root, the park superintendent summoned Capt. Mark Raspberry and all Park Police corporals, sergeants and lieutenants for a conference, Kelly said.

Root told the policemen that the Interior Secretary's policy of nondiscrimination was to be "carried out to the letter" and acts to the contrary would not be tolerated, Kelly said.

Kelly, who has responsibility for supervising Park police, said he has given instructions that eligible Negroes be given first crack at the next scout car assignments. He said, however, he has found Negroes are given plainclothes duty and administrative as well as traffic assignments.

ON VACATION FOR LIFE!

How A. G. Blair of North Scituate, R. I. retired from a salesman's job...

No more alarm clocks! No more long days on the road and only weekends to call their own! These are things of the past for Arthur Blair, former wholesale grocery salesman. For the Blairs are taking life easy now . . . a goal they worked towards for 43 years.

Today they're living in their newly built cottage in the country, 10 miles from Providence, R. I., with their son and his family nearby.

How did Arthur and Annie Blair do it? How were they able to make a small weekly paycheck eventually add up to a vacation for life . . . ?

AMERICAN FAMILY CLOSE-UP
As they go, so goes the nation!

Gay times with his grandchildren, Joan and Norman Blair, Jr., is a full-time hobby, now, for Arthur G. Blair.

"From the time we were married," Annie Blair tells Granddaughter Joan, "Grandad and I put something aside every month for retirement. It wasn't easy on what we made. But what we have now is worth far more than the fancy clothes and shows we passed up then!"

There'll be more than loafing in Mr. Blair's new life! With his son Norman he'll raise some chickens to help out Mrs. Blair's food budget of $18 a week.

Spring planting time will find the Blairs starting a family vegetable patch, too. Mr. Blair, 69, helped to landscape and paint new house. Even then it cost more than he'd expected. He got $8,500 from sale of the city house; savings paid for the rest.

Plenty of time for puttering now! Workbench projects with Grandson Norman, Jr., provide inexpensive fun for both. Grandfather and Grandmother Blair spend $23 a month for recreation and car upkeep.

"This is the life!" say the Blairs. Time at last to read, relax, enjoy life. Plenty of peace of mind from here on. "We're proud of Mother and Dad," Norman says, "They stuck to their guns and did it all by themselves.

"Now that I've seen what it means to them, I've been talking with my life insurance agent about a retirement program for Lee and me."

THE LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES AND THEIR AGENTS

The Blairs, like other American families, prove to all of us that the only way we really solve our problems is by our own efforts!

These stories of real families much like yours also show how much more success, how much more happiness is possible when you have peace of mind . . . the sort of peace of mind that comes from wise management of money now, and from knowing that future security has been adequately provided for.

The Life Insurance Companies and their Agents bring you these American family close-ups because what this country amounts to depends upon what happens to its homes!

INSTITUTE OF LIFE INSURANCE

Long Would Demote U. S. Supervisors Increasing Staffs

A salary-reclassification bill coupled with a provision to stop the expansion of Government is being debated by members of the Senate Civil Service Committee.

Chairman Long of the pay subcommittee yesterday expressed repeated concern over (1) that 300 new employes are being added daily to the Federal payroll, and (2) that there is little incentive for Federal supervisors and officials to reduce expenses. He observed that Uncle Sam could afford to pay better salaries if the Federal payroll was reduced.

Senator Flanders (R., Vt.), the only other member to attend yesterday's opening hearing, agreed in principle with his colleague. He said: "The First thing we should do is to make sure we don't increase the number of Federal employes." He added that the increases proposed were "terrifying."

Long suggested that supervisors and officials who reduce their staffs be rewarded with higher salaries, and that those who increase their staffs be demoted.

The Administration witnesses—Ismar Baruch of the Civil Service Commission and Joseph Winslow of the Budget Bureau—urged enactment of the President's plan to reclassify the salaries of the 850,000 classified workers. The proposal would raise the average salary $50 a year.

Both witnesses shied away from any additional pay boosts. Winslow pointed out that classified salaries compared favorably with pay for similar work in private industry and other governments. However, they said any additional pay boost Congress believes is justified should be made within the Administration's classification framework.

The reclassification bill would cost about 50 millions a year. Long asked Baruch how he could raise salaries if the committee recommended a 200-million-dollar salary bill. Baruch suggested a percentage raise which would taper off at the top.

Flanders proposed an amendment to give the Civil Service Commission the authority to fix standards for efficiency rating systems to be devised and operated by the individual agencies. Baruch agreed with the general idea.

Ewan Clague, Commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, said that the cost of living had increased 71.9 per cent since 1939 and that classified salaries had been raised only 46.6 per cent during the period. Hearings will be resumed Wednesday.

Slum Battle Is Urged On Church Group

Federation's Annual Meeting Told to Attack Causes of Bad D. C. Housing

By Martha J. Hall
Post Reporter

A Washington Methodist minister last night urged church members to take the lead in finding out what causes slums "even if we have the citizens' associations of Washington on our necks because of it."

Speaking at the annual meeting of the Washington Federation of Churches at the Mayflower Hotel, Dr. John W. Rustin, pastor of Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, 900 Massachusetts ave. nw., called housing the "number one problem" of the District.

Asserting that the District won't get anywhere until it has home rule, he declared: "If we had home rule we would have someone besides John Russell Young as a commissioner, and Major Barrett as chief of police."

'Need Home Rule'

Dr. Rustin charged that some people are "afraid" of home rule because they fear the Negro vote.

"We need home rule if we want to have a good city," he declared, adding that Washington can't have it when an appointed Congressional committee rules the District.

Dr. Rustin's assertion that he was going to fight for home rule because "we will at least have something to say about who is going to be commissioner and chief of police" brought applause from his 600 listeners.

Dr. Rustin asserted that there is a one hundred million dollar gambling racket in the District and declared that "with an effective police department you cannot have that condition."

Dr. Rustin was one of three speakers in a discussion of "The Churches' Task in the Nation's Capital."

Rep. A. S. Mike Monroney (D., Okla.) told the meeting that even without home rule the public opinion of District residents has "a terrific impact on the attitude on Capitol Hill."

Dr. J. Quinter Miller, associate general secretary of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, called for greater cooperation with the Federation by the local churches in planning and strengthening their programs for the District.

Bishop Dun Reelected

The Right Rev. Angus Dun, Episcopal Bishop of Washington, was elected to his second term as president of the federation at the meeting.

The Rev. Dr. Frederick E. Reissig, executive secretary of the federation, presented a report on federation activities in the city during the past year.

The report pointed out that the rapid increase in population of Greater Washington "spells staggering tasks and unlimited possibilities for church growth."

It said that the federation carries out its program on an annual budget which is less than Washington spends for a two-day crime bill. It pointed out that crime cost the District $41,000 a day, while the federation budget is $70,321.74.

Eight churches joined the federation in the last year and two withdrew, it was reported. Those which joined were Berean Baptist, Congress Heights Presbyterian, Wilson Avenue Baptist, Friendship Baptist, St. Mary's Episcopal, Arlington, Liberty Baptist, Tenth Street Baptist, and the Church of the Saviour. Trinity Methodist and Luther Rice Baptist withdrew.

Officers elected besides the president were: Vice presidents, Dr. Carl R. Simon, Woolsey Hall, Mrs. Joy Elmer Morgan, the Rev. George Schnabel; treasurer, George H. Ward; assistant treasurer, Walter W. Britt; secretary, G. Frederick Stanton.

The following were elected to three-year terms on the board of directors: Henry Riley, the Rev. H. W. Baucom, jr., Dr. E. C. Smith, the Rev. L. Maynard Catchings, Dr. J. Lloyd Black, Dr. J. Warren Hastings, Capt. John H. S. Dessez, the Rev. Robert W. Olewiler, Herbert Hadley, the Rev. Clarence T. Nelson, John Althaus, Edwin B. Patterson, Dr. Horace E. Cromer, Dr. Robert M. Williams, the Rev. J. H. Peters, the Rev. J. E. Reese, O. Harold Folk, the Rev. Oscar L. Rand, the Rev. Milton Crist, and Charles Lueck.

Kalorama Unit Opposes Ban OnSegregation

A resolution placing the Kalorama Citizens Association in favor of immediate abolition of playground segregation was killed by one vote last night.

Association President Fletcher Tilton cast the deciding vote after the 36 members at the meeting in the Adams School, 19th and California sts. nw., split evenly.

Tilton told a reporter later his negative vote was based on a conviction that segregation should be ended by a "gradual, evolutionary process."

Glover Park

Glover Park Citizens Association last night named a committee to investigate possibilities of adding an auditorium and gymnasium to Benjamin Stoddert School, 39th and Calvert sts. nw .

The addition, it was said, was planned several years ago but never built. The committee, headed by Ralph L. Thompson, 3922 Benton st. nw., will meet with the School Board. The association met at the Stoddert School.

Brentwood Terrace

Notable improvement in recent years in the smoke control in the Washington Terminal's Ivy City yards was cited last night by H. K. Kugel, chief engineer of the District Smoke Inspector's Office.

Kugel and representatives of the Washington Terminal and Brentwood Village apartment development discussed smoke control at a meeting of the Brentwood Terrace Citizens Association at 1251 Saratoga ave. ne.

Kugel said the real reason Ivy City yards smoke improvement was "inspection and active cooperation of terminal authorities." Sidney Kerl, terminal superintendent, said the percentage of violations per number of observations had been reduced from 17 per cent in 1936 to 2 per cent.

Garfield-Douglas

A resolution opposing the proposed diversion of Central or Roosevelt High School to use by Negroes was passed last night by the Garfield-Douglas Citizens Association.

The association, meeting in the Turner School, Stanton rd. and Alabama ave. se., also voted to send a letter to the District Traffic Division asking installation of a traffic light at Good Hope rd. and 25th st. se.

Mount Pleasant

W. Elwood Baker, 1636 Kenyon st. nw., last night was elected president of the Mount Pleasant Citizens Association at a meeting at Mount Pleasant Library, 16th and Lamont sts. nw. He succeeds Arthur E. Kimberly.

Other officers elected were: vice president, Edward C. Wilcox, 1343 Meridian pl. nw.; secretary, John De La Mater, 3330 17th st. nw., and treasurer, Ronald Magee, 3336 Mount Pleasant st. nw.

4 Are Injured In Collision Of 6 Vehicles

Four persons were injured last night as six vehicles collided on Pennsylvania ave. near 28th st. se., causing a trailer truck to smash and practically pulverize the engine of a taxi.

According to the driver of the truck, Willie Anderson, 42, of Tampa, Fla., he was driving toward town about 25 miles an hour when a car, entering Pennsylvania ave. diagonally from P st. se. rammed into his cab.

Trailer Goes Berserk

When he applied the brakes, Anderson said, his trailer swung and pushed his chassis into the wrong side of the street and into the oncoming taxi.

The taxi was driven by Robert Prince, 23, of 5120 T st. se., who was taken to Casualty Hospital with facial injuries. Three passengers also were admitted to Casualty Hospital. They were:

Effie Moore, 21, with injuries to the head and pelvis; Robert Moore, 21, injuries to the right hand, left ankle, jaw and face, and Clyde Thompson, 23, injuries to the nose. Casualty Hospital officials said they all lived at the same address as Prince.

Also hit by the truck was a car driven behind the taxi by Joseph D. Miller of 1111 58th ave., Hillside, Md. The collision pushed the cab into a parked Ford owned by Dr. William N. Heffner of 45 53d st. se.

Parked Car Hit

The truck chassis also careened into another parked car owned by Anne H. Quattlebaum of 2811 Pennsylvania ave. se.

According to V. R. Locke and G. A. Young, of the accident investigation unit, no trace could be found of the car which was reported to have hit the truck first.

Anderson described it as a Plymouth with Distriet tags, and said it drove off with a damaged left rear fender after it struck his vehicle.

Two persons were injured and admitted to Casualty Hospital after an auto collision in the 3200 block of Naylor rd. se. at 7 p. m. yesterday.

They were Mrs. Mary McFarran, 43, of 1624 G st. ne., who suffered a possible fractured skull, elbow and leg, and Jack Blyth, 58, 4505 Temple rd., Temple Oaks, Md., who suffered lacerations of the left arm and possible internal injuries.

Senate Unit Acts to Keep Day Centers

Funds Increased By $100,000 as Permanent Program Also Is Indicated

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

The Senate District Health Subcommittee yesterday voted a one-year's extension of the chlid day care program here and indicated support of a permanent program.

In so doing, the subcommittee, headed by Senator Margaret Chase Smith (R., Me.), favorably reported the House-passed bill, but with an amendment raising the program's operating funds from $50,000 to $150,000—the same as the current appropriation.

The Smith group also directed the Commissioners to call a conference of Welfare and Board of Education officials to formulate "specific recommendations" for a "proper day care program" for the future. The city heads were asked to submit their recommendations by next November 1.

The report should cover, the committee directed, both the future size of the program and whether it should be administered by the Public Welfare Department or the Board of Education.

To Act Wednesday

The full District Committee is slated to act on the day care question Wednesday morning.

Yesterday's move meant probable abandonment at least for this year of Senator Smith's bill which would have put the centers on a permanent basis now.

Requests for increasing the House approved $50,000 appropriation and suggestions for making the program permanent were voiced yesterday by 10 citizen group spokesmen at a final hearing before the Smith subcommittee.

Harry S. Wender, chairman of the District Recreation Board but speaking as an individual citizen, said $50,000 to keep the centers open until next June 1, 1950 would be "slow starvation of the program.

Mrs. Alice Hunter, speaking for the Federation of Parent-Teachers Association, and Mrs. William C. Buell 4th of the Washington Board, American University Women, both suggested to the Senate group that the centers eventually be transferred from the Welfare Department to the Board of Education.

Other witnesses were Miss Gladys Cook, chairman of the advisory committee on Day Care Centers; Charles C. Beckett, Washington Urban League; Miss Charlotte Sillers, United Public Workers (CIO); Mrs. Kathryn Meese, an American Red Cross secretary, and Miss Helen Farmer, Howard University teacher.

Student Held In Friend's Cycle Death

A coroner's jury yesterday ruled William T. Steinkolk, 21-year-old American University sophomore, responsible for the traffic death early yesterday of John C. Gould, 22, of 1711 37th st. nw., a passenger on his motorcycle.

Steinkolk, who lives at 3612 S st. nw., was released in $1000 bond, pending Municipal Court action under the Negligent Homicide Act.

The accident took place at 1:55 a. m. Sunday, when Steinkolk, riding Gould in a "buddy seat" on his motorcycle, collided at the intersection of 1st and D sts. ne. with an auto driven by McCoy V. Jones, of 205 D st. ne.

Gould, a physical science aide at the Bureau of Standards, was thrown from the cycle and died about 24 hours later in Casualty Hospital of a cerebral concussion.

Jones, a Union News Company clerk, testified he was a few feet into the intersection going west on D st. when he first saw the cycle about 100 to 125 feet from the intersection.

Police said Steinkolk told them he was 50 feet from the crossing when he saw the auto about to enter the intersection from his right, but assumed it was halting for a stop sign. A traffic light which normally governs the intersection was turned off at the time of the collision, police added.

Funeral services for Gould will be held at 10 a. m. Thursday in Chambers Funeral Home, 3072 M st. nw., with burial following in Arlington Cemetery.

Mother-in-law Tells Coroner's Jury of Fight Preceding Apartment Slaying

By Judith F. Spivak
Post Reporter

Norman John Lane, 47, was said to have told his wife, "I'm going to kill you," then added, "Here, you take the knife and kill me . . ."

A coroner's jury heard this testimony yesterday from Mrs. Clara Blakeney, mother of Mrs. Lane. Mrs. Blakeney heard the words from the bathroom during the Friday night which preceded the fatal stabbing of Lane.

The jury ruled that Mrs. Mary Agnes Lane, 45, was responsible for her husband's death and ordered her held for grand jury action.

Dressed neatly in a navy blue crepe dress and hat, and still nursing a black eye from the fight, Mrs. Lane received the verdict quietly.

She buried her face in her handkerchief earlier, however, when police introduced as evidence the blood-stained silver handled steak knife found thrust into Lane's back, just below the shoulder blade.

Police discovered Lane's body on the kitchen floor at his home, 5407 First st. nw., Saturday morning, 14 hours after the stabbing took place, and just after Mrs. Lane and a cousin hailed a scout car about 9:40 to report the death.

Leo Breen, 9704 Lawndale dr. Silver Spring, a first cousin whom Mrs. Lane called Saturday morning to inform of the stabbing, testified she told him "I killed Jack." (Lane) when he reached her home.

"I asked her why she did it and she said he'd beat her up so badly and threatened to kill her. She showed me her eye was black and blue, her whole face puffed out," Breen said. Mrs. Lane had other bruises on the arm, wrist and leg, he added.

Says Lane Beat Wife

Mrs. Blakeney, frail 69-year-old mother of Mrs. Lane, who said she had lived with the couple about 9 or 10 years, testified Lane started "beating up" Mrs. Lane about noon Friday.

Lane was in and out of the house during the afternoon, Mrs. Blakeney said, and was "staggering" the last time he came in.

"He started banging her and I slipped out of the room because I thought he'd turn on me which he has done frequently," she went on.

While she was hiding in the bathroom with the door ajar, Mrs. Blakeney said, she heard a kitchen drawer open, then heard Lane say, "I'm going to kill you, I'm going to kill you!" Shortly afterward she heard him tell his wife, "Here, you take the knife and kill me."

Found on Floor

Mrs. Blakeney said she left the bathroom after she heard Lane fall and found him lying on his back on the kitchen floor. "I felt his pulse and his arm was cold," she said.

She found Mrs. Lane sitting in the living room with her 10-year-old daughter, Margaret, who came in "right after it happened," Mrs. Blakeney testified.

Mrs. Blakeney continued: "Agnes was saying, 'Oh, I loved him so much, I loved him so much.' And she did. She put up all these years with so much."

Mrs. Blakeney said the three women then went into the bedroom where they remained all night. Mrs. Lane and Margaret went to a drug store about 8:30 a. m. to call Breen about the stabbing, she said.

According to Detective Peter M. Zazanis, Mrs. Lane said her husband followed her into the bedroom from the kitchen with the knife, and while they were standing between the two twin beds he gave her the knife.

Then everything went blank and the next thing she knew he was staggering out of the bedroom into the kitchen, the detective said she told him.

Neighbors told him they had heard Lane argue with his wife and threaten to kill her many times, Zazanis said.

Montgomery Unit Asks Big School Outlay

A $5,040,000 Montgomery County school construction program for 1949-50, even though it involves a tax increase, was indorsed last night by the Montgomery County Civic Federation.

Meeting at Bethesda Elementary School, the delegates adopted a resolution prepared by Chairman John T. Moore of its Committee on Public Finance and Budget, urging the Montgomery County Council to "take advantage" of the Maryland State fiscal program for aid of county school construction.

Under the State program, Montgomery County may obtain an outright grant of $1,260,000 if it spends as much as $3,780,000 of its own money for new class rooms.

The committee's report pointed out the council could borrow the $3,780,000 from the State "credit pool" in order to qualify.

The county school board has asked that $20,000,000 be made available during the next four years for new school construction, and the civic federation resolution suggested the amount appropriated be about $5,000,000.

Boy ShotTwice In Alexandria Police Trap

An 18-year-old Washington boy was in critical condition at Alexandria Hospital last night with a bullet wound inflicted by Alexandria police who said they caught him trying to loot the money box of an automatic washing machine in an apartment house early Sunday.

Police identified him as Roger Thompson, 408 Ridge st. nw. He had not been charged last night.

The shooting occurred about 2:30 a. m. at the Dominion Gardens Apartments on Glebe rd. where money had been reported stolen from washing machines in the basement laundry room six times since January.

Police Inspector Russell A. Hawes said Pvts. Roger Payne and George May had been stationed in a storage room next to the laundry room every night for two weeks waiting for the thief to return.

Hawes said the policemen surprised Thompson as he was trying to open a washing machine money box. Thompson tried to escape, Hawes said, and was struck in the chest by one shot fired by each officer.

Each of the men had been convicted of being drunk and each was serving 15 days simply because he could not pay his $13 fine. None had more than six more days to serve.

Their release was ordered by Civil and Police Court Judge James R. Duncan at the request of City Sgt. Frank Moriarty, who is in charge of the jail.

Vice Squad Arrests 20 On Weekend

A group of new undercover vice squad men spent a busy weekend, ending up with a total of 20 prisoners, Lieut. Roy E. Blick reported yesterday.

The whole thing started early Friday morning, when Horace McCray, 48, no fixed address, was arrested in the 1000 block of Naylors ct. nw. on a charge of keeping and selling whisky without a license.

By the end of the weekend, five other persons were arrested on the same charges at various spots in Northwest Washington. They were Goldie C. Glenn, 32, of 930 R st. nw., and Frank A. Pricci, 44, of 525 Shepherd st. nw., police said.

All six men were arrested without warrants, but in each instance police made the arrest immediately after they observed an undercover man make a purchase, Blick said.

James W. Clark, 32, of 2730 Sherman ave. nw., was arrested Friday in a drug store on Rhode Island ave. ne., on charges of operating a lottery and possession of lottery slips. Police had a warrant for his arrest. His case was continued to Thursday by United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence.

H. T. Edwards Rites to Be Held Today

Funeral services for Dr. Harry Taylor Edwards, 71, agricultural technologist instrumental in introducing manila hemp production in this hemisphere, will be held at 5 p. m. today at the Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw. Burial will be in Chesterfield, Mass.

Mr. Edwards

Dr. Edwards, who lived at 2032 Belmont rd. nw., died unexpectedly at Emergency Hospital after returning from a trip to Florida.

In 1921, as a fiber specialist with the Agriculture Department, he recommended the introduction into tropical America of abaca, the hemp product from which manila rope is made.

When World War II cut off the fiber from the Pacific, production in the Americas reached half the prewar supply, largely through Dr. Edwards' earlier efforts.

In 1945 Dr. Edwards was awarded the Agriculture Department's Science Achievement Award for his contributions to the war effort and in 1948 he received the Meyer Medal from the American Genetics Association, the first award made by the society in 30 years.

Dr. Edwards was graduated from the Massachusetts Agricultural College in 1896. The school, which changed its name to Massachusetts State College in 1946, gave him an honorary doctor of science degree.

He entered the Philippines government service in 1901, and the following year became agricultural explorer and fiber expert for the Philippines Bureau of Agriculture. He was director of the agency when he left the Philippines in 1916 to join the Agriculture Department. He returned to the Philippines in 1930 and again after the Second World War as an adviser to the Philippines government.

At the time of his retirement from the Agriculture Department in 1945 he was senior technologist in charge of investigating all plant fibers except cotton in the Bureau of Plant Industry.

Dr. Edwards was a member of the Cosmos Club.

A bachelor, he is survived by a sister, Miss Edith H. Edwards of Chesterfield, Mass., and Melbourne, Fla.

The daughter of Albert Warren Kelsey and Jeannette Garr Washburn Kelsey of Chestnut Hill, Mrs. Darling was educated in Switzerland, France, and at Springfield School, Chestnut Hill. She was a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania law school and was admitted to practice in that State.

Survivors include her husband, Joseph Robinson McNab Darling; four children, Mrs. George Dolan, Mrs. John B. Prizer, Colonel Joseph W. Darling and A. McNab Darling-McNab; and several brothers and sisters, including Kate Kelsey and Albert Kelsey, of Philadelphia.

22 Tenants Rap Service At Apartment

Elevator service at a seven-story local apartment house has been so poor that a 76-year-old tenant had to hire men to carry his wife to their fifth-floor apartment.

That and other testimony critical of services and facilities at the New Berne Apartments, 1115 12th st. nw., was given before Judge Frank H. Myers in Landlord and Tenant Court yesterday as the first of 22 of the building's 28 tenants were heard.

The 22 tenants are asking imposition of $50 civil statutory penalties on Charles H. Chidakel, owner, for failure to provide minimum standards of service since last fall.

Eviction Suit Filed

Meanwhile, Isadore Brill, attorney for Chidakel, has filed suits for eviction against four tenants and will file similar suits against the rest in 30 days, he said.

Their eviction is being sought, Brill said, under Section 5b4 of the Rent Act, "to substantially alter and remodel" the premises to comply with the Egress Act. At present the building has open elevator shafts and other features which do not comply with the act's new building fire and safety regulations, and which would leave the owner open to prosecution after July 1.

Edgar R. Robey, 76, Apt. 52, testified that on three occasions he had returned home with his wife in the evening and, after vainly trying to get elevator service, had telephoned Hysong's Funeral Home to get two attendants to carry her up the stairs in a chair to the fifth floor apartment.

John Joseph Sullivan, who lives in Apt. 2 with his wife and two sons, and whose daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lehrfeld, occupy Apt. 32, testified that when he complained that the refrigerator made too much noise and ran almost continuously, he was told if it is running it is probably all right.

Elevator Service Hit

Sullivan's son, Maurice M., told of waiting 20 to 25 minutes for elevator service. He said that his mother, 64, was suffering from Bell's palsy and had been staying with Mrs. Lehrfeld the past 15 weeks.

Maurice Sullivan said his father was not allowed by the doctor to walk upstairs, and because of poor elevator service was unable to see her at times. This, Maurice testified, made his mother very nervous.

During the morning session Charles F. Heer, 65, of Apt. 1, said the lack of hot water had caused him to go to Hyattsville for a bath.

Besides Robey, Heer and the two Sullivans, those testifying included: William G. Haynes, 85, and his wife, Bessie, 80; and Miss Louise J. Bates, 82.

The hearing will be resumed at 1:30 p.m. Thursday.

Dr. Stephenson Rites Held in San Francisco

Dr. Edward B. Stephenson, 67, chief of the mechanics division of the Naval Research Laboratory, died of a heart attack Friday in San Francisco, it was reported here yesterday.

Dr. Stephenson

He had attended an electronic conference in California and was visiting his son at the time of his death. He was scheduled to return to his home at 1912 37th st. nw., Wednesday.

Dr. Stephenson had specialized in underwater sound research and for his work in developing quartz crystals in underwater sound detecting devices, received a Navy award of $2000 in 1931. These crystals, housed in domes projecting beneath naval vessels, were used to locate enemy submarines.

Born in Illinois

Born in 1882 in Sparta, Ill., Dr. Stephenson was graduated from Knox College, Galesburg, Ill., and the University of Illinois.

A District resident since 1917, he served in World War I as a Captain, Engineer Reserves, USA, and after the war joined the Office of the Chief of Engineers, as a physicist.

In 1925 he joined the Navy Department, where he remained until his death. In addition to his scientific duties, Dr. Stephenson served on various Civil Service and Navy Department boards throughout his career. In 1946 he was made vice chairman of a Board of Civil Service Examiners for Scientific and Technical Personnel.

List of Affiliations

Dr. Stephenson was a member of the American Academy for the Advancement of Science, the American Physical Society, the Washington Philosophical Society, the Acoustical Society of America, Phi Delta Theta, Gamma Alpha, Sigma Xi, Phi Beta Kappa, the Geophysical Union and the Cosmos Club.

He is survived by his widow, Adeline Alexander Stephenson, and one son, in California. Funeral services and burial were held in San Francisco.

Prince Louis of Monaco Dies After Giving Grandson Power

Monte Carlo, Monaco, May 9 (U.P.).—Prince Louis II, 78, one of the world's richest men, died today, ending his stormy 27-year reign over Europe's smallest country.

The prince, who had been ill for some time with uremic poisoning, only last week delegated his ruling powers to his 26-year-old grandson, Prince Rainier, the heir apparent.

Monaco's entire economy depended on the tourist trade and was closely tuned to the clicking of the roulette wheels in the world-famous Casino at Monte Carlo. Within minutes after his death, the croupiers at the Casino called out their famous "The Day Is Ended," and the gaming tables were closed in mourning.

Born in Germany

Prince Louis was born in Baden-Baden, Germany, on July 12, 1870, the son of Prince Louis, first monarch of Monaco, and his first wife, Lady Mary Douglas Hamilton, an English noblewoman.

He fought in the French Foreign Legion in World War I, and attained the rank of major in the French Fifth Army after being cited several times for heroism.

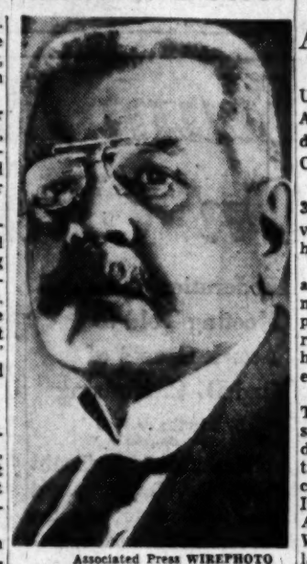
He was serving with the French army in Silesia when news of his father's death and his succession to the throne reached him in 1922.

From the start, Louis and his people had many differences. There was widespread grumbling when he began spending more and more of his time in France.

The prince dissolved the two branches of the legislature after voting in 1930, and proclaimed a dictatorship which has lasted since. Louis, then a brigadier general, decided it was time to retire from the French army. He had spent most of his time in Monaco since that crisis. Relations between him and his subjects grew more amicable.

Married Twice

He was married twice, the first time to a French commoner while he was a young Foreign Legion officer in North Africa and the second time in 1946 to Ghislaine Dommages, a naturalized citizen of Monaco.



Associated Press WIREPHOTO
PRINCE LOUIS II
Ruler of Monaco since 1922

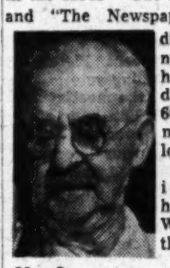
The early marriage was never recognized in Monaco, but from the union came a daughter, the Princess Charlotte Louise.

She abandoned her rights of succession shortly after her marriage in 1920 to Count Pierre Melchoir de Polignac. Later, however, she reclaimed her rights in favor of her son, Prince Ranier, who was born in 1923.

Although the permanent population of Monaco is around 23,000, only about 2100 are Monacan subjects. The rest are citizens of foreign countries, mostly France.

F. H. Lancaster Dies; Former Publisher

Frank H. Lancaster, 86, publisher of newspaper trade journals in the 1890s—"The Fourth Estate" and "The Newspaper Maker"—died Sunday night at the home of his daughters at 6615 Harlan pl. nw., after a long illness.



Mr. Lancaster

Memorial services will be held at 5 p. m. Wednesday at the address.

Lancaster had lived in Washington for some 30 years, in retirement except for free-lance writing.

He led a varied career. His first newspaper job on the San Francisco Chronicle paid him $15 a week and a horse to ride—"they fed the horse," he liked to say. This insufficient salary led him to take up gold mining on the side—five days a week, keeping up his newspapering at the same time.

Starts Factory in East

After awhile he returned east—he was born in Syracuse, N. Y.—and started a factory making machine screws. Other businesses he operated included one making split-bamboo fishing rods and a red cedar shingle mill. He was in business in such widely separated places as Denver, Seattle and Chicago.

One of his newspaper jobs was on the Rocky Mountain News in Denver, where he hit town one day with a nickel. He learned that the city editor who had promised him a job had been fired in the meantime.

"I had a riotous breakfast on the nickel," he once related, "and landed another job as timekeeper."

Transferred to London

He investigated testimonials for a patent medicine firm, then was off to London as representative of an embossing and printing press firm.

Back in journalism, he started "The Fourth Estate" and "The Newspaper Maker." For a while he also had his own advertising agency in New York.

Death Sunday night of an acute coronary occlusion came after a long illness. Lancaster's body has been cremated.

Survivors include two daughters, Miss Margaret Caldwell Lancaster and Mrs. William McMillian Palmieri, both of 6615 Harlan pl. nw.

Attorney General Rules Out Funds Transfer Plan

Richmond, Va., May 9 (AP).—Virginia's attorney general ruled today Governor Tuck does not have authority to put money into the State Literary Fund by deficit authorization from the general fund surplus.

The opinion was contained in a reply to questions put to Attorney General J. Lindsay Almond, jr., by State Senator Charles R. Fenwick of Arlington.

Generally, Almond held, counties may borrow school construction money from State retirement and sinking funds, but they must comply with the constitutional requirement of first obtaining the qualified voters' approval in a local referendum.

He also said cities may borrow from the same funds, but without referendum approval unless their charters specify otherwise.

Almond's ruling supported the opinion expressed here unofficially several weeks ago when the question of putting general fund money into the Literary Fund to aid counties facing school construction emergencies was first brought up by Delegate Robert Whitehead of Nelson.

Copies of Almond's opinion were sent today to Fenwick and Whitehead.

Ralph Totten Dies; Artist And Diplomat

Gala Show Celebrates Thrift Shop's Birthday

By Peggy Preston

WASHINGTON'S Thrift Shop celebrated its twentieth birthday yesterday afternoon with a high-styled "three-ring circus" benefit, staged at the Statler Hotel.

Props for the gala program over-flowed the huge Presidential Room and spilled into the outside corridor where attractive booths were set up by the six charity organizations that receive benefits from the Thrift Shop. Hundreds of guests, headed by Mrs. Truman, wives of Cabinet members and diplomatic representatives, tarried among the booths before settling down to the entertainment program.

A review of bridal fashions, presented by Julius Garfinckel & Co., was interspersed with a musical program to suit the tastes of all and sundry. There was Vic Damone, youthful darling of the bobby sox crowd and disc jockey contingent, to sing new and old ballads; two pretty, dark-haired sisters, Joana and Louise Leschin presenting a piano duet; and Lawrence Tibbett, who closed the program with a selection of classic melodies.

Mrs. Richard Harless, the former Meredith Howard, was mistress of ceremonies, closing the event with the presentation of prizes.

For the June Bride

THE bridal show covered practically every type of wedding from the formal Cathedral ceremony, to a "quickie" in the office of a justice. It opened with a garden scene, the bride and her attendants cool and graceful in white organdie over pink taffeta. In a chapel ceremony, small and semi-formal, the gown was of white pique with picturesque neckline and little train. She wore a wisp of a veil, held to her head with a cap of white pique leaves. Nylon net was worn for a traditional wedding and satin for the cathedral.

There were outfits for mother, too; and surprisingly enough, for the often forgotten bridegroom. The flower girl had her inning wearing white organdie and carrying a fluffy parasol. Sisters, best friends, guests were present at each ceremony, in correct attire.

Honeymoon wardrobes for both south or north of the border, for points east and west, were presented, painting a complete clothes picture for the June bride.

Down Memory Lane

MR. TIBBETT, making one of his frequent appearances at a Thrift Shop benefit, sang the familiar "None But the Lonely Heart," and "If Love Hath Entered Thy Heart," and highlighted his program with the aria "Vision Fugitive" from the opera "Herodiane" by Massenet.

The duo-pianists, Joana and Louise, entertained charmingly during intermission with "Reminiscenses of Don Juan" by Mozart and arranged by Lizt; and for their encore, played "Cake Walk" by Tansman. Mr. Damone, switched from purely modern ballads to present an old-timer, "If You Were the Only Girl In the World," a tune that is guaranteed to swing us back at least 20 years along memory lane.

Adm., Mrs. Bass Feted at Dinner

Tomorrow evening, preceding the concert to be given by Mme. Chautemps, Mr. and Mrs. Hollis Imes will entertain again at a dinner, this time in the Palladian Room of the Shoreham Hotel. Guests tomorrow will be Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Wadden, Mr. and Mrs. Francis W. Hill, jr., Mr. and Mrs. Harry R. An interesting group of paintings by "Pop" Hart are on exhibit at the United Nations Club, and will remain though June 8. Opening day yesterday was by invitation, with tea from 5 to 7. Committee members for the exhibit are Miss Agnes DeLano, Mrs. J. Burke Wilkinson, Franz Bader, Mrs. Robert Portner, C. B. S. Durham and John Gernand.

NAVY BLUE marquisette was suggested for the guest at the garden wedding in the showing of bridal fashions yesterday at the Thrift Shop benefit in the Presidential Room of the Statler Hotel. Ceil Chapman designed this frock which is ankle length and cut with three tiers of pressed tucks at the V-shaped neckline. With it the model wears a cartwheel hat of navy blue straw, the brim trimmed with a circle of blue lace. The show, presented by Julius Garfinckel & Co., included costumes for every type of wedding, ranging from the informal to a traditional formal church ceremony

First Lady Is Hostess at Tea For Society of Navy Sponsors

MRS. HARRY TRUMAN was hostess to members of the Society of Sponsors at a tea at Blair House yesterday afternoon. The society, all of whose members have christened Navy ships, opened its annual two day convention here yesterday.

The First Lady was costumed in pale blue with a corsage of pink sweet peas as she received more than 100 of the Sponsors. Tea was served in the dining room and drawing room where arrangements of snapdragons, gladioli, delphinium and baby roses centered the tables.

Among the guests were Mrs. Julian Smith, president; Mrs. James Edward Palmer of Atlantic City, N. J., vice president; Mrs. Ernest Gruening, wife of the Alaskan Governor, and Mrs. W. S. Pye, of Coronado, Calif.

At the business meeting earlier at the Mayflower Hotel, members voted to revive the four regional groups of the society, and Mrs. Leland Webb was chosen to head the Southeastern Division with headquarters in Los Angeles, Calif. Other regional directors will be appointed later.

Jamming Proves Soviet Fears Voice of America, Allen Tells Clubwomen

By Genevieve Reynolds

"SIXTY-ONE transmitters now are beaming the Voice of America program 24 hours daily into the Soviet Union," Assistant Secretary of State George V. Allen said yesterday in a speech before representatives of 29 national women's organizations. The luncheon meeting was sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary at the Mayflower Hotel.

The Assistant Secretary told the clubwomen that the extra transmitters were put into effect three nights ago in answer to the Soviet's terrific jamming of our programs. To illustrate the effective organization behind the jamming of radio programs, Allen said that in 12 seconds after the United States of America had shifted its wavelengths they had been caught by the Soviets.

Greatest Tribute

Evidence that the Voice of America program is effectively reaching the Russian people is the jamming program initiated by the Soviet government on April 24, according to Secretary Allen. "So Russia handed us on a silver platter," he said, "the greatest tribute possible to the Voice of America."

The Soviet Union chose April 24 for its jamming attack, the Secretary believes, so that the Russian people would receive only the Soviet version of plans to lift the Berlin blockade.

The Assistant Secretary said that in the Soviet Union there are two and one half million sets capable of receiving the Voice of America program.

Discussing the information-radio programs plus the cultural exchange conducted by the State Department to interpret this country's way of life, Allen pointed to the multiplicity of languages involved. "It's very unfortunate we don't have an international language," he commented, adding "I hope English will be the international language."

Aid to Servicemen

General Muir Fairchild, Vice Chief of Staff of the U. S. Air Force, called upon the women's organizations of the Nation to support this country's security effort by making the 1½ million service men and women a part of community life.

To accomplish the goal, General Fairchild suggested that the organization stimulate local communities to provide for the recreation, religious and moral welfare of the men and women in uniform; to provide decent living quarters, and to keep in personal contact with those of the armed services.

"It is important that no gulf created between the community and the military," he explained. "The interest that we show in these young men and women will largely determine their future attitude toward society."

For Security Program

"Peace is our problem. Its foundations are freedom, justice and democracy. Let our labors be exerted there," asserted Mrs. Hubert A. Goode of Portland, Oreg., national president of the American Legion Auxiliary, in her welcoming speech to the representatives of women organizations and auxiliary officers.

"We hope that more of the Nation's great women's organizations will add their voice to ours in demanding security for our homes and families," she continued. "The only kind of security which has meaning in a world where aggression still rolls over the weak and unready is the security of prepared strength."

Mrs. Goode said that the auxiliary, like the American Legion, campaigned for a program of national defense adequate to the realities of world conditions.

One way to keep the Nation strong is to develop capable leadership of our youth, according to the auxiliary head. "We realize clearly that guns and ships, planes and bombs, can never alone give this Nation of ours security from war and loss of our cherished freedom," she explained. "Enduring peace and freedom must be based on the sound foundation of democracy."

Perry Brown of Beaumont, Tex., national commander of the American Legion, stressed the need for a large citizen army in this Nation's preparedness program.

Occasion was a special luncheon sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary at the Mayflower Hotel

Brilliant Leader

East, West Civilizations Do Meet in Mme. Pandit, India's New Ambassadress

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

VIJAYA LAKSHMI PANDIT, the first feminine Ambassador accredited to the United States, is the 48-year-old sister of India's great leader, Prince Minister Nehru.

Mme. Pandit, of the flashing eye and eloquent tongue, is no stranger in the United States. She moved with great grace in her vivid, flowing saris, through the first United Nations Conference at San Francisco, before India was a member, and later, in 1946, was the first and only women to lead a national delegation to the United Nations General Assembly. Since then, she has led her delegation with repeated success, in 1947 and 1948.

"Firsts" are no novelty to Her Excellency, the Ambassadress. She was first woman Provincial Minister in India, her newly independent country's first envoy to Soviet Russia.

As leader of the woman's movement in India, Mme. Pandit is credited with accomplishing more than any other Indian woman to improve her countrywomen's condition, socially, economically, politically. Between her domestic and political life she has found time to write two books, "So I Became a Minister" and "My Prison Days." She has been imprisoned three times (for six, 11, 15-month terms) for her participation in Mahatma Ghandi's Congress Movement.

Two Civilizations

BY achieving public distinction, Mme. Pandit adheres to family tradition. Her father, Motilal Nehru, was a member of one of India's great and wealthy families. Born a Brahmin, he was reared in British manner, became a famous barrister. In later life, his old admiration for the British waned, and he became devoted to Ghandi's cause, which was India's freedom.

His children were brought up in two civilizations. Weekdays they spent with their British governess, wore Western clothes, ate European food. (Mme. Pandit even had an Eastern nickname, Nan.) Sundays, they put on national dress, ate national food, acted as good Indians.

So completely British was Mme. Pandit's upbringing that she wrote English at 5, didn't begin the study of her own language until she was 9. With her father, Mme. Pandit made several trips to England.

Conventionally, she was engaged at 12, married at 14. She chose her own husband, however. He was a barrister, a Sanskrit scholar who translated many books of poems. He disliked politics, but his sense of duty compelled him to do his part to help India's struggle for independence. He died four years ago.

Three Daughters

MME. PANDIT has three daughters. The two elder girls studied at Wellesley from 1943 to 1945. The youngest, Rita, who is still in her teens, accompanied her mother to Washington. Chandraleka and Nayantara are both married. 'Tara's" marriage to Gautam Sehgal, son of R. B. Bashi Ram, took place a few months ago at Anand Bhawan, the famous Nehru house, recently made a gift to the nation, at Allahabad.

Mme. Pandit has achieved so many remarkable things it is difficult to single out any special success. However, it's generally agreed that her strength of personality and ability of expression was responsible for winning an outstanding victory for India on the South African issue concerning discrimination against her countrymen.

Her handling of the difficult assignment as Ambassador to Russia has been tactful, outstanding. During her two years in Moscow she learned a passable Russian, another string to her bow of many languages.

There, you have her, Washington's first woman

Psychology Teacher Says That Intelligence Is One of Top Four Factors Essential to Happy Marriage; This Starts Girl Thinking

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Recently our psychology class was discussing factors essential to a happy marriage. Our teacher said that intelligence is one of the four top factors necessary.

Now some people think that "intelligence" means a college education; and I have heard that an ambitious man would tire of a homebody wife who had only a high school education. But I don't agree with those views.

My theory is that if a girl would concentrate more of her time and interest in the home, attending to the things that make a better home, then the men—both the ambitious types and the ordinary workers—would be better satisfied than if she had gone through college.

She Doubts Value of College Study

A PROFESSIONAL man wants his wife to help him, of course, not only with problems he has to meet, but also to be able to soothe his nerves when he has had a difficult day. This kind of help takes intelligence, yes; but not a college degree!

When a man comes home from work he is too tired to have to clean rooms and cook supper while his cute little college graduate is busy at the office working overtime. If a girl is going to be married, she might as well make up her mind to adjust herself to home life, I say. What do you think? Should a girl have college training or just plain intelligence to be a good housewife? O. P.

Consider Meaning of 'Intelligence'

DEAR O. P.: My dictionary defines intelligence thus: "The power of understanding. The power of meeting any situation, especially any new situation, successfully by proper behavior adjustments. The ability to recognize the inter-relationships of existing facts, so as to guide action to a desired goal."

Also intelligence is described as "the faculty of knowing, reasoning, judging, etc., as distinguished from the faculty of feeling."

You say some people confuse intelligence with a college education. Well, maybe. In such case, the foregoing definitions of intelligence should help them realize their mistake; for it seems they are expressing a "feeling" instead of recognizing the individual as he is. It appears that they themselves lack the faculty of grasping facts; of knowing, reasoning, judging, etc.

College Training Alerts Intelligence

IN THEORY, a college is a society of scholars incorporated for study or instruction, especially in the higher branches of knowledge; or an educational institution that aims to provide professional instruction, as in medicine, engineering, theology, etc.

Also, in theory, an applicant for college training is supposed to bring the native intelligence to grasp the teaching offered. But actually a good many inferior intellects manage to infiltrate colleges and get a degree, without manifesting any "power of understanding" then or later. Ergo, college experience doesn't necessarily equate intelligence.

However, an intelligent person given a college education may be readier for successful adjustments to life than an intelligent person who hasn't had higher teaching. He has a backlog of knowledge to guide him that the intelligent person without college training may lack to start. So let's not sniff at college education per se.

Now about the kind of "housewives" men want—it's idle to theorize. In general a man's environment determines his choice—indeed his range of choice—of wife. College men tend to marry college girls—or girls of comparable social rank—due to propinquity; just as men of high school education or less usually marry in their accustomed walk of life. And the "larger" the mind of the man, the less dogmatic is he about how his wife should adapt herself to him.

Rep. Ribicoff Offers 10-Point Plan to Develop Truman Program for World's Backward Areas

By Nicha Soure

PRESIDENT TRUMAN'S "bold new programs" to develop the backward areas of the world is the outstanding contribution of his administration, according to Representative A. A. Ribicoff.

The Connecticut Representative addressing the weekly luncheon meeting of the Woman's National Democratic Club yesterday, advanced ten factors of his own to put the Truman program into effect.

The fourth point in the President's inaugural address advocated "a brand-new program, making available to backward parts of the world the benefits of our scientific advances and industrial progress."

The legislative program to be based on Point 4 should include the following factors, according to Representative Ribicoff:

No Exploitation

1. There must not be exploitation of peoples and resources on the basis of imperialism and colonialism. Political, social and educational advancement should go hand in hand with economic development.

2. The program should be flexible, should consider the variance of peoples, conditions, background and aspirations. (We must take into account, Representativve Ribicoff said, that the people of central Africa would not be interested in a television set or an automobile. He reminded the clubwomen that the United States was the end product of 300 years of civilization and our necessities and luxuries would not be adaptable to the needs and wants of a primitive people).

3. Technical missions to foreign countries to survey promising projects, such as rubber, drugs, and oil that would mean future economic development.

4. Participation of local capital and management with American capital and management, subject to protection against the formation of cartels.

5. Government-to-government financing of basic public facilities, such as roads and dams. (Private interests could not finance a five-million-dollar road to a site where oil had been found, the speaker explained. But, he continued, the government of the country could borrow the sum from the United States, benefit itself by a better means of transportation and benefit the world by allowing private interests to develop natural resources.)

Private Initiative

6. Encouragement of private investment and "know-how" to the fullest extent in the development program.

7. Bilateral treaties providing for non-discrimination as to taxes, currency and rules for decent business behavior, plus the right to withdraw reasonable earnings over a reasonable period of time.

8. United States guaranty of convertibility of investment and profits into United States currency on a fair and reasonable basis.

9. United States guaranty against loss due to expropriation and nationalization, backed by bilateral treaties with right to take disputes to the International Court.

10. Coordination within the State Department of representatives from Commerce, Agriculture, Interior, Treasury, Export-Import Bank, International Bank, under a single administrator.

According to Representative Ribicoff the qualities of the administrator who would combine the talents, contributions and advice of these departments would be "understanding, imagination and a tough mind." Representative Ribicoff thought Paul Hoffman was the man who could do the job.

Charity is necessary (UNRRA was wholly a relief program and ECA was partial relief), the Connecticut Representative concluded, "but you cannot build and develop an economy by charity."

Mrs. Julien Friant, president, introduced the speaker.

About Pork-Fried Rice

Woud you print a recipe for Chinese Pork Fried Rice? B. R.

Is this the recipe you want?

Chinese Fried Rice

9 cups left-over boiled or steamed rice
½ pound pork shreds
2 tablespoons soy sauce
2 heaping tablespoons lard
1 teaspoon salt
3 onions, shredded
3 sweet peppers, shredded (optional)

Add steamed or cooked rice to hot lard in skillet over hot fire. Stir 1 to 2 minutes and take out rice. Place where it will stay warm and then mix meat shreds with soy sauce. Heat more lard in skillet and put in meat shreds and stir for 1 minute. Put in onions and peppers and stir 2 more minutes. Take out and put rice on service plate and place cooked shreds over rice. Or, the meat and rice may be mixed together.

Is there any establishment in Washington that supplies or makes covers for glider cushions? Ours are in good condition and only need covering. Would such covers be practical in plastic? Or would some other material be more durable in the event they could be made? W. K. B.

Firms listed under "upholsterers" in the yellow pages of the telephone book will recover the cushions for you. The material called leatherette or plastic leather would be the most practical and durable for this purpose. These materials come in several colors. I suggest you call several of the upholstery firms to get estimates and discuss the job with them.

Kindly print a recipe for cooking fish roe (shad). E. S.

Broiled Shad Roe

Use 3 shad roe; brush with butter or margarine. Place on a rack in broiler pan close to the source of heat. Broil in moderately hot broiler for 4 minutes, season with salt and pepper. Turn and broil 5 to 8 minutes longer. Season and sprinkle with finely chopped parsley or Maitre d'Hotel Butter. Serve immediately with wedges of lemon.

Maitre D'Hotel Butter

2 teaspoons minced parsley
1½ tablespoons lemon juice
½ Teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper

Cream butter until soft; add parsley, seasonings and lemon juice until fluffy. Spread on broiled shad roe.

I have taken a bedroom suite made of walnut wood, finished dark, out of storage where it has been for over six years. All pieces now have a greyish appearance. The set was originally very beautifully finished, hand rubbed and waxed. Is there any way the original beauty of the finish can be restored without a complete removal of the original finish? The cost of having the suite redone is prohibitive. O. P. C.

Since the furniture was waxed before storing, there is a possibility that the greyish color can be removed by completely removing the wax. As the wax is removed, any imbedded dirt will also be removed, further improving the appearance. To remove the wax, rub the furniture with a soft absorbent cloth which has been moistened with cleaning and polishing wax (so labeled). Continually shift the cloth so that you constantly use a clean, moistened portion of the cloth next to the furniture. You may have to go over the piece several times to get it entirely clean. If this restores the original color, apply a very light coat of wax and, when it is dry, rub repeatedly to make it gleam.

If the wax treatment doesn't remove the greyish appearance, try wiping it with a mixture of one tablespoon of cider vinegar to one quart of water. Rub it on with a soft cloth, rubbing in the direction of the grain and then wiping completely dry with another soft cloth. This treatment can be followed with wax if it completely removes the discoloration.

I have heard so much about Seven Minute Icing with marshmallows but have not been able to get the recipe. Could you help me or one of your many readers? C. A. L.

Marshmallow Seven-Minute Icing

2 egg whites
1½ cups sugar
Dash of salt
1 cup diced marshmallows
1-3 cup water
2 teaspoons light corn syrup
1 teaspoon vanilla

Beat together egg whites, sugar, salt, water and corn syrup in top part of double boiler; place over boiling water and continue beating with rotary beater about 7 minutes or until frosting thickens and holds its shape when dropped from beater. Remove from boiling water, add flavoring and continue beating until stiff enough to spread. Just before spreading onto cake, add marshmallows. Approximate yield: frosting for tops and sides of 2 layers (9-inch) or 2 dozen cup cakes.

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

Recently a famous psychiatrist wrote an article in which he said in effect that the job of being a father was going to the dogs. He told how little time dads were spending with their children and deplared the amount of influence that mothers were having.

We all know that family life is different than it was when most of us lived on farms. We all know that the demands of modern living often keep fathers extremely busy outside the home. From where I stand, however, the picture doesn't look so gloomy as it does to our psychiatrist friend.

I see a lot of ex-G.I. fathers who are taking a big part in the care of even their infant children. I hear of fathers who don't let business or professional matters interfere with their jobs of being pals to the youngsters. I know more and more prospective fathers are taking courses and reading books that are helping them in getting ready to be fathers. There are many indications that father is coming back into his own.

How does it look to you? I'd be glad to hear about ways in which men are doing a good job of being fathers. And I'm sure FAMILY SCRAPBOOK readers would like me to share some of your ideas and experiences with them.

The Play's the Thing

International Drama Festival Teaches Better Understanding

MORE than a hundred boys and girls studying at the Children's Studios are learning to understand better the peoples of other lands by playing roles in an international drama festival.

The youngsters, aged 3 to 12, are presenting a series of plays honoring Great Britain, Ireland, the Netherlands, China and Russia which will conclude with the presentation of the American play, "Anne of Green Gables" on Wednesday, 8:15 p. m.

The productions are being presented in the auditorium of the studios at 3815-17 Livingston st. nw., before an invited audience including children from the five embassies whose countries are being honored in the festival.

A selection of American children's classics will be presented to the embassy children to be sent to the libraries in the capitals of their countries. The books will bear inscriptions inviting the readers to write to the students at the Children's Studios.

Four years ago, the youngsters gave a play honoring the Netherlands and presented a group of books to the embassy guests. The books were sent to The Hague and a brisk and successful correspondence between the two countries ensued. It was this that prompted the American children to ask their director, Mrs. Rose Robison Cowen, if they might present plays about other countries.

During the war, the students at the studios contributed 500 costumes to British children for use in their plays. The costumes were shipped around England from one group to another, and Christmas plays were postponed several months in some cases in order to have the costumes to wear in cloth-rationed Britain.

British children wrote to thank the American children for the costumes and started a correspondence which has been continuing hot and heavy ever since, and inspired a British-style tea at the studios with tea (and tea cozies), scones and other English tea table delicacies.

At their most impressionable years, these youngsters are absorbing the cultures, and traditions of peoples all over the world. And enjoying it! Their zest and interest are boundless.

They love the bright costumes. They are even making and painting their own scenery. They enjoy the odd flavor of the folk songs, foreign music and native dances. The youngsters are proud of their growing familiarity with language expressions from the different countries—they can order a complete meal in Russian. They are learning about different phases of life in other lands—the foods the people eat and how they run their governments.

But most important, they are learning that despite the differences, the peoples of all nations are basically the same. They are growing in the knowledge that all peoples have a dignity and a right to their beliefs.

One on the Aisle—

Bobby Driscoll's A Regular Sort

By Richard L. Coe

BOBBY DRISCOLL, a 12-year-old who's been making movies off and on for the past six years, turns out to be a cheerful youngster without any of that sticky precocity one seems fated to expect.

Normally I cringe at the though of meeting child movie stars. I'm all for them on the screen, but several of the little lambs I've met in the flesh twitch while Mama pulls the strings. Usually I'm a nervous wreck afterward.

But Bob—on the verge of his teens, he doesn't like being called Bobby—is different, and so is his mother, a relaxing Iowa lady who once was a school teacher. They were in town yesterday with his favorite teacher, Kay Ray, of the Los Angeles public school system, and tomorrow you'll see him on Keith's screen in a swell picture called "The Window." A bit ago you saw him in Walt Disney's "So Dear to My Heart."

One reason Bob and his Mom are so easy and relaxed is that Bob's in the movies without having tried to bust in the usual way. When he was about 5, the Driscolls moved from Cedar Rapids, Iowa, because doctors said the California climate would be easier on Dad's sinus. They used to go to a Pasadena barber for Bob's haircuts, and this chap, William Kadel, kept telling the Driscolls that their boy ought to go in the movies. Kadel was an old vaudevillian and his son worked as a studio extra.

The Driscolls didn't take it very seriously. After all, gas rationing was on and they didn't want to waste theirs by a long, useless haul. But an agent kept after them, and when 40-odd youngsters were lined up looking pretty, bowing and scraping, there was 5½-year-old Bobby wondering what a big boat was doing on the dry cement floor of a studio.

Warns Of Phony Intraductions

Mrs. Driscoll's emphasis in telling this lies in the phony setups that flourish on the Coast which promise to get children into pictures. Some parents, she says, cut down on food and proper housing to spend money on all sorts of lessons. "If a studio likes a youngster, it will give him all the lessons he needs," she remarks. "Forcing children into pictures just doesn't work."

As a result, Bob is much like your own 12-year-old. He goes to public school when he's not making a picture. When he is, some teacher like Mrs. Ray is assigned to him by the studio and he's made to keep up with his class.

The most glamourous event of Bob's week is going to the movies on Saturdays. He's pretty knowing about what is thrown, by whom, at whom during the small fry movies, and he's got a bag of yarns about the trick theater seats play on people, particularly small people.

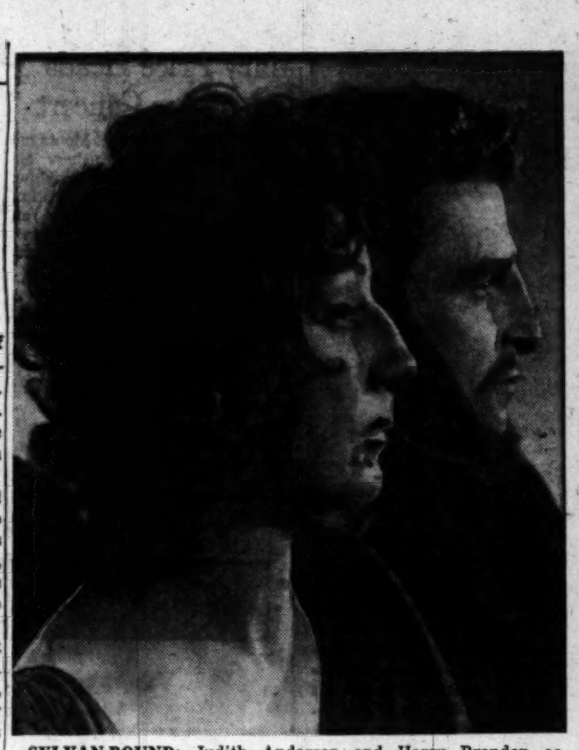
Bland Manhattan

Best of all I like his description of what happened to him in Kansas City's Hotel Muhlenberg a few days ago. When members of the press were having some snorters, Bob ordered a "Shirley Temple Cocktail." This is nine-tenths Seven Up, a few drops of grenadine and a cherry.

"You put it in a cocktail glass, see?" says Bob. "And everyone thinks it's a Manhattan. Gosh, the people in Kansas City were scandalized!"

Mrs. Ray, too, is interesting. To be on the studio list of teachers it's necessary to have additional credits, but she's still under the public school system. When teachers are needed for child actors, they're paid by the studio. The kids take their lessons seriously because they know that if they don't they'll have to study after work's over. It seems to be a good, workable system and does away with any suggestion that the children are wage slaves at the cost of their studies.

This summer Bob's going to England, where he'll be the only Yank in Walt Disney's Technicolored British production of "Treasure Island." Like any kid, he's looking forward to the trip by figuring out where he'll be when and exactly how long it will take to get there from Pasadena.



SYLVAN-BOUND: Judith Anderson and Harry Brandon as Medea and Jason in Robinson Jeffers' adaptation of Euripedes' "Medea," which will play one performance only on Wednesday night, May 18, at the open-air Sylvan Theater on the Monument Grounds. Seats are now on sale at the Willard Hotel agency for this first professional play to visit Washington in 42 weeks

The Lyons Den

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK.—Last week the press associations published the story of Danny Kaye's injuries in a traffic accident during his visit to the home of G. B. Shaw. Kaye was accompanied at the time by his personal press-agent, Ed Dukoff. Kaye's injuries no doubt were genuine and his agony sincere—but Dukoff was well aware of the Harpo Marx story, the day Marx and Alexander Woollcott visited Shaw in the south of France. Marx took them for a drive in his car, and Woollcott and Shaw complained of his reckless driving. "I'm hoping for a traffic accident," explained Harpo, "so that people will read about the kind of company I keep."

Some years ago, in a small auction gallery in Manhattan, Paul Gallico bought a painting he liked, for $25. The painting was just shipped to Gallico's home in Devon, together with certifications that it is a genuine Vermeer . . . Celeste Holm will lead an entertainment troupe, under Army auspices, on a one-month air-tour of Army bases seldom reached by entertainers. They'll perform in Labrador, Tripoli, Greece, Morocco, Greenland and Paris.

Michael Tood, the Broadway producer, lectured at the Yale Drama School last week. His subject was showmanship. "The elementary thing to remember is that you've got to make the customers show up at the box-office," Todd told the students. "If they show up, you make money, and if you make money, you're a success. A showman is a guy who does things to make the customers show up" . . . Todd, whose son is a student at Amherst, was asked why he didn't lecture at Amherst. "It's tough for a guy to impress someone who's known him all his life," said Todd. "I can't go to Amherst for the same reason that George M. Cohan never wanted to play his home town, Providence."

Aubrey Eban said, at the first anniversary of the state of Israel: "For over 2000 years we've celebrated the exodus of Israel from Egypt. This year we celebrate the exodus of Egypt from Israel" . . . For the first time in its history, Sigma Delta Chi's annual newspaper awards will go to a comic-strip, Ed Dodd's "Mark Trail."

Postlude

James Wolfe Outstanding In Recital

By Paul Hume

James Wolfe played a recital last night in Phillips Gallery which was in many ways outstanding.

A pianist who lists the rather standard program Wolfe chose for his first appearance here since the war, must have plenty of real stuff if he is to avoid monotony. Wolfe never approached a level less than thoroughly satisfying.

He is such a master of the essentials of music that he does by instinct many things other pianists never achieve. His rhythm, constant sense of tone color, use of the pedal, and his absorption in whatever he is playing, make him unusual in a season of many keyboard performers. Wolfe is artistic at every point, and exciting in those ways that the solid musician and assured technican can excite.

He played Beethoven's early sonata in D major with such tenderness, and an authority that automatically placed the work in its proper sphere. Turning to Bela Bartok's similarly early Suite, he approached it as a musical composition of undoubted worth and not as a stunt.

In so doing, he avoided the nervous effect so often substituted for a penetrating conception of the structure of this unprofound yet skillful music. If James Wolfe has a flair for bravura music, he was willing to pass it up last night in favor of subtler and more rewarding virtues of sensitive phrasing and touch.

We would like to hear him play more kinds of music, reaching up to his own time to play modern Americans as he did the Bartok, and to give French impressionists his keen gift for expressive shading. Because James Wolfe plays the piano in ways which command our highest admiration.

Didn't Know Gun Was Loaded, Wife Pleads in Slaying

Yorktown, Va., May 9 (AP).—Mrs. Ivy Patterson Charles testified in York Circuit Court today she did not know the pistol with which she is accused of killing her husband was loaded.

Her husband, Winston H. Charles, 45-year-old Newport News cigar store operator, was shot four times January 29.

Mrs. Charles pleaded innocent. She said her husband had been drinking and that she and her mother had tried to get him to go to bed.

"He handed me a gun and told me, 'shoot me and I'll go lie down," Mrs. Charles said.

She said she took the gun and pulled the trigger. She said she heard no report.

"He turned. I pulled the trigger twice more. His face turned pale and I ran to him as he started slumping to the floor. I helped him down to the floor and put a pillow under his head," she testified.

Shortage Seen Of Ballot Boxes For Virginia

Richmond, Va., May 9 (AP).—Virginia cities and counties today faced a possible shortage of ballot boxes for the August 2 Democratic and Republican primaries.

The industrial department of the State Penitentiary, normal source of steel ballot boxes used by most localities, already has rejected orders for 150 boxes.

"We still are filling orders posted as far back as 1947—jobs delayed by the recent steel shortage," he said. There are 1755 precincts in the State and the law requires there must be separate ballot boxes.

Mrs. Roosevelt Renamed

Lake Success, May 9 (AP).—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was reelected president of the U. N. Commission on Human Rights today.

PUC Clears Pepco Issue; Price $12.50

By S. Oliver Goodman

After an afternoon of fancy shadow-boxing by a Cleveland investment firm, the District Public Utilities Commission yesterday approved an underwriting agreement whereby a syndicate, headed by Dillon, Read & Co., Inc., of New York, will handle the sale of 592,250 shares of Potomac Electric Power Co. common stock.

Subject to Securities and Exchange Commission clearance, the Pepco stock will be sold to present shareholders at a price of $12.50 a share. Rights to buy the new stock will be issued on the basis of one new share for each five old shares of record May 9.

The negotiated underwriting agreement provides that members of the Dillon, Read syndicate will receive a commission of 30 cents a share for services.

That's where the shadow-boxing began. Appeared Milton V. Freeman, representative of Otis & Co. of Cleveland and said his firm would be willing to handle the deal for 15 cents a share compensation. Just give him time to call his Cleveland headquarters and he would save Pepco about $90,000 in fees.

O. K., make that a firm commitment and we'll talk business, said the PUC in effect, turning a deaf ear to demurrer by Pepco's counsel.

Can't Make Firm Bid

The hearing was recessed until 5 p. m. and back came Freeman with an apologetic expression and said something to the effect that he was sorry but his company was not prepared to enter a firm bid.

Members of the patient PUC then showed remarkable restraint. Commissioner James W. Lauderdale did explode to the extent of asking Freeman somewhat curtly: "Upon what information did you originally announce a bid?"

Earlier in the day, Pepco directors awarded an issue of 10 million dollars of first mortage bonds to a group headed by Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc. of Chicago, on a bid of 101.01991 for a 2⅞ per cent The group, which includes Thomas L. Hume Sons, Inc. of Washington, and Stein Bros. & Boyce of Baltimore, is expected to reoffer the bonds, due 1984, at 101½ to yield 2.805. Formal reoffering will be on Wednesday.

PUC approval of the award was given along with the stock issue authorization.

Eight Other Bidders

C. W. Maxwell, Halsey Stuart representative, said that his firm's bond bid was one of the highest prices paid in recent months for a utility issue and attested to Pepco's high credit standing.

Eight other groups entered bids, all for a 2⅞ per cent coupon, as follows: White, Weld & Co., 100.78891; Lee Higginson Corp., 100.715; Harriman Ripley & Co., Inc., 100.645; Lehman Brothers, 100.5781; Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane, 100.57; Kuhn, Loeb & Co., 100.555; Dillon, Read & Co., Inc. (the local syndicate), 100.1399, and the First Boston Corp., 100.099.

Proceeds of the bond and stock issues, expected to be more than 17 million dollars, are arranged for construction needs this year. Pepco has estimated expenditures at $25,100,000 in 1949; $16,700,000 in 1950; $15,000,000 in 1951 and $10,000,000 in 1952.

NET HOLDS STEAY: Peoples Drug Stores, Inc., reported net income of $300,723.82 for the first three months this year, compared with $300,824.25 in the same 148 period. Net this year and last year was equivalent to 70 cents a share on capital stock. Net sales for the first three months aggregated $11,179,255, against $10,848,164, but this gain was offset by a $330,692 increase in expenses. For April, sales totaled $3,893,966, a gain of 8.2 per cent over the same month last year. The chain operated pared with 136 in April, 1948.

AGENTS ELECT: John H. Pumphrey was elected president of the D. C. Association of Insurance Agents at a dinner meeting last night in the Mayflower. Pumphrey, who is associated with A. H. Baker Co., succeeds J. Hamilton Vance as president. Other new officers are: V. Manning Hoffman, first vice president; Henry G. Dudley, second vice president; William A. d'Espard, secretary; George S. Dention, treasurer. Vance was elected to the board of trustees, succeeding Nelson Bean. Other trustees were reelected. Principal speaker was Manning Gorman, assistant attorney general of the antitrust division of the Justice Department.

ELECTION SET: Stockholders of E. A. Filene Cooperative of Virginia, Inc., will meet Wednesday at the store to elect directors. There are 10 candidates for the seven posts. Also on the program will be a store-wide open-house, style show, refreshments and a talk by Jerry Voorhis, executive secretary of the Cooperative League.

EARNINGS: Commercial Credit Co. reported net income of $3,542,395 or $1.80 a share for the first three months, compared with $3,006,453 or $1.51 a share in the same 1948 period. Other earnings statements:

Chicago Grain

Chicago, May 9 (AP).—Grains dragged through a dreary session on the Board of Trade today, corn closing firm while everything else ended on an easier tone. Trading in all pits was light with commercial and commission house activity at a low ebb.

Wheat and corn played see-saw with one another throughout the session. During the first half of the day wheat was firm and corn weak. Then, in the latter half, wheat fell below the previous close while corn came back and went above Saturday's final prices.

At the end wheat was ¼-⅝ lower, corn was unchanged to ⅛ higher, oats were ⅛-⅜ lower, rye was 1 to 1¼ lower, soybeans were unchanged to 1¼ lower and lard was 5 cents lower to 8 cents a hundred pounds higher.

Montgomery Ward Elects Ball as Head

Chicago, May 9 (AP).—Stuart S. Ball today was elected president of Montgomery Ward & Co. Announcement of the election was made by the firm's executive committee.

At the same time, the committee announced that John A. Barr had been elevated to the position of vice-president and secretary. This is the position which Ball has held with the company.

Ball succeeds Wilbur Norton, who resigned last summer and now is with General Motors Corp. The office has been vacant since Norton's resignation.

Ball, 45, has been with the company since October, 1932. He was graduated from the Northwestern University law school in 1927. Before joining the company he served in the Des Moines, Iowa, law firm of Parrish, Cohen, Cutherie and Walters.

Ball was made assistant secretary of Ward's, the Nation's second largest retail merchandising firm, in 1932. He became secretary in 1934. He was made a vice-president only last month when the company named eight new vice-presidents in one day to replace men who had resigned.

According to La Salle Street gossip, Ball has been the personal choice of Sewell Avery, chairman, to be the new Ward president. At the annual stockholders' meeting last month Avery told newspapermen he had suggested the names of four men to the board of directors for appointment to the presidency.

Barr, 41, joined Ward's as an attorney in 1933. In 1940 he was named assistant secretary and manager of labor relations. He is a graduate of the Indiana University law school and, before joining Ward's, was a partner in the Gary, Indiana, law firm of Wildermuth & Force.

Transit Folks Are Also Pretty Good Skates

Frances Ann Severance of High Bridge rd., Bowie, Md., sat herself down and wrote a letter to Capital Transit. It said:

"I wish you would get my roller skate wheel out of the track on 6th st., between C st. and Maryland ave. ne. I live in Maryland, but come to my grandmother's to skate. I am 8 years old. Thank you."

What does a heartless utility do when it gets a letter like that? It sends a man out to probe in the mud at the bottom of the third rail slot, locates the skate wheel, cleans and oils it, and then mails it back to the little girl who lost it.

COUNTING SHEEP IS MUCH EASIER

Taxi Driver Henry H. Segal of 8003 Eastern dr., Silver Spring, Md., couldn't sleep the other night. Instead of counting sheep, he started counting miles, gallons and dollars.

The average cab driver, he figured, drives an extra 2¼ miles per day getting around the Dupont Circle underpass construction work.

Multiply that by 9000 hackers and you have roughly 20,000 extra miles per day. Multiply again by approximately 730 days of detours and you have between 14 and 15 million miles of extra driving.

Let's see now . . . about 23 cents a gallon for gas . . . tires . . . wear and tear . . . yipes! Washington hackers are spending more than a quarter of a million dollars to detour that circle.

The silver lining comes later, when the hackers will save a lot of time zipping through the completed underpass.

COP SETTLES FOR YELLOW, BUT BILL SEES RED

Remember E. L. Cave, the District motorcycle policeman who was operating a speed-trap from the Maryland side of the District Line, and snaring his victims as they crossed into Washington?

After the story of his operations appeared here, Officer Cave was transferred to other sections of the city.

Now he's evened the score. He's given me a ticket for allegedly "disobeying a signal device."

After he motioned me over to the curb, his opening question was: "What was the idea of going through the red light at 9th street?"

"I didn't go through the red light," I replied, "and if you were watching me, you should know that I didn't. I was clear of the intersection long before the red light came on."

"You went through on the yellow," said Cave, trying a new tack.

"That I did," I said.

"That's just as bad," pronounced the policeman as he began writing out a ticket.

"Not according to Inspector Miller," I challenged. "I've written several items on the subject, and have quoted him to the contrary."

"You were within 25 feet of the intersection when the light changed," said Cave. "At 25 miles per hour that gives you plenty of time to stop."

When I got back to the office, I called Inspector Miller. Without mentioning Cave, or the ticket I had gotten, I asked for a restatement of enforcement policy with regard to yellow lights. The head of the Traffic Division said:

"It's a matter of judgment. If the motorist is far enough away to make a safe, normal stop—we expect him to do so. Sudden jarring stops are not required, because they are likely to cause accidents. A motorist who can clear an intersection before the red light comes on is usually justified in having gone on through. But if the red light comes on before the motorist is clear of the intersection, that usually indicates he could have stopped before entering it."

At the 25 miles per hour speed at which Officer Cave says I was traveling, a car moves almost 37 feet per second. Cave says that I had "plenty of time" to stop in 25 feet.

But a bit of simple arithmetic shows that this allows only seven-tenths of a second, from the time the yellow light flashes on until the time Cave thinks the car should have been stopped.

Anyhow—that's my story, and the policeman's. In traffic court this morning, we'll tell 'em to the judge, and find out which one he prefers.

Don't miss tomorrow's paper, for the next thrilling installment — or you won't know how all this comes out.

P. S.: I just got a ticket for overtime parking. But this one is my fault. This "fast time" makes the hours go quicker.

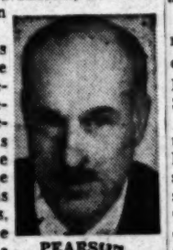
The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Alabama Negroes Forge Ahead

By Drew Pearson

A few years ago, if anyone had predicted white and Negro teachers would soon be paid the same salaries in Alabama schools, he would have been scoffed at.



PEARSON

A few years ago also, no one would have believed the prediction that Negro schools would become as up to date and modern as white schools. And if anyone had predicted a Negro would sit among 12 good men and true on a jury which decided the fate of a white man where the death sentence was involved, he would have been considered revolutionary.

However, all of those things have happened—in Alabama.

Two new Negro high schools have just been finished in Montgomery, and this writer, who recently visited them, can testify to the fact that they appear more up to date than the older schools for white children.

Montgomery also boasts a State Teachers College for Negroes which has a large number of modern, well equipped buildings, plus an athletic field which some Alabamans claim is better than theirs.

Montgomery's most beautiful monument to Negro education, however, is St. Jude's School, built by the nickels and pennies scraped together by a Catholic priest, Father Purcell. It probably surpasses anything built by the State.

Another monument to North-South cooperation is being urged by the Blue and Gray Association, which has built part of a football stadium for athletic contests between the North and the South, and is now trying to raise sufficient funds to complete the project.

Eventually a monument to the two great generals of the Civil War—Lee and Grant—will stand outside this shrine to North-South friendship, where already an annual football game is played between two all-star teams from the North and the South in Montgomery, the cradle of the Confederacy.

Taking a cue from the Blue and Gray Association, many Southern high schools invited Northern school elevens to the South last winter, and the idea is spreading.

"You can't legislate or force goodwill and brotherly love," says Champ Pickens, chief organizer of the Blue and Gray Memorial. "You have to encourage it."

GOP Surprised

The Young Republican Club of New York staged a banquet in Manhattan the other night to announce the winner of an essay contest. It was a distinguished and important occasion.

Some of the top leaders of the Republican Party, including Harold Stassen, had judged the contest and another judge, Bruce Bromley, of the New York Court of Appeals, was present to announce the winner.

Judge Bromley made the announcement with much dignity. He spoke of the importance of young political leaders forging to the front, and the importance of the question on which the essays were written: "Should the Senate Rules Be Changed?" He also emphasized that the contest had been nonpartisan, following which he announced the winner, H. Carl Markel, a promising young man from Williams College, one of the old and blue-blooded colleges of New England.

Young Markel rose, calmly pocketed the $100 prize, and said: "This is indeed a nonpartisan contest. In fact it isn't even bipartisan, but tripartisan. For during the last election I campaigned for Henry Wallace.'

"And I would like to tell you why I worked for Wallace," continued young Markel.

Whereupon Republican leaders were forced to sit in silence and listen to a political pep talk by one of Wallace's ardent admirers.

Note—After Markel finished, GOP Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon, the main speaker of the evening, made this comment on Markel's essay: "If you had asked me, I could have told you that the Wallaceites don't want to change the Senate rules, because they can spread more confusion under the present archaic rules."

Chennault on China

Newspapermen were shooed out of the Senate Armed Services Committee the other day in order to find out if Gen. Claire Chennault had anything confidential to say about China. He didn't.

In answer to a question from Chairman Millard Tydings of Maryland, however, Chennault estimated it would cost one million dollars a day to support the nine Chinese provinces still holding out against the Communists.

As for graft in China, Chennault snapped: "Corruption isn't confined to China. It is found in France — and even in the United States."

The Flying Tiger chief also urged that U. S. volunteers be allowed to help train Nationalist soldiers and plan their battle strategy. He warned that the Communists have a genius for organizing and will be able to hold China once they conquer it.

Pruning Government

President Truman has told friends that he is dead-serious about chopping the deadwood out of Government, and will use the Hoover Commission report as a blueprint to do so.

First to feel the presidential paring knife will be the agencies dealing with Federal works, procurement, surplus property, contract settlements and archives. These functions will be lumped together in a General Service Agency headed by able, amiable Jess Larson—providing Congress approves.
